

YOUNG SOLDIERS AT CAMP ENTERAINED

Many Social Affairs Planned by Service League for C. M. T. C. Boys—Dances on Friday Nights.

Many social affairs have been planned by those in charge of the activities at the hostess house of the Women's Overseas Service League during the summer training camp, which opened this week at Ft. Benjamin Harrison, and will continue for a month.

Plans include a dance every Friday night to which members of Indianapolis societies, girls' clubs and others are being invited, and a program of stunts and music on Thursdays. These affairs will be in charge of the auxiliary to the 38th Division, of which Mrs. Allen T. Fleming is president and Mrs. J. P. Cochran, chairman.

Sunday services will be in charge of Fred Hoke and H. M. Glosbrenner, teachers in the Sunday morning classes, and William P. Evans, Bible teacher.

The Rev. C. H. Gebhardt and Carl Adams, speakers for Sunday evening services. D. F. Kepner and Earl Z. Sigmon will be song leaders, and the All Saints Cathedral choir will sing, July 25.

Mrs. William Allen Moore will give whistling lessons. Mrs. George Eckert, soloist, and Mrs. Gertrude Butz, pianist, will contribute their services. The hostess house will be open from early morning until 10 p. m. during the four weeks' encampment, and will be headquarters for reading, letter-writing, resting and meeting visiting relatives. Miss A. Grace Hawk is chairman of the Indiana C. M. T. C. activities committee of the league, which includes Mrs. John T. Day, Mrs. Jess Mitchell, Miss Alice Bush, Miss Florence Martin, and Miss Hazel Dickens, president of the organization.

SOCIAL ACTIVITIES

Miss Charlotte Menely, who will be married to Forrest Mason Strickland of Saginaw, Mich., Wednesday, was the guest of honor at a pretty shower and bachelorette party, given by Mrs. W. Robert Elder, 853 N. Drexel Ave., Friday evening. The bride colors, orchid and pink, were used in floral decorations throughout the house and in the table appointments. Guests with Miss Menely included Mesdames Kenneth Reed and Mae Hendrix and Misses Grace Smith, Bernice Leonard, Winifred Leek, Lillian Bennett, Orpha Kraft, Beatrice Stafford, Martha Shaw, Kathleen Aughe and Aylene Carr.

Mrs. Herman G. Gaines, 558 Highland Dr., entertained with a bridge party Friday night in honor of Miss Carolyn Kelly of Mitchell, Minn., guests of Mrs. Raymond H. McGuire. A Japanese effect was carried out in the decorations and small gayly colored Japanese parasols were given as favors. The guests included Mesdames Raymond McGuire, Guy Williamson, L. C. Grimes, Jesse Roush, Ernest Dinwiddie, Clifford Meyers and Nordeau Heaps and Misses Eleanor McQueen, Miami, Fla., Frances Aufderheide, Jeanette Jefferies, New York and Helen Shirley.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. McConnell and sons, 3231 Kenwood Ave., will leave Sunday on an extended motor tour. While away they will visit the sequentennial exposition at Philadelphia; Washington, D. C., and various points in New York.

Members of the Dulcet Club will give a luncheon-bridge at the Indianapolis Athletic Club Tuesday at 1 p. m. Mrs. Noble Howard, president, and Mrs. Harshill M. Tebay will be hostesses. They will be assisted by Mrs. Arthur B. Wagner.

