MITES TUESDAY FOR LEADING EDUCATOR

Dr. Charles W. Eliot, Long Head of Harvard, Dies at Age of 92.

By United Press
NORTHEAST HARBOR, Me., Aug. 23.—Charles W. Eliot, for sixty years a leader in American educational affairs, is dead at the age of 92.

For forty years he was president of Harvard University and during that time exercised world-wide influence as an educator; saw the growth of Harvard to the greatest position in education which it had ever attained; and through his writings, his lectures and his part in public affairs became one of the most influential men in the country not holding public office.

In the literary world he became known to countless thousands through his selection of the famous "five foot book shelf" which, he said, contained books the reading of which would give any man a solid educational foundation.

Politically Dr. Eliot became a staunch supporter of the League of Nations and started Massachusetts in 1922 when he opposed the election of Senator Henry Cabot Lodge because of his attacks upon the league. He was a follower of Woodrow Wilson.

Worked at His Desk
Until his ninetieth year he worked every day at his desk.

Death came to him late Sunday at the home he had occupied here each summer for more than forty years. Since early summer his health had been such as to cause anxiety.

Funeral services for Dr. Eliot will be held here Tuesday at the Union Church of Northeast Harbor. The body will be sent to Harvard University, where on Wednesday additional services will be held. He will be buried at Cambridge in Mt. Auburn Cemetery.

At the time of assuming the presidency of Harvard in his 38th year, Mr. Eliot was the youngest president Harvard has ever had. When he relinquished the office to A. Lawrence Lowell, in 1909, he had been president for a longer time than his five immediate predecessors combined.

Charles William Eliot was born in Boston, March 20, 1834, the son of Samuel Utkin and Mary Lyman Eliot. He was graduated from Harvard in 1853, ranking among the first in his class.

Was Tutor
After graduating, Eliot tutored Harvard students in mathematics, and for five years was a graduate student in chemistry under Prof. Josiah P. Cook. Later he became assistant professor of mathematics and chemistry in the Lawrence Scientific School, which was then part of the university.

Taking his place at the head of Harvard University, he threw aside ancient traditions of education. He instituted so many reforms, Oliver Wendell Holmes said of him: "He is turning the university over like a flipjack."

This was the tribute paid to Demarchus C. Brown, 69, State librarian, who died Sunday, by Dr. Elmer B. Bryan, president Ohio University today, while speaking before the Marion County Teachers' Institute.

He was responsible for the introduction of the lecture system in place of recitations and favored written tests instead of oral examinations.

He was offered by President Taft the post of ambassador to Great Britain to succeed Whitelaw Reid. He declined because he wanted to spend "the evening of life in the serenity that is obtained only through freedom from responsibility."

Dr. Eliot's son, Samuel, is the only survivor in the immediate family. Another son, Charles W. Eliot, Jr., died several years ago. Eliot leaves eleven grandchildren.

In the Days of Our Forefathers

When America was young, the wise pioneer women learned to gather, in woods and fields, the remedies the Indians used. From the rafters of colonial houses hung great bunches of dried roots and herbs. From these, in times of sickness, the busy mother brewed remedies for her family.

From roots and herbs, Lydia E. Pinkham, descendant of these sturdy pioneers, made her Vegetable Compound. For more than half a century this dependable medicine has been taken by women with very satisfactory results. If it has helped other women, why shouldn't it help you?—Advertisement.

DAWES HAS ONE HOBBY

Never Plays Violin; Didn't Invent Underslung Pipe.

By United Press
WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—Charles G. Dawes, notwithstanding all that has been written about his pipe, his fiddle, and his musical compositions, has only one hobby, the reading of history.

The Vice President of the United States declares that he never plays the violin, vows that he didn't invent his famous underslung pipe, and asserts that he does not make a practice of composing music—although he admits that he once did write a musical composition.

For exercise the Vice President plays golf, but he characterizes his feats on the greens as "just walking around with a golf club in my hand."

Piles Disappear Without Salves

Thousands who have piles have not learned that quick and permanent relief can only be accomplished with internal medicine. No amount of treatment with ointments and suppositories will remove the cause.

Bad circulation causes piles. There is a complete stagnation of blood in the lower bowel and a weakening of the parts. Dr. J. S. Leonhardt was first to find the remedy and called his prescription HEM-ROID. Dr. Leonhardt tried it in 1,000 cases with the marvelous record of success in 98 per cent and then decided it should be sold by druggists everywhere under a rigid money-back guarantee.

Don't waste any more time with outside applications. A package of HEM-ROID from Hock's today. It has given safe and lasting relief to thousands and will do the same for you.—Advertisement.
