by law, set the figure at $50,000 because of what was termed "side track footage." Blocked for the moment the Chamber of Commerce again offered their services and the company agreed to bid $150,000, which price purchased the property.

Legal Steps Met

Every possible legal requirement having been met and a check to bind the purchase tendered, the county commissioners refused to close the transaction until a second-ary contract by which the county could use the sidetrack was signed. This sidetrack comes in on the south of the plot of ground purchased and is a part of the old Big Four route. It is impossible, on account of streets, to put a switch into the property purchased from any other point. Desiring to enclose their property in the spring of 1924 the Fairbanks concern secured bids on fencing, and following custom, asked the county

FINDS RELIEF IN KONJOLA AFTER 2 YEARS SUFFERING

Had Rheumatism and Stomach Trouble; Local Man Strongly Indorses New Medicine.

"A few weeks ago, when I began taking Konjola, was the first time in two years that I could safely say I didn't have any pains, and since then my health kept improving every day until I can positively admit that Konjola is the only thing that finally ended my suffering." This amazing statement was made just a few days ago by Mr. Uriah Holden, 1423 Southeastern Avenue, Indianapolis, in a report given to the Konjola Man at Hook's drug store, Pennsylvania and Market Streets, this city, where he is explaining this remarkable new medical product to crowds of people daily.

"In the early part of 1924 I had an accident," continued Mr. Holden, "wrenched my left limb, and was laid up 4 months. This seemed to leave me with a case of rheumatism that was so stubborn no medicine or treatment would do any good. My shoulders and arms got stiff, and the joints of my knees ached and pained so that I was in agony every time I took a step. I just had to drag myself along—finally giving up my work, and then stomach trouble developed. The smallest bit of food would make me swell up until I would think I was going to burst. I always felt like I had a four-pound rock in my stomach, and my throat felt like it was burned with lye. Gas centered around my heart, and lots of times I could hardly catch my breath for several minutes."

"That was my condition when I got my first bottle of Konjola. I've taken 4 bottles now, and any one of my friends will tell you what a change it has made in my health. My shoulders and arms are not stiff and achy any more, and my legs are relieved of all the pain and misery so that I can walk without limping, and all the swelling and soreness has disappeared. My stomach is in wonderful condition, and it's a pleasure to eat now. I never become bloated up with the heavy feeling in my stomach, by digestion is good, and the belching spells are eliminated. I don't become short of breath or have the burning feeling around my heart."

"As I said before, I am actually out of misery for the first time in 2 years, and all the credit goes to Konjola, which I know is the great medicine I ever had experience with."

The Konjola Man is at Hook's drug store, Pennsylvania and Market Streets, Indianapolis, where he is daily meeting the local public and introducing and explaining the merits of this remedy.

Konjola is sold by every Hook drug store in Indianapolis, and by other druggists in the nearby towns. Advertisement.

commissioners owning land adjoining to pay for a part of the fence on the dividing line. A survey was ordered by the commissioners, who found a shed belonging to the county was overlapping the line by eight feet. The commissioners asked the county council to appropriate enough money to move the shed and pay for the county's part of the fence.

Councilmen Blocks Deal

Ofis Dodson, junior member of the Coffin-Dodson combination and the Coffin-Dodson boss, and Cassius L. Hogle, new county commissioner and promulgator of the Hogle voting booth purchase, the Hogle bridge across relative's property, the Tibbs Ave. high bid paving deal, the purchase of trucks at a higher price than paid elsewhere and sundry other deals, were members of the county council. They charged Leo K. Fesler, then county auditor and secretary of the council by law, with changing records of the sale. This in spite of the fact that legal notices, containing full description of the land had been published in the required newspapers.

No fence was erected. "Why build a fence when your ownership is questioned?" queried the Fairbanks, Morse & Co., officials. In December, 1924, Leo K. Fesler was indicted for changing a public record.

Ruling Due Soon

There is now pending before Special Judge Fred C. Gause, a motion to quash the indictment, which has not been ruled on. It is expected that Judge Gause will rule on whether the council should be heard on the motion within the next week or ten days.

Not satisfied with the indictment of Fesler as a bar to the erection of a new plant that would materially increase Indianapolis' revenue not only from a pay roll but a tax assessment standpoint, Hogle, Dodson, and followers on the county council ordered Russell Ryan, then county attorney, to bring suit on the title. Such a suit, even if won, would mean that Marion County and the city of Indianapolis would repay the purchasers their $450,000 with interest and the taxes and have the white elephant on their hands again. Lew Shank, when mayor, thought it might make a good mule barn.

Ryan Stands Pat

Ryan refused to bring the suit after going into all phases of the matter. It was found that the county council had no right to sue in the name of the county. The county commissioners refused to sue because they felt the county had made a good bargain and that the community would be benefited.

In January, 1926, Hogle became a member of the board of county commissioners. His fight against Fesler and new business was as active as ever, so he ordered Schuyler Haas, Seventh District Republican chairman and new county attorney, to bring suit, on a matter of .155 of an acre—approximately one-seventh of a acre—and a piece of side track. Haas has not yet brought suit, but has looked the situation over.

In the meantime managers of the Fairbanks concern send most of the work that they would like to do here because they consider Indianapolis a good manufacturing center, to the plants at Three Rivers, Mich., and Beloit, Wis.

The Times has found by investigation that there are ample facilities at the Three Rivers plant of the company to manufacture much of the equipment now being made here. Less than two per cent of the commodities manufactured by Fairbanks, Morse & Co., are sold here in addition to the pay roll, many purchases of material are made locally and railroad clearances are materially enhanced.

APPEAL SEWER COSTS

Several property owners living in vicinity of Conser Ave., have appealed from an assessment for sewer improvements works to Circuit Court. They charge that the assessments were excessive and that they would not be benefited by the improvements.

MARKET PARKING SPACE IS SOUGHT

Official Hopes to Get Part of Courthouse Lawn.

Earl Garrett, city market master, today started a campaign to obtain the use of a part of the courthouse with lawn for parking automobiles of city market patrons.

"I believe that the county commissioners will allow us to use a space forty yards back from Market St., when the matter is properly presented to them," Garrett said. "This space could be paved, affording plenty of room for cars and at the same time allowing the producers quarters of the street in the early morning hours."

Garrett said the popularity of the recent market system by which Market St., from Alabama to Delaware Sts. is closed to traffic on market days has increased crowds of buyers to as many as 60,000 on Saturday.

BLAINE'S LEAD IS NEAR 20,000

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Sept. 9.—La Follette Progressives have weathered the stormiest primary in Wisconsin's long history of turbulent elections. The solidarity of their political control of the State has swept each of the candidates over all opposition, with one exception.

That was the defeat of Attorney-General Herman Ekern by Secretary of State Fred Zimmerman, for the Republican gubernatorial nomination. Governor John J. Blaine's popularity in the Republican senatorial nomination fight against Senator Irvine L. Lenroot, Coolidge supporter, approached 20,000 early today. Blaine was supported by Senator Robert M. La Follette, Jr.

SUICIDE PACT SEEN.

By United Press. WASHINGTON, Sept. 9.—A man and woman believed to be Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Doyle of Brooklyn, N. Y., were found dead in a prominent downtown hotel, evidently the victims of a suicide pact.
