

CLEVER POLITICS PLAYED BY BORAH IN DRY ATTITUDE

Brushes Aside States' Rights and Modification of Volstead Act.

By N. D. Cochran

WASHINGTON, June 3.—Senator Borah not only has some knowledge of statesmanship but he also knows a thing or two about practical politics.

In grabbing off in one speech the prohibition leadership in the Republican party he brushes aside such issues as States' rights and modification of the Volstead Act and concedes to anti-prohibitionists no right to change the present situation except by amending or repealing the Eighteenth Amendment.

Theoretically that program is fine, for if he can force the wets into that position he has them licked before they start to fight.

Amendment Safe

Nobody knows better than Senator Borah that even if a majority of the people of the United States became convinced that the Eighteenth Amendment has failed, it would take three-fourths of the States to change the constitution.

To put it in other way, if thirteen States were to stand out on the Eighteenth Amendment, the other thirteen States would be helpless. Amending the Volstead act, however, is something quite different, for it is an act of Congress. The thirteen States can't outvote thirty-five, even in the Senate, where each State has two votes and no more.

It is true that the States—three-fourths of them—put the Eighteenth Amendment into the Constitution, but they didn't make the Volstead act a part of the Constitution.

The amendment itself doesn't declare that an alcoholic content of over one-half of one per cent makes a beverage intoxicating. The amendment merely prohibits the manufacture, sale, transportation or importation of intoxicating liquor. It is the Volstead act that arbitrarily declares one-half of one per cent alcoholic content makes a beverage intoxicating.

What Can Be Done

And Congress has a perfect right to amend the Volstead act in any way it sees fit, so long as it doesn't attempt to keep the liquors which are in fact intoxicating.

Were Congress to amend the Volstead act and arbitrarily fix the alcoholic percentage too high, the Supreme Court undoubtedly would declare the amended act unconstitutional.

But even if Congress amended the Volstead act and left the alcoholic content blank, any State could enact an enforcement statute that would prohibit beverages which were intoxicating in fact.

Moreover Congress could so amend the Volstead act as to make it legal to transport from one State to another liquors intoxicating in fact. The Senate would fix the percentage of alcohol that made any beverage intoxicating in fact.

That Referendum

The New York referendum so ingeniously assailed by Borah was written by former Senator Root and says:

"Should the Congress of the United States modify the Federal act to force the Eighteenth Amendment to the constitution to let the United States so the same shall not permit the manufacture, sale, transportation of beverages which are not in fact intoxicating so determined in the laws of the respective States."

On the constitutionality of such an act people can choose between the opinions of Borah or Root. So far as the New York referendum goes, it has no binding effect on anybody unless the New York members of Congress want to appeal it as a mandate from their constituents. But Borah goes pretty far when he charges that it is constitutional anarchy and an attempt to nullify the constitution.

NINE SPEED CHARGES

Seven Other Motorists Arrested by Police.

Nine alleged speeders were slated Wednesday night. Seven other drivers were charged with violating some section of the traffic ordinance.

HUNGER HIKE RESUMED

MICHIGAN CITY, Ind., June 3.—Maintaining his hiking-fast to New York, George Hasler Johnston started from here today, intending to reach South Bend, Ind., tonight.

Johnston started from Chicago Tuesday in a cross-country hike to New York, during which time he plans to eat nothing. He is gaining strength by drinking twenty quarts of water a day. He reported he was feeling "immense."

ALONG AUTO ROW

Hale C. Barber, formerly president of the Barber-Warnock Company, local Ford dealers, has become manager of the subdivision department of the Walter T. White Company.

Barber is one of the best known business men in the city, having been in the automobile business in Indianapolis for the past twelve years.

He is a member of the Indianapolis Athletic Club, Columbia Club and the Chamber of Commerce. His business experience in the automobile field should fit him for his entry into the real estate business.

"The inspiration of a genius" is an outstanding comment on the glass ventilating device attached to all the doors of the closed new "Stutz safety chassis" models.

They control the ventilation of the car and protect the driver and occupants from the rain splash while securing for them an even circulating current of outside air.