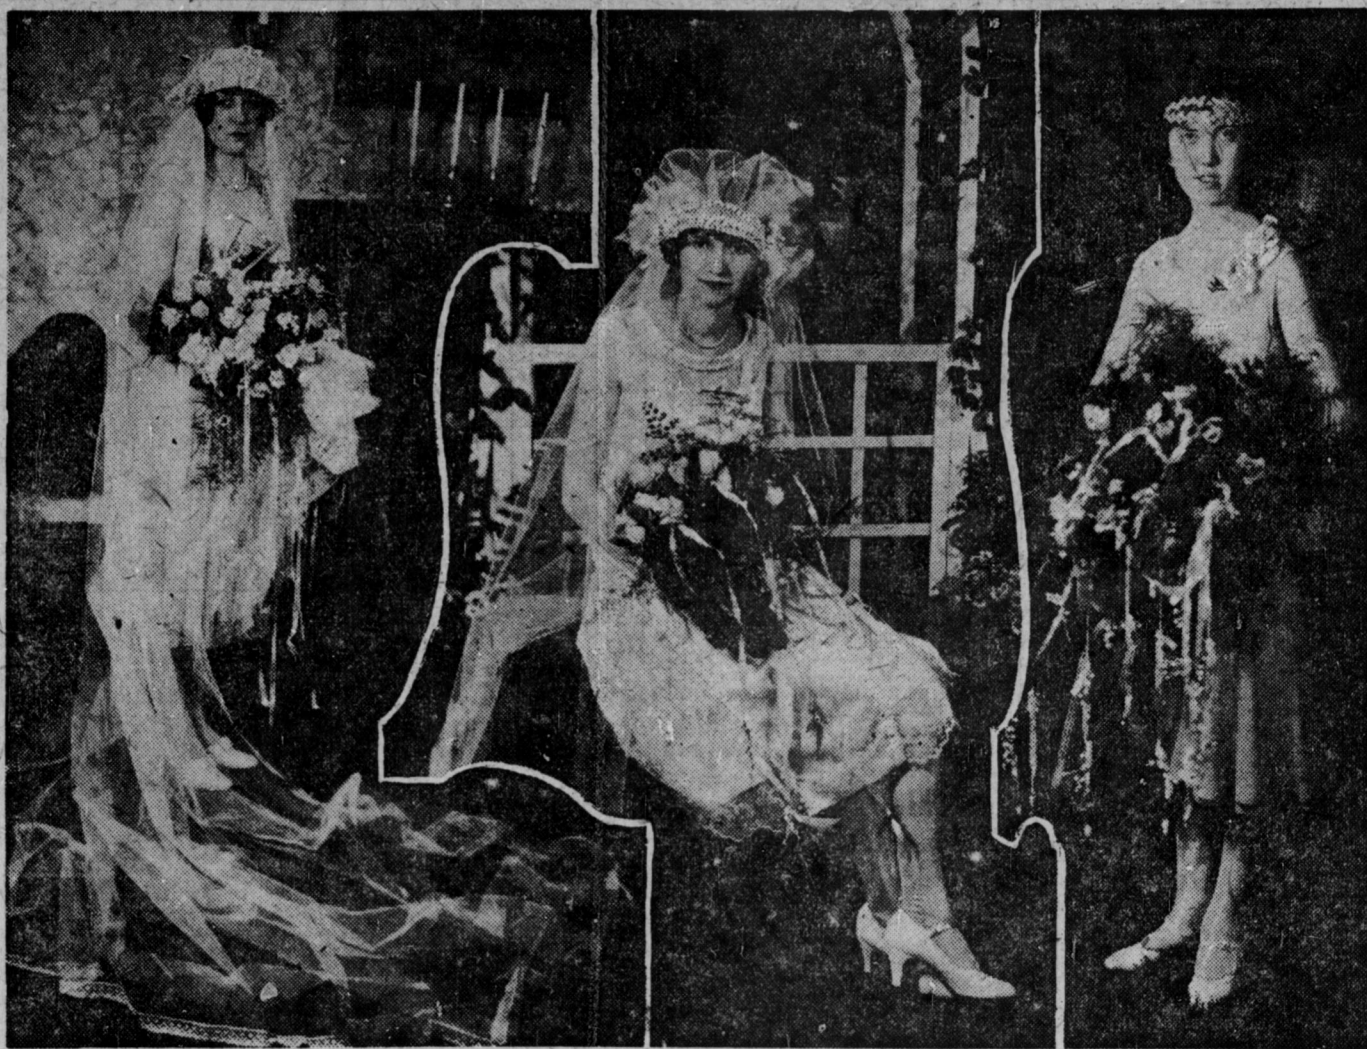

Daughters of Union Veterans will meet in the new G. A. R. League Hall, 612 N. Illinois St., Monday evening for a business and social session. The president, Mrs. E. W. Bilyeu, will preside.

