

TRACTION STRIKE ORDER ATTACKED

Street Car Men Ask Injunction Be Dissolved.

Two motions asking the Federal temporary injunction against the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employees of America, granted by the court on petition of the Indianapolis Street Railway Company that it be dissolved, were filed today by Frank Baker, association attorney.

The motions attack the jurisdiction of the court in issuing the injunction.

It is also pointed out that an act of Congress prevents the court from restraining men to peacefully cease work for any organization either singly or in a body and the court can not restrain them from meeting in a body to discuss any situation before them.

The injunction issued prevents employees of the street car company from quitting the company's employ in a body and also prevents James Armstrong and Robert Parker, association officials, from advising the men to strike.

Harry Dynes, Department of Labor conciliator, has gone to Washington to discuss the situation with department officials. He will return late Thursday and a conference is expected to be held with Governor Jackson Friday.

FARM BILL VOTE TO BE DELAYED

Leaders' Fear Measure Has Little Chance Now.

By United Press

WASHINGTON, June 16.—Senate farm leaders today decided to delay the vote on the Watson-Dawes-McNary-Haugen bill for a few days with the hope of enlisting additional support. Sponsors of the bill admitted it might be defeated if voted on now.

Senators from the agricultural States, rebuffed by the denunciation of their plan for farm relief by Secretary of the Treasury Mellon, are resentful. Debate is becoming bitter with lines drawn sharply between the East and West.

"Whenever the farmer asks for any legislation the East always decides that it is 'unsound,'" Senator Peter Norbeck (Rep.), South Dakota, told the Senate.

SAVED PAIN AND SUFFERING

Arkansas Father and His Daughter Tell How Black-Draught Has Helped Them to Keep in Good Health.

Mr. F. M. Hosy, head of a large family residing near Mineral Springs, Ark., made the following statement describing his long use of Black-Draught:

"I am 52 years old and have raised a large family, all now about grown."

"I have used Thedford's Black-Draught continually, when needed, for a number of years, for indigestion, sour stomach and minor troubles not requiring the care of a doctor."

"I use Black-Draught myself, and find that a small dose at bedtime will help me to secure a good night's sleep. I would not be without it, as I am subject to constipation."

Mrs. E. C. Sanders, one of Mr. Hosy's daughters who lives here in town, had this to say: "My father and mother used to give Black-Draught to us children when we were puny or drooped around, and we would feel better. I haven't taken any other medicine for a long time. I used to have a dizziness that would terminate in sick headache, and I found that Black-Draught was good to stop this. I would take it at the first symptom and it saved me much pain and suffering."

said he was trying to trap the men. Prosecutor Remy knew of the case, he said.

Remy verified Keeney's statement that he was told of the attempt to lockwood and Casey.

Lockwood entered his auto parked at Michigan and Illinois Sts., Wednesday and attempted to give him $100, Keeney said.

Say Police

As he was about to take the money he saw an auto load of police drive up and park behind his machine.

He then made an agreement with Lockwood to meet him at his home that night.

Keeney was making a talk at the Hoosier Athletic Club that night, Keeney said, and he went there and told Remy of the affair.

On Remy's orders accompanied by Byron K. Elliott, Ralph Spaan and two newspaper reporters, Keeney went to Lockwood's home later.

Elliott and Spaan, deputy attorneys general, assigned by Remy to prosecute liquor cases, and the reporters had in some bushes while called Lockwood from the house and talked to him, Keeney said.

Lockwood again offered him money, but he refused to accept it because there was no evidence that any police were near to arrest him on the "framed up" bribery charge, Keeney said.

"It's my word against that of two bootleggers," Keeney said.

Prosecutor Remy declared he believed the charges against Keeney were made in an effort to discredit the prosecutor's office and the investigation the grand jury is making of alleged failure of the police department to enforcement of the dry law.

Keeney vigorously denied any "ever passed between him, self, Lockwood and Casey," and said he refused beer, cigarettes and cigars offered by Lockwood when he visited his home.

To Support Remy

A resolve to support Remy in his fight for law enforcement and to go to the polls on Nov. 4 to elect men who will eradicate "rotten politics,"

"I have known for several days," he said, "that they were trying to frame Keeney."

A resolve to support Remy in his fight for law enforcement and to go to the polls on Nov. 4 to elect men who will eradicate "rotten politics,"

"Not only the police department, but the bootlegging profession are down on him. That's because they know he has the goods on him. The bootleggers haven't forgotten the seventy odd cases he worked up last year."

Keeney, who was a temporary Federal prohibition agent for two months last winter, made the investigation which resulted in the arrests of more than seventy persons in Federal liquor raids.

Several months ago he was named a special investigator for deputy attorney generals, who, under Remy, are in charge of prosecuting Marion County liquor cases.

Denies Frame-up

Chief Johnson denied that there was any attempt to "frame" Keeney.

"I want the police department investigated and exonerated or cleaned up," he said.

"It's time the entire matter was straightened up and I am willing to let Federal officials do it. When the police department has been exonerated, or any officers on the force, who are not acting right are cleaned out, if they are any, I am willing to accept the entire responsibility for the force and declare that the law will be enforced."

He took up the charges against Keeney with Ward at 4 a. m. today and turned all affidavits in the case over to Ward when Ward said he would go into the matter, Johnson said.

Johnson made public a statement in which Keeney told of meeting Casey and Lockwood in a lengthy conference after his arrest.

"I told Lockwood's attorney I wanted to get the big fellows and would like to have some information about bootleggers in West Indianapolis," Keeney declared he told the attorney who asked "what he could do."

Keeney's statement said Lockwood told him: "I am not a squealer, I have spent most of my time in prisons and penal farms. But I will do anything to help myself. How

"Mr. Remy has made it clear that justice is not carried out in this city," the Rev. Mr. Shinn declared. "We must awaken the common man so that his vote next fall will be a vote against the crook that we want to keep out of office."

"Keep your eyes open, keep your ears open and don't let mere political parties hoodwink you," warned the pastor.

Remy was in receipt today of a letter from the Rev. Joseph D. Armistead, pastor of the Downey Avenue Christian Church, Downey and Julian Aves., commanding the prosecutor's address delivered at the church a week ago before the Men's Club. It was following this address that Chief Johnson recalled two investigators assigned to Remy's office.

Remy, in his speech, declared political bosses were able to cause efficient police officers transferred from bootleg districts.

The Rev. Armistead said that, following the Sunday morning service, the Men's Club met and endorsed Remy's speech. At no time during the speech did Remy make any attack upon Chief Johnson or the department as a whole, the letter said.

SYCAMORE, Ill., June 16.—Three young collegians were to take the stand in Circuit Court to plead for mitigation of punishment for criminal attack on pretty Dorothy Westervelt, co-ed at the Northern Illinois Teachers' College.

The youths, Leonard Rich, Stanley Hurt and Emerson Wilson, pleaded guilty when their case was originally called a week ago. A mitigation hearing, however, was granted.

Tuesday, Miss Westervelt told her story of the attack. She said that on the night of April 11 the three youths took her and Miss Lillian Gray for an auto ride. After Miss Gray was taken home the boys drove to the country and there the attack occurred.

Keeney declared that June 12 Lockwood and another man he later learned was Casey went with him to Harding St., where Casey and Lockwood pointed out two houses as having stills inside. Keeney said he knew there were no stills inside, but said nothing.

Keeney's statement declared that Beckett, special attorney general, told him to "be careful some one didn't frame him," when he saw him in Remy's office.

Keeney vigorously denied any "ever passed between him, self, Lockwood and Casey," and said he refused beer, cigarettes and cigars offered by Lockwood when he visited his home.