The ventilating feature of the new

Stutz closed cars is at once ingeniously attractive as well as being utilitarian to the last degree, and makes a distinct advancement in the body builders' art.

A new beacon will light the way along auto row. Carl H. Wallerich Company, local Chrysler distributor, is erecting a new electric sign on top of the Chrysler Bldg. at Meridian and St. Joseph St. The sign is of the flasher type and when completed will be one of the largest electric signs along the row.

The Nash-built Ajax hereafter will be known as the Nash Light Six, the Ajax Motors Company, a subsidiary of Nash Motors, having been entirely absorbed by the parent company.

The consolidation marks the first anniversary of the Ajax, with a production of 25,000 cars.

Announcement of the change in name from Ajax to Nash Light Six also marks the greatest five-month period of business in Nash history.

Be Presented Tuesday.

The plans are expected to be completed sometime Tuesday. They call for sixty-five classrooms, six study halls and twenty laboratory rooms, with the gymnasium and the new Caleb Mills Hall in the southeast section of the building.

The main entrance of the structure will face Meridian St., with two entrances facing Thirty-Fourth St., and two rear entrances. The assembly hall will seat 1,250. Building capacity will be 2,500. The structure is to be a two-story building, with the rear entrance and will be built around an open court. Six stone pillars will decorate the Meridian St. side of the building.

And Then They Did Get Off

By United Press
MILWAUKEE, Wis., June 3.—Gilbert Cooper, Sioux City, Iowa, and Frank Bourke, Bentley, Ill., board a Chicago, North Shore and Milwaukee electric train, with a basket of vegetables and two tickets to Racine.

They didn't get off at Racine and Conductor Lumby collected extra fares to Kenosha. At Kenosha they didn't get off, paying their fares to the next station, Waukegan. At Waukegan they still stayed in. Lumby got suspicious and called detectives.

Detectives found $1,200 in the vegetables.

The men had robbed the State Bank of Shorewood three hours before. They confessed.

RELATIVES DEAD, TAKES OWN LIFE

Woman Shoots Self on Garfield Park Bench.

Despondent and broken in health, Miss Deane Byrd, 31, of 2947 Highland Pl., took her own life Wednesday by firing a bullet into her heart while she sat on a bench in Garfield Park.

Charles Millener, 857 Bradshaw St., and William Hall, 6167 Cornell Ave., saw the clutched revolver and summoned police and Coroner Paul F. Robinson.

In a letter found and opened by police, Miss Byrd stated she had buried all her loved ones and the death of her aunt a short time ago broke the last thread of happiness in her life and rendered it full of heart aches and grief. Letters to Mrs. Margaret Hanson, with whom she lived, and one to Clifford Askin, undertaker, were found. No funeral arrangements have been made.

HUNT ROBBERS HERE

Crothersville Bank Bandits Used Local Stolen Car, Belief.

With the discovery Wednesday, near Greenwood, of a large sedan thought to be the auto used in the Crothersville (Ind.) bank robbery, Tuesday, search for the two bandits who obtained $6,000, centered in Indianapolis today.

According to Inspector Claude Worley the auto was stolen from Abo Silverman, 25 S. Capitol Ave., May 31. Detectives who investigated the discovery of the auto said they found a straw hat in the auto. Hat bore the trade mark of an Indianapolis firm.

LAST DAY FOR FILING

Today is the last day for primary election candidates to file itemized statements of their expenses accounts with Albert H. Losche, county clerk. Losche said the names of all candidates who fail to comply with the statutes will be turned over to the county grand jury.

Candidates who fail to file accounts may be indicted under the corrupt practice law, Losche said. Persons who made no expenses must file a statement. Most of the candidates have filed, Losche said.

LOCAL ATTORNEY SUGGESTS GILLIOM DROP PROCEEDINGS

Anti-Saloon League Head's
Statements Defended on Ground of Free Speech.

Suggestion that Attorney General Arthur L. Gilliom withdraw his contempt proceedings against Dr. Edward S. Shumaker, Indiana Anti-Saloon League superintendent, and his associates, is made by William V. Rooker, Indianapolis attorney, who has filed a lengthy brief in the case now pending in State Supreme Court.

