Bootleggers stole the car of Charles Myers, 146 S. Harlan St., fought hi-jackers in it and returned it early today, police believe.

Mrs. Myers reported the machine, a new touring car, stolen and police, investigating, found it abandoned a half block from the Myers home. It had been driven thirty-nine miles and there was a bullet hole in the glass in a rear door. A neighbor reported seeing a man, who resembles a bootlegger known to police, standing by the car at 3 a. m.

OLD LANDMARK BURNS

Erie & Wabash Canal Freight Station Destroyed.

By United Press

LOGANSPORT, Ind., Aug. 12.—Fire of unknown origin early today destroyed the old Erie & Wabash canal freight storage station here, with a loss estimated at $15,000. The building, a famous old landmark, was occupied by a feed store.

"My first touch of pain appeared when I was on a hunting trip last March, a year ago," said Mr. Barlow. "My right hand began to hurt, and before I could get home my fingers were so swollen and cramped I couldn't close my hand. The pain was terrible—just felt like my hand was in a vice. I got medical attention, and tried various remedies, but nothing would ease up that awful pain. Never a day passed that I wasn't in misery. I lost the use of my right hand completely, and finally a knot raised on my wrist as large as a hen's egg. I was certainly worried, and for over a year I was victim to this suffering and discomfort."

"I read the papers and became interested in the way so many Indianapolis people were endorsing Konjola. I started taking this medicine myself and it was the one and only step I ever took that actually ended that pain and misery. I can use my hand just as well as anybody now, and the knot has gone from my wrist. Konjola has done what a great many other things failed to do for me, and I feel that a medicine which will give such wonderful relief is worthy of praises. It is a pleasure to endorse this Konjola for the wonderful help it has been to me, because I know what help will help others."

The Konjola Man is at Hook's Drug Store, Pennsylvania and Market Streets, Indianapolis, where he is daily meeting the public and introducing and explaining the merits of this remedy.

Konjola is also for sale by every Hook Drug Store in this city, and by all druggists in outside towns.

AGED ARCHBISHOPS FACES SEDITION TRIAL IN MEXICO

Examine Statement Made by Mora Del Rio to N. Y. World.

By United Press

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 12.—Archbishop Mora Del Rio, the aged leader of Catholicism in Mexico, may be summoned before the legal authorities on a charge of sedition in violating a clause of the new religious laws.

Secretary of the Interior Alberto Tejeda has ordered the attorney general to examine a recent statement given by the archbishop to the New York World to determine whether the prelate's expressed sentiments violated the prohibition against members of the clergy criticising acts of the government or the laws of Mexico. If the attorney general finds the utterances to have been seditious, the ordinary procedure would be to summon the archbishop for a preliminary hearing.

Archbishop Mora Del Rio is a thin, white-haired little man in his late seventies. Upon him has fallen the burden of directing the church's fight against laws which the government avows to have been designed to break the alleged political power of the church in Mexico.

Priests Executed

Meanwhile reports of new isolated disturbances are being revealed here. Press dispatches state that the forces of General Mange in the state of Michoacan executed five priests at the Hacienda la Guava Sunday, after they had been charged with inciting insurrection and court-martialed.

Conflicts, however, are confined for the most part to states immediately surrounding the states of Mexico, Michoacan and Jalisco. A United Press special correspondent en route from Mexico City to Guatemala found the small towns of southern Vera Cruz and the states of Tabasco and Chiapas little interested in the controversy, although some effects of the boycott were noted in the larger towns.

New Fuel Added

New fuel has been added to the controversy, however, by the announced plan of the Mexican government to take over church properties held in the names of individuals as well as by churches themselves. On the ground that the clergy is not permitted to possess property.

The newspaper Graphic estimates that the total value of church properties held on Haciendas and ranches and including chapels on private properties and mines, is about $600,000,000. The campaign will touch all parts of the republic.

Many priests are wealthy men, having entered the clergy after inheriting fortunes. The $60,000,000 estate of Monsignor Gilow, former archbishop of Oaxaca, who died a year ago, probably will be affected. He inherited his wealth from an English family. Archbishop Montes De Oca, who died in New York, left an estate valued at $40,000,000, including mines, haciendas and other properties, which he inherited from his family. The orders effecting the plans for nationalization were being prepared today by the secretary of the interior.

"I personally know that the agricultural schedule was submitted to the heads of the various agricultural organizations in Washington and endorsed by them as entirely satisfactory, and but for those sections agriculture would be in a far more deplorable position today than it is."

WOMAN ROUTS BURGLAR

Police Hunt Prowler Reported at Residence Window.

Screams of Mrs. Lawrence Giltner, 224 S. Harris St., routed a prowler near her home Wednesday night, she told police.

Police searched the neighborhood, but were unable to find the man. She said she saw a hand at her bedroom window and shouted. A man has been seen in the neighborhood several nights, she said.

"The farmer does not need more money. He does not need to be placed in a position where he can borrow more cash. What he needs is a higher price for what he produces, and he cannot obtain this by largely decreasing the purchasing power of those who make his market while at the same time he floods the market with cheap agricultural products from all the countries of the world."

"And how is that task to be accomplished? We propose to secure a greater degree of stability in the price levels of corn, wheat, hogs and cotton."

Care for Surplus

"Notwithstanding all that has been done for the farmer in the way of legislation, there is one thing that must needs be done, and that is to make arrangement by legislation to take care of his surplus products, for any solution of the farm problem that does not take into consideration the disposition of the surplus must of necessity fall far short of the mark."

Belittling the policy of "tariff for revenue alone," Watson continued: "I am one protectionist who believes that the wheat tariff, for example, was imposed for the express purpose of enabling the farmer to obtain a higher price for his product than that obtained by his foreign competitor in wheat production, the price to equalize his production costs and those of his competitor abroad. The very object of the tariff is to give the American producer an increased price over his foreign competitor."

"That was the aim of the McNary bill, for it simply supplemented the tariff making it effective wherein, because of surplus crops, it would ineffective."