Mrs. Otto Bunge, 1145 Reid Pl., entertained Friday afternoon with a small party for her grandson, John Shinnaman. Guests included Misses Gertrude Johnson, Mary Bauer, Elizabeth Behrderick, Betty Shaw, Sarah Reynolds, Patricia Walsh, Anna Maria Hines and Martha Jean Hoy, and Robert Doughty, Jr., William Arnold, Donald and William Shinnaman.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Elchrodt and sons have arrived from New York and will spend the summer in Indianapolis with Mr. Elchrodt's aunt, Miss Emma L. Clinton, 1443 N. New Jersey St.

Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Bogue, 1712 N. Meridian St., are at home after visiting Mr. and Mrs. William Jenkins Hogan at their summer home at Wallon Lake, Mich.

Y. W. C. A. Notes

The first week of the employed girls' period at Camp Delight has past and the camp now is running in order. During the week many girls have visited camp.

Saturday night, guests are invited to a big party at camp. The orchestra which played for the camp official opening again will furnish music for the evening. All proceeds will be applied in the tennis court fund. Girls who are in camp for the week-end will not be charged for the party. Guests for the evening will pay, girls 25 cents and men 35 cents.

For Sunday morning, the only thing off the program is morning worship at Inspiration Point at 9:45 a. m. A stunt hour will follow dinner. Every one in camp will do or take part in some kind of a stunt. The only ones who will be excused will be the staff and editors of the "Live-Wire," the camp news sheet, which will be read as usual at 5:30 Sunday afternoon.

Sunday evening, Miss Dale Waterbury will give a star talk at the campfire. Work on handicraft will continue after the handcraft for those girls who are spending vacation periods in camp.

The junior swimming club will meet Thursday at 3 p. m. Stunts and races for prizes are being planned.

The health education department will give an entertainment Thursday evening at Ft. Benjamin Harrison.

Any member of the health education department interested in going to Camp Delight for the week-end of July 24-25 please register with Miss Noble before Wednesday noon.

Father Stabs Son, Killed by Police

By United Press
CLEVELAND, Ohio, July 17.—Attempting to escape after stabbing his son, William, 21, to death early today, Jason Galloway, 63, was shot dead by police.

Father and son engaged in an argument over a girl in the kitchen of their home. The father drew a knife, stabbed the son in the throat and neck. Police arrived as the father fled from the house.

Orders by police to halt being unheeded, Sergeant Neilson drew his revolver and fired at Galloway, who fell dead with a bullet through his brain.

Both were honor students last year. By taking the summer course, they will be enabled to complete their high school education sooner. During the last year, the club paid expenses of four girls, the first semester and three the second semester.

DON'T BE RELEGATED TO YOUR MIND ATTIC

New paint! A new lease on life for old furniture! A new beauty, a new usefulness! No longer relegated to the attic, or the "back room," but brought forth all its freshness to grace the living parts of the house.

That's what a lot of us need—new paint. We need to be scraped down, sanded smooth, and our usefulness restored to us through a new perspective, and a better job of painting. We're apt inclined to get chipped or checked, to have our old finish worn woebadly and become unbecomingly through the hardships of life. And occasionally we need to be hauled out of the attic or under the eaves and dusted off and given a new lease on life through new color, new thoughts, new endeavors, and work. Thus we attain a finer re-finish, like old furniture which has outworn its finish but still retains its beauty and simplicity of line.

The magnitude of personal wear weighs us down sometimes unnecessarily. And we drag about our lives, unrefreshed, useless, and self-centered. Like neglected furniture we sit out through the storms of a winter, and when spring and summer come we're still sitting there, warped and ugly, paintless and broken. Let's take ourselves in with interesting new work, and refresh ourselves for new attractiveness and usefulness.

