

NEW GIRL SCOUT CAMP OPENS FOR SUMMER SEASON

Delwood, Gift to Members, Has Thirty-Six Enrolled.

Camp Delwood, the new Girl Scout camp, eight miles northwest of Indianapolis on Big Eagle Creek, opened Monday with thirty-six happy girls present. Miss Dorothy Dell of Indianapolis, by a generous contribution, made the camp possible at this time. It will be open for four periods of seven days each.

Camp Staff
A graduate nurse, a dietitian, a cook, unit leaders and counselors, comprise the staff, and the program includes archery, map making, nature lore, first aid and various outdoor subjects.

The director of the national girl scout, publicity department, Miss Muriel Gray of New York, will visit the camp July 30 and 31. Members of the camp committee are Mrs. Charles Ruch, commissioner; Dr. Herbert Wagner, trustee; Miss Bernice Smith, chairman; R. Walter Jarvis, Mrs. R. Harry Miller, Mrs. Carl Fletcher, Mrs. Charles Cole, Mrs. Harry Jordan, S. E. Perkins III, and Fred Hoke.

Recipes By Readers

NOTE—The Times will pay $1 for each recipe submitted by a reader and printed in this column. One recipe is printed daily, except Friday, when twenty are given. Address Recipe Editor of The Times. Checks will be mailed to winners. Write only one recipe, name, address and date on each sheet.

CHOCOLATE JELLY

Put one pint of water, one ounce of chocolate and a pinch of salt in a sauce pan. Cook, stirring until chocolate is melted, then boil from three to five minutes. Soak two tablespoons of gelatin in a little cold water, until soft and pour the boiling mixture over it. Stir until dissolved, then add one-third cup sugar, and one teaspoon of vanilla. Pour into molds and set aside to harden. Serve with sweetened whipped cream.

Miss Helen Martin and Miss Mary Inez Vermillion of the Purdue chapter; Miss Alice Reed and Miss Katherine Jones of the Indiana chapter are assisting in the arrangements.

Miss Agnes Search who will be married to Oral Bridgeford on July 18, was honor guest at a luncheon, bridge and miscellaneous shower given for her by Miss Ruth Bridgeford and Mrs. J. A. Strack, 525 Eugene St., Sunday afternoon. The gifts were presented to Miss Search in a clothes hamper, decorated in the bridal colors of orchid and green. The house was decorated with garden flowers in Dresden colors. Guests with Miss Search were Mesdames William C. Reed, Bloomington; F. L. Smart, Chicago; E. Bartlett Brooks, Muncie; Constance Search, Mark W. Rhodes, Harry Klein, Earl Swinford, Gladys Powell, Vera Fitzgerald, Frank Kern, Francis Linton Jr., Gerald Watson, Iantha Buck, George T. Misses Ethel Hessong, Fawn Murbarger and Mary Elizabeth Search.

A pretty candle light marriage service took place at the home of Mrs. A. M. Houseman, 206 N. Meridian St., when her daughter, Miss Christine Elizabeth Houseman, became the bride of Roy Donaldson, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Donaldson, Sunday evening. The service was read by the Rev. E. S. Wamsky before the members of the two families and a few intimate friends. Preceding the ceremony, Prof. Harlowe Dean sang "Believe Me If All Those Endearing Young Charms," "I Love You Truly," and "O Promise Me." Mrs. Laura Dean softly played "The Dream of Love" (Liszt) during the ceremony. The house was prettily decorated with flowers in the pastel shades. Charles Hester Houseman, the twin brother of the bride, gave her in marriage. She was lovely in a gown of white tulle, fashioned robe de style, with a skirt of duchess lace. The bodice was s beaded in pearls and her long tulle veil was arranged with a cap of duchess lace. She carried a shower bouquet of pink roses and lilacs of the valley. Mr. and Mrs. Donaldson left immediately on a wedding trip through the East and in Canada. Mrs. Donaldson traveled in a light blue suit, tweed coat, trimmed in badger, and small hat to match. The at-home announcement will be made after Aug. 5.

Mrs. Frank C. Groninger, 3215 N. New Jersey St., has returned home, after a five weeks' visit in Boston, Cambridge and Rockport, Mass., and Cleveland, Ohio. The WOMAN'S DAY
by Allene Summer

Daughter Orates

"My Mother From a Child's Viewpoint" was the subject given 12-year-old Ellen Elizabeth Benson, world's brightest child, on which to speak before a metropolitan Business and Professional Women's Club. A bulky idea, this. If more children were encouraged to "rise right up in meetin' and tell what they think of their parents, that profession might be greatly improved. As is, children have never been trained to endure in silence, and grow bitter and rebellious inside at injustices of parents.

More on Summer Reading

Today I promised a list of "meatier" summer books than those given yesterday—the books you "ought to read," the books that will improve your mind, give your club conversational food—well—

Try "Why We Behave Like Human Beings," by Dorsey; "New Decalog of Science," by Wiggin; "Our Times," by Mark Sullivan; "The Mauve Decade," by Thomas Beer; "Microbe Hunters," by Paul de Kruif; "The Voyage of the Arcturion," by Beebe; "Some Washington Ladies," by Meade Minnegerode; Carl Sandburg's "The Prairie Years"; "Memories," by Dame Melba; "Book on Marriage," by Count Kreyserling.

