

VACATIONISTS TO TAKE ADVANTAGE OF STATE PARKS

Conservation Department Expects Record Attendance July 5.

With approach of the warm season, thousands of vacationists are shuttling back and forth along the principal highways of the State and an appreciable increase in attendance at the different State parks has been noted by the State conservation department.

On the strength of early reports from the park superintendents, a record attendance was predicted by Richard Lieber, director of the conservation department. With the Fourth of July coming on Sunday this year, the following day has been set aside for the usual celebration, allowing a full two-day period for the observance. This arrangement, which seems to have been generally agreed to by employers, will enable the pleasure seeker to enjoy a complete rest and outing at one or another of the six State parks in operation, Lieber pointed out.

Varied Scenery

In its string of six parks, Indiana has about everything to offer in the way of picturesque scenery. While no single park is lavish in its share of scenery, each possesses something out of the ordinary. From trees four centuries old to rocky canyons cut hundreds of feet deep through walls of solid stone. McCormick's Creek Canyon State Park, nearest to Indianapolis, has unusual facilities for the entertainment of children, in addition to its natural scenic beauties for the older folk. In one of the deeper canyons a bathing pool has been constructed for the children and nearby is a fully equipped playground, operated under the direction of a trained supervisor.

Haven for Wild Life

McCormick's is widely known as a haven for wild life, especially birds, and is rich in its assortment of growing plants and trees, making the reservation a rendezvous for naturalists. Only two hours' motor ride from Indianapolis, McCormick's probably will be heavily patronized over the Fourth.

For a longer Fourth of July trip, there are such resorts as Turkey Run park, directly west of Indianapolis in Parke County, and Clifty Falls, near Madison. Each can be reached in a five-hour drive at moderate speed. Turkey Run is noted for its deep gorges and heavy growth of virgin timbers, while Clifty is famed for its picturesque falls, its precipitous hills and its unparalleled panorama, which takes in the Ohio river and Kentucky's hills beyond. Hotel at Dunes probably embodies Indian's most valuable gift of nature. In addition to the facilities at Dunes for tourists, the State just last week acquired a hotel which will be available to parties on short notice.

Dunes Park, in Porter County, one of the State's newest reservations,

Lake James State Park, with a two-mile frontage on the lake of the same name, is the baby of the State park system. Nevertheless, it will welcome a fair share of park patrons since it is the only one of the system boasting a lake.

Limited hotel accommodations are afforded at Muscatatuck State Park, in Jennings County. Camping facilities, however, are unlimited. What Muscatatuck may lack in other accommodations, it makes up for in its meals, so declare those who take their stop-over meals there.

All Indiana parks are located on or near State highways, most of them within three hours motor ride from Indianapolis, and are also accessible to steam and electric lines. The exceedingly low rates for hotel service prove attractive to persons wishing to take the family on an outing.

PROPOSED PLAN OF PARKING TO SPEED TRAFFIC

Three Lines of Cars Would Relieve Congestion, Says City Official.

Flat-to-curb parking, provided in the proposed new traffic regulations, will allow three lines of traffic instead of one to move on both sides of Washington St., Macklin Mack, city plan commission secretary, said today.

The additional traffic lines will allow much more rapid clearance of traffic congestion, Mack said. Cars now stationed at a forty-five degree angle project an average of from ten to twelve feet into the street, it has been estimated.

Would Ban Turns

Mack proposed an additional step to the tentative ruling against parking on Monument Circle, suggesting that right and left turns be prohibited at Market and Pennsylvania Sts., to prevent the long lines of cars that now often extend around the Circle.

Mack said he found flat-to-curb parking was considered a success in Chicago, where he inspected regulations a few days ago.

Eliminate Delay

"Indianapolis must get away from the idea of a one-line-of-traffic city," said Mack. "With two or three rows of cars moving simultaneously, a great deal of delay will be eliminated and many minutes will be saved."

The additional restrictions on downtown parking will tend to discourage the driving of cars to work by persons whose employment is in the business district, it is believed. Many now park their cars all day. This tendency would mean expansion of business for the Indianapolis Street Railway Company, Peoples Motor Coach Company and for the downtown garages maintaining parking places.

A locomotive gives four puffs for every complete turn of the driving wheels.
