

TEDDIES FOR MEN FEARED, SHOULDER STRAPS AND ALL

Michigan Boulevard Ablaze
With Gaudy Male
Undies.

By Times Special
CHICAGO, May 5.—For the first time since the demise of that great American institution, red flannels, men are wearing color in their underwear.

Not satisfied to be merely athletic, male lingerie is now aesthetic. The reason for the popularity of the brilliant underthings so far is only matter for conjecture. Perhaps men demanded the sacrifice of a feminine prerogative in exchange for their loss of the monopoly on close haircuts and trousers. Maybe it is due to the big little boys' desire for flashing color—even if it doesn't show.

He-Men, Too

With the advent of spring weather, the show windows along Michigan Blvd. are breaking out in medleys of colorful undies and shopkeepers say the he-men of this very virile western metropolis are buying them by the half-dozen.

The fad may presage the adoption of peek-a-boo georgette shirts. Who knows but that feminine hearts might flutter with a glance at coyly concealed pink male teddies with cute satin shoulder straps and ducky little lingerie clasps on them.

However far it may go, the fashion is thriving now. Many a needless blush arises to the face of the uninitiated and astonished man when he bursts into the locker room at the Country Club. The scenery, at a cursory glance, looks like a dressing room of the ladies of the ensemble just before the curtain.

Gaudy Trunks

The mode ranges from the modest polka-dot on a white field to the phantasmagoria found in the least modest or lounge-pajama. There are checks and plaids and stripes. But only the trunks thus far are concerned in the drive for better and brighter colors. Shirts are sleeveless and still white.

The trunks, it seems, are only a by-product of the shirt business. A thrifty manufacturer, loathe to throw away the remnants that were too small for shirts, conceived the idea of colored underwear. But from the way the fad is growing, male teddies are not far away.

DEMOCRATIC RACE TO CONVENTION

long-distance phone that it was "lucky Jim didn't make many speeches."

John Motto, Warsaw, Watson's manager, said the Howard County result was a complete surprise to him. Motto said he had received no indication Watson was in danger of losing there and, on the contrary, expected victory.

The Kokomo Tribune today said the result "amazed everybody."

Fight Is Planned

Other friends of Watson blamed a fight against Howard County Republican Chairman Omer Brown, a Watson supporter, as the cause of his downfall. Brown likely will be unseated Saturday when the county committee reorganizes.

Ora Davies, Robinson's State manager, claimed the junior Senator carried every county in the State but two, and that his majority will reach 65,000 before the count is completed.

Robinson lost St. Joseph and Madison Counties, home heaths respectively of Arch G. Graham and Oswald Ryan, two of his opponents. Graham carried St. Joseph County by 4,000, Davies conceded, but lost every other county in his district, over which he once ruled as Thirtieth District Republican chairman. The race in La Porte County, adjoining St. Joseph, was close, but the rural districts put over Robinson.

Ryan polled the second largest vote, scattered returns indicated, though the contest was nearly neck and neck, with Graham gaining up-State and losing in southern Indiana as precincts reported.

Observers surveyed the wet platform of Ward B. Hiner of Frankfort, with the appeal that gave him a strong fourth place.

On the basis of partial returns it seemed possible that a total of nearly 250,000 Democratic votes had been cast at the Tuesday primary.

Evans Woolen, Indianapolis banker, won the short-term Democratic nomination automatically, having had no opposition.

SARGENT WILL DECIDE ON VISIT OF LA GUARDIA

Urges Representatives Give Liquor Case Facts to Federal Jury Here.

Whether Representative F. H. La Guardia, New York, who charged in Congress several weeks ago that 530 cases of W. P. Squibb Company liquor held in the Federal Bldg. here had disappeared, will appear before the Federal grand jury which convened today was left to Attorney General John G. Sargent.

United States District Attorney Albert Ward informed Sargent of steps taken to secure La Guardia as a witness. He sent a copy of a letter to the Speaker of the House asking that Congress authorize La Guardia to accept a subpoena to appear in the Indianapolis court.

Letter Asks Facts

Ward pointed out in the letter that La Guardia should welcome the opportunity to assist the jury in clearing up the mystery of the liquor disappearance by disclosing whatever facts he might have.

La Guardia stated he would appear if requested to by Sargent. Ward said he had not completed his investigation, but some evidence had been presented. There was a possibility that former Mayor Shank, who in political talks referred to the disappearance of the liquor, will be subpoenaed.

Indictments Saturday

About 150 cases, including the alleged conspiracy of Vincennes officials to violate the prohibition law, will be taken up at the May term. It probably will last three weeks. About 260 witnesses will appear.

Federal Judge Robert C. Baltzell instructed the jurors in their duties and appointed B. B. Baker, Monticello banker, as foreman. Nineteen were sworn in.

Judge Baltzell asked the jury to return indictments on Saturdays.

CALIFORNIA AT WORK ON BETTER CARE FOR AGED

Investigators Find Many Are Unhappy in Enforced
Idleness.

By Times Special
BERKELEY, Cal., May 5.—Are we doing right by the old folks?

Believing the aged poor have been shamefully neglected, California social workers, assisted by the University of California, have taken up this problem with a view to furnishing a better answer than county poor farms, which separate husband and wife and humiliate their declining years with the sting of charity.

A survey of the 320,000 men and women over 60 in California is being made. A report will be issued this summer and will doubtless be used before the Legislature to support the demand for an old age pension system. Such a demand was incorporated in a bill prepared by the Fraternal Order of Eagles and, after passing both houses, was vetoed by the Governor.

The findings of the investigators have not been tabulated, but it is estimated that there are 4,800 aged poor over 60 in institutions and 3,500 of the same class receiving outside aid. The total aged dependents in San Francisco are 2,080.

"In the rapid stride of the modern world with all eyes fixed on the future, our slogan efficiency and our constant cry, 'speed up,' there is little regard for the older men and women whose methods of work are more leisurely," said Miss Esther de Turberville, one of the investigators. "They are swept aside into quiet eddies to gaze upon the whirl a bit bewildered and altogether saddened by realization that they are considered useless. In the study of old age care I have been privileged to visit some of these eddies. I found skilled workmen, college men, laborers, stock brokers, journalists, opera singers, many who felt they have been too early laid on the shelf. Some were sad, some bitter, some cynical, but mostly they were patient and sweet, and nearly all had achieved a philosophy of brave acceptance and good will."

Miss de Turberville found few foreigners among the dependent aged. In San Francisco 77 per cent in institutions were of pure American stock.

DEVICE PREVENTS RAIN

Motion Picture Company Invents Means to Prevent Showers.

By United Press
NEW YORK, May 5.—The Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Company, motion picture producers, will shortly apply to the United States Patent Office for a copyright on an invention which removes rain.

The new device is calculated to keep rain away when the filming of an exterior set is threatened by a sudden shower. It consists of a series of air plane propellers on motors which are mounted on high parallels. When it rains, these force a strong wind across a given space, above the heads of the actors and the exterior setting.

Thus a literal air barrage, or a solid wall of rapid air, separates the ground from the clouds above. The rain drops are blown beyond the set as they descend and filming can go on uninterrupted.
