ENTERTAINMENTS
WEDDINGS
RETORTALS

One of the most beautiful weddings of the summer season was that of Miss Marianne Reid, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jackson Knox Landers, 335 N. Meridian St., and Robert Scott Wild, which took place Tuesday evening at the Tabernacle Presbyterian Church.

The ceremony was read by the Rev. J. Ambrose Dunkel before an altar of palms and ferns, banked at the sides with groups of boxwood trees and softly lighted with seven branch candelabra. Tall baskets of lilies and flowers in pastel shades, were intermingled with the background of greenery and clusters of lilies and delphinium marked the pews of the center aisle, along which ran streamers of white satin ribbon.

As the guests were assembling, Paul Matthews, organist, played a group of bridal airs and as the bride party entered the church, the wedding march from "Lohengrin." Miss Louise Robison of Wichita, Kan., was maid of honor; Miss Elizabeth Sifers, Iola, Kan.; Miss Mary Esther Hovey, Kansas City, Mo.; Miss Elizabeth Sanborn and Miss Marjorie Lewis were the bridesmaids. Little Margaret Winslow was flower girl and scattered pink rose petals before the bride. Irving Faure was best man and the ushers were Francis Brown, Harry S. Shepard, Fisk Landers, Neil Campbell, William Flores and Cassius Curtis of Noblesville.

The bridesmaids' gowns were fashioned alike, with tight basque waists and full skirts, with scalloped hem falling over bands of lace. A mulline cape fell the length of the skirts, held at the necks with bows of silver ribbons. They wore silver slippers and hose to match the gowns.

Miss Hovey was in powder blue and carried Columbia roses, ageratum and delphinium, tied with blue ribbons. Gowned in peach color and carrying butterfly roses, statice and larkspur, tied with peach ribbons, Miss Elizabeth Sanborn entered, followed by Miss Sifers in blue. Miss Lewis was in peach and Miss Robison, maid of honor, was in green tulle and carried Amelias Guide roses, snapdragons and larkspur, tied with sea green tulle.

The bride, entering on the arm of her cousin, George S. Hovey of Kansas City, Mo., wore white tulle, trimmed with insets of rose point lace and beaded with pearls. The gown was in straight lines, with an underskirt of rose point lace, peeping from beneath bands of tulle.

Her long tulle veil was fashioned in cap shape, caught with clusters of orange blossoms and touches of seed pearls. Her shawl bouquet was of lilies and orchids, and she carried a family heirloom, an exquisite point lace handkerchief. A reception at the Indianapolis Country Club followed the wedding.

hygienic problem now solved a new and different way—true protection. Dispose of it as easily as tissue.

THE old-time "sanitary pad" is fast becoming a rarity. Millions are discarding it as a needless hazard.

"KOTEX," a new and remarkable way, is now used by 8 in 10 better class women.

Discards as easily as a piece of tissue. No laundry. No embarrassment.

It's five times as absorbent as ordinary cotton pads!

You dine, dance, motor for hours in sheerest frocks without a second's doubt or fear.

It deodorizes, too. And thus stops ALL danger of offending.

You ask for it at any drug or department store, without hesitancy, simply by saying "KOTEX."

Do as millions are doing. End old, insecure ways. Enjoy life every day. Package of twelve costs only a few cents.

Guest in Columbus, Ohio

Miss Ann Moorehead

A recent house guest of Miss Ann Moorehead, 2029 Central Ave., was Miss Mary Ann Miller, of Columbus, Ohio, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Miller. Miss Moorehead accompanied Miss Miller home and will spend some time in Columbus. Miss Moorehead, known for her activities in connection with Gamma chapter of the Indianapolis Kappa Alpha Theta, will be honor guest at several social affairs while in Columbus.

Mr. and Mrs. Wild left immediately on a wedding trip and will be at home after Sept. 30 at 25 E. Thirty-Second St.

A beautiful church wedding took place this morning when Miss Helen V. Sullivan, daughter of Mrs. Helen Sullivan, 1635 Pleasant St., was married to George F. Rooker at St. Patrick's Church, the Rev. John O'Connell officiating.

The altar and chancel were decorated with palms, ferns and pink gladioli, studded with tall cathedral tapers. Preceding the ceremony Miss Helen Colbert, organist, played bridal airs and Miss Julia Sullivan, sister of the bride, sang "Ave Maria."

Another sister of the bride, Miss Bess Sullivan, was maid of honor and was gowned in orchid georgette. She wore a large picture hat of orchid, trimmed in gold. Miss Margaret Rooker, sister of the bridegroom, was in green georgette over satin and wore a picture hat of black. Her bouquet was of Killarney roses. Miss Ann McGinley, the other attendant, was in yellow georgette, wore a picture hat faced with yellow and carried yellow roses. Little Helen Estelle Forestal, niece of the bride, and Margery Catherine Murray were the flower girls.

