

AMERICANS WILL BOW TO BRITISH MONARCH TONIGHT

Last Feverish Preparations Made by 500 Lucky Debutantes.

By Times Special LONDON, June 9.—Five hundred lucky debutantes completed preparations Tuesday night to start their social careers by courtesying before the King and Queen at the season's first royal court at Buckingham Palace tonight.

As a preliminary function to the royal opening of what promises to be a gay social season the American ambassador and Mrs. Alanson B. Houghton entertained Tuesday night with a brilliant dinner, followed by a dance, and many of the American girls who will be presented tonight met some of London's visiting royal Princes informally.

Among those at the Houghton dinner were the Prince of Wales, Miss Betty Baldwin, daughter of the premier, and several of the leading English debutantes, while at the dance were Prince Chichibu, second son of the emperor of Japan, and Prince Gustavus Adolphus, son of Sweden's crown Prince, who is now in the United States.

There will be 500 other women and 200 men who will make their bows to the King and Queen tonight, but the show at the palace is in reality for the debutantes.

American women will be much in evidence among them, and most of these will be presented by Mrs. Houghton. This season has meant months of work for embassy secretaries, for the number of women who may be presented by diplomats' wives is strictly limited and the list of applicants is big. With Mrs. Houghton will be her daughter, Miss Mathilde Houghton, recently recovered from a broken collar bone sustained in a crash from a horse.

NEURITIS PAINS FELT LIKE POINT OF KNIFE IN HIM

Another Indianapolis Man Tells How Konjola Relieved His Suffering.

The fame of Konjola has so quickly spread over the city of Indianapolis and throughout this entire section until now amazing reports are received about the merits of this new medical compound in cases of stomach, liver, kidney and bowel disorders and neuritis and rheumatic troubles. Just a few days ago Mr. M. V. Sliger, well-known Indianapolis citizen, living at 3109 West Washington Street, this city, made the following statement during a conversation with the Konjola man who daily meets crowds of local people at Hook's drug store, Pennsylvania and Market Streets, where he is explaining this medicine.

"I can not help but say a good word for your Konjola, because it is the only medicine which really put a stop to my suffering," said Mr. Sliger. "I had neuritis and the pains were so severe they felt like the point of a knife piercing me in the shoulder. I had a constant, steady ache in my arm and elbow. At nights I would have to be up walking the floor, because I just simply couldn't sleep.

"I was also very nervous, so that little things would excite me, and from losing sleep I became pretty weak and rundown. My right arm got so bad that I couldn't raise it above my head.

"I had been reading about Konjola, and one case described mine pretty closely, so I got this medicine, and, as I have said, it is the only thing which really put a stop to my suffering. The sharp pains in my shoulders have been relieved, also the arms and elbows. I can raise my right arm way up above my head now, but if I had tried this before, it certainly would put me in misery. My nerves are eased up, and I sleep better than I have for a long time. It seems that Konjola has benefited my whole system and I certainly want to endorse this medicine to everyone."

Konjola is a medicine which contains twenty-two juices from natural plants, blended with other splendid ingredients, all of which have a surprising effect upon the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, and by invigorating those organs to more activity Konjola drives rheumatic and neuritis poisons from the system. Many people who take this medicine say afterward that it seems to act like magic in these cases.

The Konjola man is at Hook's drug store, Pennsylvania and Market Streets, Indianapolis, where he is daily meeting the public and introducing and explaining the merits of this remedy. Free samples given.

La Mirada—the ritual of Spanish love making

La Mirada—the long and fervid look of frank admiration—every lovely Spanish woman expects it from the susceptible Spanish male—and they're all susceptible! And far from being embarrassed, the Spanish woman accepts La Mirada as a respectful compliment, and receives it without embarrassment.

And why not?—How can she be unaware of the dazzling perfection of her skin, as firm and fine to the eye as marble? The priceless armory of every woman who vibrates to the thrill of conquest!

And yet in Spain the cosmetic art is almost unknown—

those lovely creatures, blessed by nature with ravishing skins, keep them so with nothing but Castile* soap. And of course every woman knows that "nothing in the world is as good for her skin!"

So we have made her an exquisite Castile in delicious toilet form. Without question the finest toilet soap in the world!

A dainty shade for her hand. A "hard-milled" soap that will not deliquesce (a new virtue in Castile). That will give her an instant bland cleansing lather even in lukewarm water. That will rinse instantly. Finally—a Castile of supreme purity, that she can get almost anywhere—and for ten cents! Armour, U. S. A.

*So called from the province of Castile, in northern Spain, where it was first made, six hundred years ago.

Doña CASTILE 10 Cents

Pure Olive Oil gives Doña Castile its color, fragrance and delicious blandness for delicate skins.

IN THE HOME

MRS. PACKARD: "Time for your Pinkham's Compound, Eleanor."

MRS. REED: "Mother, that sounds exactly like Grandma. Remember how she used to praise it?"

MRS. PACKARD: "Yes, three generations in our family have relied upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Some day you'll be giving it to little Marjorie."

YEARS ago, a mother gave Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to her young daughter. The daughter married and became the mother of seven children.

Mrs. L. E. Randall, Box 381, Centralia, Wash.

She writes: "I always took it before my babies were born and I know it gave me strength to do my work. I am now having the Change of Life and am taking the Vegetable Compound again. I am giving it to my oldest daughter. I have always recommended it to my friends. I will answer any letters from women asking about the medicine."

BEFORE her marriage, Mrs. Frankum was a working girl. Like many girls, she sometimes had to stay home from her work. A friend told her of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and she found that it relieved her trouble.

She was in good health until her second baby came. "I began to take the Vegetable Compound again," she writes, "and so was able to do my housework. Women ask me what I have been doing and I tell them about your medicine. I feel that I owe a lot to it."