Asking leave to appear as a friend of the court, Rooker defends Shumaker's alleged contemptuous statements about the court on the ground of free speech.

Although expressing the hope that Gilliom will relent in his fight against Shumaker and his associates, Rooker said, "In any event, the hope is cherished that, by no inadvertence will the court make any statement which, if exposed to its proper interpretation, will hereafter arise to plague the liberty of conscience, of speech and of the press."

The court Wednesday overruled motions of Shumaker's attorneys to strike out every vital point in Gilliom's information charging the group with contempt. Charges center on Shumaker's statement in his 1925 annual report that the court is "wet" in its inclinations. Ethan A. Miles and Jess E. Martin, League attorneys, are codefendants.

Rooker's brief, consisting of fifty-six pages of closely typewritten matter, boasts of the historical background of free speech.

$80,000,000 AIR BILL APPROVED

House-Senate Conferees

The Senate passed the bill late Wednesday. The House passed it several weeks ago, but some changes have been made. The House may approve the Senate changes or may send it to conference, which will delay it several days in reaching President Coolidge's desk.

In his confession Garner told of Clay attempting to arrest him and of the gun fight in which the officer was killed.

CENTRALIZATION OF POWER PLAYED

tion of war on abuses of the system of government set up by the Constitution.

He flayed the protective tariff. He declared the farmers would work out their own destiny if the tariff schedules were revised downward.

Denounces Senators

In a crisp, ironical strain, Simms denounced Senators Watson and Johnson on their vote against American adhesion to the World Court and for trying to "ride two horses at the same time," each of which are travelling in opposite directions from the other.

"If this situation denotes statesmanship," he said, "God help the republic."

"The flash of an electric message," Simms said, "caused Watson and Robinson to do an about-face on their court vote, deserting President Coolidge after they had voluntarily promised him their support." Observers believe he alluded to an ultimatum served on the Senators before the vote was taken by Indiana Klansmen.

Aiming his guns at Watson's farm relief law proposals, Simms declared:

Hits at Panaceas

"Let no politician, however shrewd; no party managers, however astute, cherish the illusion that the people can be stampeded with alluring panaceas and specious argument based on experience. It cannot be done."

A sixth of his address was devoted to a plea for finances for the State organization's use in winning the fall election.

"Until we have placed the finances of our party upon a sound basis we shall continue to drift and float with the tide like a derelict ship, with neither power to drift nor rudder to guide," he said.

"When we paddle our own canoe and pay our own bills out of our own money we shall find ourselves prepared to face and successfully overcome our adversaries."

Calls for Balance

Simms called for a return to "a maintenance of scientific and essential balance between national and State governmental powers and the recognition and preservation of local self-government."

"On every hand we are brought face to face with efforts to disturb the balance of power between the general and State governments by taking power from the latter and transferring it to the former."

"The present tendency of taking from the States powers reserved and adding to the general government and clothing it with authority and jurisdiction over matters local and domestic, will, if unrestrained, lead ultimately to destruction of the Republic."

"Within recent years, both in State and Nation boards and bureaus have multiplied at an alarming rate and the cost of the administration of government has increased by the rule of arithmetical progression."

Violate Local Self-Government
"In addition to the ever-increasing burdens of taxation, these boards almost universally fail to confine themselves to the exercise of the functions pertaining to State and national affairs, but flagrantly violate the principle of local self-government by usurping the rights and functions of local units, thus centralizing the power so exercised at the seat of government."

So rapidly has the Government increased its functions that today there is one office holder to every twelve persons, Simms declared. He demanded a return to the principle of separation of the legislative, executive and judicial branches of the Government.

Wants Bureau Abolished

As one means of bringing relief to the farmer, he recommended "the discharge of five million unnecessary office holders, abolishment of useless and dangerous bureaus and leaving the money they now spend in the pockets of the taxpayers."

"Reduce the tariff to the point where it will yield the largest revenue to the Government," he said, and leave the incalculable difference in the pockets of those who need it most.

"By that just act, the markets of the world will be opened to the products of the farm and the farmer will be enabled to purchase in markets freed from the burdens thus imposed."