A wedding breakfast at the home of the bride's mother followed the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Rooker left on a wedding trip. The at-home announcement will be made later.

The bridal party of Miss Margaret Alice Wolfard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Pliny Wolfard, 361 Bußweg Ave., and Donald F. La Fuzze, who will be married this evening at the Irvington Presbyterian Church, was entertained Tuesday evening at the Columbia Club. The guests included Miss Ella May Stockton, Mary Louise Mann, Sarah Rodecker and Messrs. Harold La Fuzze, Carl Vandiver and Coburn Scholls.

Miss Mary Louise Mann, entertained at the Spink Arms, Tuesday afternoon for Miss Wolfard and appointments were in yellow and white. The guests included Messrs. Dale Hodges, James Carpenter, William Schumacher and Miss Pauline Holmes.

Miss Margaret Caroline Sutter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John T. Sutter, 301 N. State Ave., and Francis Lloyd O'Brien were married at the home of the bride's parents, Tuesday evening. The living room was a bower of palms, ferns and other greenery and before an improved altar the Rev. William F. Keefe performed the ceremony.

Miss Edna Phinney, harpist played a group of bridal selections as the guests were assembling and softly sang "Ave Maria" immediately preceding the ceremony. Miss Ouida Sutter, sister of the bride, was her only attendant and was gowned in pink georgette. She carried an arm bouquet of butterfly roses.

The bride was dressed in white georgette over white silk, with seed pearl trimmings from her mother's wedding gown. She wore a long tulle veil, caught with orange blossoms and lilies of the valley.

A reception followed the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. O'Brien left on a motor trip and will be at home after Aug. 20, at 739 Bancroft St.

Miss Avonell Thayer, 3668 Birchwood Ave., was hostess Tuesday evening for a bridge party and miscellaneous shower given in honor of Miss Lorene Whitman, who will be married to Allan K. Ingalls of Chicago on Sept. 15.

The house was decorated with garden flowers in varied colors and the tables were lighted with blue tapers in crystal holders. The bridal colors of yellow and blue were carried out

By Allene Sumner

PARIS—"Are the French women so beautifully dressed as we have always heard?" So I am asked in my morning mail.

This public answer is respectfully submitted.

It all depends. Depends on where you sit and where you look. On the downtown streets, along the lovely Champs Elysees, at the races, strolling down the Rue de la Paix, one sees the most gorgeous feminine things the world can hold—slim, vivacious things in gracefully short skirts, high heels on shoes of reptile, brocade, or metal cloth, and earrings and necklets and anklets of jade and gold tinkling in the breeze.

Never in one of these fashion plates without her boutonniere of a fresh flower upon her left shoulder. The flower is wound in gold or silver foil. It is generally a fragile petal, sometimes a cluster of nasturtiums, gay poppies or a yellow or pink rose.

In the brilliant boxes of the opera or the Folies Bergere one again sees gleaming jewels and white shoulders wrapped in ermine-trimmed brocade mantles, worth a fortune.

But the French woman, as one sees her in the masses, cannot hold a candle to the American girl and woman in general.

The proverbial thrift of France garbs her womanhood in cotton hose while their bank books grow fat and juicy.

Cotton hose are much more commonly seen than silk on trains and on those streets which are not the recognized fashionable.

But low heels, never. No matter how cheap the hose, high-heeled shoes are with them—generally. But one sees, too, any number of women slouching about in plain bedroom slippers of blue and red felt, alternating with the high heels which torture them.

In the cathedrals a modish frock or coat or a gay hat is a rarity. Clothes of black in the form of old, shabby, shiny out of date suits blacken the cloisters.

Black is the French woman's color—that of the woman of fashion and of the thrifty woman who puts her husband's money in the bank.

Mourning is worn at the slightest excuse—for husband's third cousin's niece, for dog or bird, for step-niece and grandmother's sister-in-law thrice removed.

The thrifty French woman goes to market. One day we arose with the sun to visit a sunrise market. Here came hundreds of women to get the largest, freshest berries; the plumpest American housewives might be interested in the prices. Strawberries as big as plums or small peaches, sold for about 5 cents a quart.

LEMONADE SYRUP
For economical lemonade make the following syrup when lemons are cheap: Grate the thin yellow rind of one dozen lemons over six pounds of granulated sugar. Add two quarts of water and stir over the fire until the sugar is dissolved. Boil until it thickens, skimming as fast as the scum rises. Add the juice of twelve lemons and simmer fifteen minutes longer. Bottle and cork tightly. Keep in a cool place. Two tablespoons of this will make a delicious glass of lemonade.