The Scarf's the Thing

It all depends on how the scarf is tied this year. The same old scarf of yesterday which flew airily 'neath the coat, may become a modish thing of beauty if tied into a stock effect, a four-in-hand or a soft and jaunty bow at the side. Even the old Deauville scarf manner of wearing it suggestively a la bandanna is seen on sport frocks.

Wages and Papas

Papa should be given a higher wage than the man without children, according to Prof. Paul H. Douglas of the University of Chicago. He believes that married men with children are underpaid today, and that bachelors and married men without children are being overpaid. This would mean a wage slash for most workers, as only 22 per cent of them are workers with children. Make your own comment.

I would opine that this would work for the identification of parenthood only and the ignoring of human functions which contribute fully as much more to the movement of the race. Count up our bachelor public servants who, penalized for lack of children by low incomes, would have been deprived the opportunity of education and leisure permitting them to perfect their art or business and thus contribute to the world. A kid or so is nice, but so is a great book or painting or law.

Hair Bleach

Many a brunette has startled her friends who said goodnight to her, by saying goodmorning to them as a gorgeous red-gold blonde. The answer is "peroxide bleach." One can always be spotted. Take it two ways. But a combination of equal quantity of peroxide and ammonia can bleach out superfluous hair, making it almost unnoticeable.

Her Boy

"My boy is handy with tools, and his father and I think that if we let him learn right he might do good things along designing lines. Do you know of any book told in child's language that would interest him in furniture making?"
I do "Carpentry for Beginners," by Adams; "Makers of Many Things," by Tappan; "When Mother Lets Us Carpenter," by Adams.

Light Menus

For a table party menu, any of these combinations work as well as the w. k. ham and eggs or pork and beans: Tomato rabbit, saltines.

pickles, coffee; baked beans, Boston brown bread, olives, cheese, crackers, coffee; shrimp salad, saltines, salted nuts, coffee; creamed chicken in patty shells, potato chips, sweet pickles, coffee.

Girl, 10, Conducts Revival

Betty Weakland, 10, daughter of the Rev. J. Roy Weakland of Elmira, N. Y., is in Washington, D. C., now conducting revival services. In the last three years she has preached in seventeen States and has made a record of 5,000 converts. She began preaching in California. "I like it," she says, but she also likes dolls and games and little girl storybooks.

The Summer Baby

Every baby, say the infant savants, should have from 20 to 22 hours' sleep a day its first month of life, and at least 16 hours until it is a year old. A clothes basket with blankets and cotton pad makes a good baby's bed.

Her Own Way

A STORY OF A GIRL OF TODAY

AN EPITAPH

By this time I realized that I was doing a dishonorable thing, for no matter what any one else did, I had no right to listen to what Dr. Flint and Mr. Robinson would consider a private conversation.

I went up to the manager's office and was ushered into the room behind it, which belonged personally to Mr. Robinson. Piled up on the desk were the first editions of the afternoon papers. I picked up the one on top and sat down to read. There was nothing on the first page about Miss Cleaver, and only a small story with a no-column headline on the second. It read: "Girl Commits Suicide." The story gave the mere facts of the tragedy.

Instinctively I thought: "This is the last of her. Here she lies."

The worm at her breast and a cloud on her eyes.

Never again to ask for bread.

Never again via a stone instead.

This is the last of her. Here she lies.

The worm at her breast and the cloud on her eyes.

Plainly I could read this epitaph of Martha Cleaver between the lines. I looked up and saw my face in the mirror opposite and shuddered at the awfulness of her story. I realized that, except "by the grace of God," it might have been me.

I saw Martha Cleaver as she was fifteen years before, staring out just as I was today, young, ambitious, wanting to move the world in her own way, blessed with faith in herself.

I saw John Robinson fifteen years younger than he was today, and knew at that time he could easily have been the ideal of any girl.

He was, of course, very handsome—and perhaps he was in love with her, at least he thought he was, and she was in love with him.

Naturally, he advanced her in the store, or rather he gave her a chance, for which she was made to pay with her soul.

And having brains as well as beauty she worked late to make good—not for the money in it, but to make the man understand that she was worthy.

She did make good, but she incurred the jealousy of other women who with only one-tenth of her talents thought they could do her work better than she herself was doing it.

Each year the work became harder and harder as more responsibility was put upon her. More and more she had to devote time to her business, less and less she saw of the man she loved.

THE GIRLS ARE OUT FISHING ONCE AGAIN

Looks like we shall have to have a "Complete Anglers' Club" around these parts with so many girls writing in to find out how to "hook" some certain, unsuspecting male.

And poor Martha will have to look up the best authorities on what "rod" and "line" to use, and which kind of "bait" is the most effective on the various varieties of "poor fish." And our textbook will probably be full of illustrations captioned with "What Is Wrong With This Picture?" Ouch! We're in for it!

Well, there are so many ways to kill a dog, as the old saying goes, that it's hard to know where to begin. Some have been won with laughter, and gaudy, and charm. And some have been egotistically swayed off their feet when a woman makes a fool of herself weeping for him! Depends on the man's ego, and how elastic it is. The law of opposites holds true pretty much. If he's sober, and serious, and given to deep philosophy, the girl he's quite likely to be attracted to will be as bright and happy as sunshine, but able to "understand" him! If he's gay and frivolous himself, he's liable to be intrigued by little Miss Sober-Sides who keeps him hankering after her innermost thoughts. But there isn't any bona fide, gilt edge, absolutely guaranteed-or-your-money-back method that can be used on all and sundry? You have to work out a different system with every single one of 'em.