In the Attic

Dear Miss Lee: I have been married before and had had luck. I have had two children, and am not very strong. I keep my house nice and clean, and make a nice garden. I stay at home all the time, and am very affectionate. I love my husband and all the children, and please him, but he does not seem to appreciate it. He will not let me do anything, and the grocery bill or buy me even a pair of hose. All the time I am thinking what his mother and sister give me. We have a Chevrolet touring car, and I want to sit in it all the time, but he won't let me. He drives by himself or takes out the folk and stays a couple of minutes. This hurts when I see them drive away. I want to go with him, but he won't let me. I have a lame foot and have to walk on one side of the car. He has a real road, but now he drives me to work and back. I have no place except where I am. Don't you think I would be better off in the prologue? I am not able to work out, but I guess I will live.

SUSPECT AGENTS OF $1,200 THEFT

Diamond, Clothing Stolen From Home.

A woman and man representing themselves as agents for a local public utility were sought today by police as suspected thieves who obtained $1,200 loot from the home of Mrs. Beulah Dorman, 5255 Guilford Ave., Friday night.

Mrs. Dorman told police she told them she had to leave to keep an appointment. An $800 coat, $100 serge suit and $300 platinum-studded shrine pin, set with diamonds, were missing when she returned.

Thomas Pullen, 20, Negro, 240 W. Vermont St., was charged with burglary and larceny following his capture by Patrolman Richard Fogarty. Fogarty, living nearby, arrested the alleged burglar, said to have obtained $450 from the home of Mrs. Clara James, 534 Olive St.

STUDENT-BANDIT KILLED

Shot by Police After Hold-up of Two Other Students.

By United Press
CHICAGO, July 17.—Bernard Carmichael of Milan, Mo., believed to be a University of Chicago student, was shot and killed Friday night after he and Dexter C. Harrison, 24, Battle Creek, Mich., held up Laverne Lane and George Gray, both university students, in Chicago's exclusive Hyde Park district.

After the hold-up Gray saw a police auto, and, leaping on the running board, directed the officers in the pursuit of the two bandits. Both ran and police fired. Carmichael was killed, but Harrison escaped only to be arrested today at his rooming house. He confessed.

Her Own Way

A STORY OF A GIRL OF TODAY
A CLASH OF WITS

"I got back from my luncheon Mr. Robinson, in the time which was given me for it, according to rules. The rest of the time I have been up stairs with Miss Cleaver."

"Evidently you had not told him that I had been there, Doctor Flint, for he said, 'It is unfortunate that Miss Cleaver has had an epileptic fit.' I told him that she had taken poison and to prove it I handed him the bottle from which about half of the liquid had been taken. As I slipped it into Mr. Robinson's hand he was so terrified when he saw the red skull and cross bones that he dropped it on the floor and turned so faint."

Doctor Flint muttered something under his breath which sounded like "fool."

Then he came close to me again and snapped, "Where is that bottle now, young woman?"

"Hasn't Mr. Robinson got it?" I countered.

"You know very well he hasn't. That's why I asked you for it last night; that's why I am asking you for it now."

"I don't know whether Mr. Robinson has it or not, Doctor Flint," I lied cheerfully. "I haven't seen Mr. Robinson since I saw him at the counter when I handed it to him. I saw him drop it. I saw him turn very pale as he kicked it under the counter out of sight."

"So you know he dropped it?"

"Yes, I know he dropped it, but let me say right here, Doctor, that if I had dropped anything that I felt as important as both of you and he think that bottle marked poison was, I would have picked it up before the store closed. In fact, I would have kicked it up instead of kicking it under the papers."

"Which of course you did, Miss Dean," asserted the Doctor triumphantly. "Well, we want it, pass it over."

"Doctor Flint, I have never experienced the tactics the police use in the third degree, but I believe they are something like those you are using now."

As I spoke, I was sure that Lady Luck was with me, for Mr. Robinson came hurriedly into the room.

"Have you seen the morning papers?" he asked, before he really recognized me.

"Yes," answered the doctor curiously. "I was just trying to get from Miss Dean here the bottle which she picked up from the floor."

"You remember it. You dropped it yourself," I said, turning to the manager of the store.

"Yes, I remember it," said Mr. Robinson.

Doctor Flint again swore under his breath. He would not have had the manager make that admission for anything in the world.

"Yes, I remember it," said Mr. Robinson.