Her Own Way

A STORY OF A GIRL OF TODAY

JOAN EXPLAINS

Jerry was instantly all sympathy when he heard Joan speak of her brother.

"We must certainly bring him out of his morbid temperament," he said. "Surely, Mr. Robinson might have done something."

"That is the one thing," said Joan. "that I have always held against Dad." He pays no attention whatever to John. I think he has not seen him since my mother died. Consequently he doesn't know what a wonderful chap he is physically even with his shorter leg and crippled arm. The rest of his body has been trained until he has the broad shoulders and slender waist of a prize fighter. He has had some wonderful contraption made by which he can walk about without showing his limp. And he can ride a horse like a cowboy and operate a specially made motor perfectly.

"Yet he will go nowhere. He seems to think that his infirmities make him a being apart."

"Much of this is due to my mother, who would have contracted it if she had lived. But you see she died when he was 3 years old and naturally he had been backward up to that time. Right after her death he was sent to the camp and from then on he has grown into one of the finest young men that I have ever known."

"He is studying anthropology and is going to South Africa immediately after this will business is settled, for he, of course, comes into his share of the estate at the same time that I do."

"Do not think, Judy," said Joan turning to me, "that I have been selfish with my brother. Many times I have offered to stay with him up there. But his tutors told me that he did not seem himself even with me, and I know he loves me better than anyone on earth. Ever since I have been able to reason I have tried to make John come out into the world and live with me. His isolation has been a constant grief to me."

"Some years ago when he was 11, however, a man came up to camp direct from Yale, where he had been offered a position as professor of anthropology. This man came up to spend his vacation with one of John's teachers, who was his brother. He and my brother immediately struck up a great friendship. He has stayed right there in camp ever since, and it has been a dream of my brother that as soon as he came into his fortune he was going to finance an expedition into Africa. There, far from civilization, I hope he will shed his sensitive obsession about his lameness. He has made all preparations for this; so you see, Mr. Hathaway, much is hanging on the speedy settlement of our property."

LET WOMEN CREATE A NEW SINGLE STANDARD

Martha Lee Says

"A little child shall lead them" could be adequately amended to be "a good woman could lead them." For a good woman is the greatest single influence for good in the world.

The single standard is no more than right—but a single standard, that is "sans peur et sans reproche." And it is the girls who are capable of holding the youth of the country to the middle of the straight and narrow road that leads to more lasting joy and happiness than the wide and pit-filled highway. It is the girls who can correct this so-called "crime wave" that is sweeping the youth of our country off their feet. A girl holds the welfare of a whole nation in the hollow of her hand; as it were. A great trust! The world depends on her to hold herself, her husband, and her children to the high ideals of living; the reverence for the Almighty and the spirit of brotherhood. For by these things a nation prospers and a race succeeds. It has been said that a good woman is the architect of honor and decency. Crass stupidity and foolish leniency on the part of parents are as much to blame for the crime wave as anything else. And of the two parents the mother is most responsible. From home law-breaking to community law-breaking is but a short step. Loving discipline could correct the one, but it takes a court and judge and prison to correct the other—if ever.

For a Good Girl

Miss Lee: I am a girl of 17 years of age, but passing for 19. I work in a bakery twelve to eighteen hours every night. At work I have the men tell of their dates with wild women, drinking parties and the like. I do not believe in this way of doing things. I believe it is mostly her own fault for not giving them proper training in childhood. Personally I do not drink, smoke, chew or gamble. I only make $28 a week, but I try hard for my mother's things she wants. My mother, yet she is thought more of than I am, but I say nothing. I met with a girl several years ago. She would not give in to a kiss the first night I was with her and I have been going steady since the first fellow to kiss her. She has changed me from a wild boy to a man. I feel that I owe a lot to her. JOHN SNEY.

Yes, Johnny. My whole editorial is based on those last few lines of yours. A good girl is the greatest influence for good to a young man that there is. What kind of father do you suppose those men of whom you tell will make? What kind of children do you suppose these mothers will turn loose upon the world? The millennium is within the hands of parents. I hope this girl or some other will always keep your love and reverence and your ideals high.

Lemon Juice

Whitens Skin

The only harmless way to bleach the skin white is to mix the juice of two lemons with three ounces of Orchard White, which any druggist will supply for a few cents. Shake well in a bottle, and you have a whole quart of the most wonderful skin whitener, softener and beautifier.

Massage this sweetly fragrant lemon bleach into the face, neck, arms and hands. It can not irritate. Famous stage beauties use it to bring that clear, youthful skin and rosy-white complexion; also as a freckle, sunburn and tan bleach. You must mix this remarkable lotion yourself. It can not be bought ready to use, because it acts best immediately after it is prepared.—Advertisement.
