Each winning player will receive approximately $6,254; each losing player $4,165.

Title Series Sidelights

BY JOE WILLIAMS

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 7.—(Blooie, blooie, blooie!)

It was the Bam bamming out three home runs in yesterday's chamber of baseball horrors.

It used to be St. Loocy, but now it's St. Blooie!

When the returns from yesterday's game drifted into Broadway the spit-and-cane gentry busted right out in burlesque, singing "The Bam Bammy Shore."

Manager Hornsby used five pitchers. He wanted to see for himself if four out of every five have it.

For three days the Bam was quieter than a Sunday afternoon in Minooka, Pa., and twice as uninteresting. He looked so bad at the bat that Colonel Jacob Ruppert climbed into a working suit and demanded to be used as a pinch hitter.

The Colonel was defiantly irked. "Why should I pay that egg $52,000 to make infield outs, when I can do no worse myself and for nothing?"

But now, however, everything is all Jacob.

Of course, in the good old days before the Bam never would have made three home runs in one game. A pop bottle would have stiffened him out like a plank steak after the first one.

The Hornsby experiment was a luxurious bust. None of his five had anything except a steady walk to the showers, a chastened soul and a resolve to throw the ball out of the park the next time the Bam appeared.

Waite Hoyt was better than all five of the Cardinal annoyances, rolled into one. Hoyt is a Brooklyn undertaker. It is no surprise the Cards could not beat him. Nobody beats the undertaker in this world.

Two of the Cardinal outfielders collided chasing a fly ball in the fourth inning and were knocked out. Tex Rickard promises to rematch them for a winter show at the Garden. Double knockouts are rare.

We are beginning to think these series games are being subsidized by the oculists of the country. Last year the Pirates flashed a bespectacled pitcher on the Washington Senators, and yesterday the Cards used a pinch hitter who wore glasses.

Earl Combs caught a fly ball back of second base in the fourth inning and then couldn't throw a runner out at the plate. That arm of his is out of place. He ought to be using it for a handle on a suitcase.

There was no shooting in the streets last night, no frenzied hoopla-hoopla-hoopla, no howling of horns and clattering of drums. The town was strangely quiet.

Being Missourians, they had asked to be shown, and I'll be gosh-darned if the Bam didn't step right out and show 'em!

Series Shorts

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 7.—Statisticians today had ceased picking up the broken records from yesterday's hectic game. The remains of seven former marks were carried away.

At the inquest, Babe Ruth probably will be held on charges of felonious assault. He accounted in person for six of the casualties.

Ruth's three home runs constituted a record for a world series game; his total of seven home runs in series contests was a record. He hit twelve home runs in one game, No. 3; of nine extra bases in one game, No. 4; of four runs in one game, No. 5; and of twenty-seven extra bases in world series games was No. 6.

The seventh shattered record was made by the Yankees, whose fourteen hits accounted for twenty-eight bases, one better than the one world series game mark held by the Giants in 1921.

Then there were two more world series marks which won't go into the record book. One came in the Yankee half of the fourth inning when, for the first time, five men were "put out." These included three Yankees, who went out in the regular manner and two Cardinals, who were knocked out.

After Douthett had caromed off Hafe's skull, while chasing Dugan's fly, sending both into unconsciousness, the Cardinal center fielder became a double on his own account. There was no truth to the absurd rumor, however, that Hornsby intended to seat each player over the head before his turn at bat.

Urban Shocker set another record. He pitched almost nine full innings and did not allow a hit. Urban was told to warm up when Waite Hoyt became untidy in the first inning, and still was shooting curves in the bull pen when the game ended.

The Cardinal players are starting a movement to elect Southpaw Reinhardt secretary of the club. His liberality in handing out passes prompted the campaign.

Wednesday's game afforded about every play known to baseball, with the exception of a wild pitch and passed ball. Only magnificent exertions by Bob O'Farrell, Cardinal catcher, prevented these from appearing in the box score.

BIG FOUR ROUTE

Butler at Illinois, Wabash at Purdue and N. D. at Minnesota.

It looks like a rather big Saturday for college football this week-end with feature battles on the program. Locally the fans are interested in the Butler at Illinois fray at Urbana. A special train of twelve coaches is to be run to the scene. Coach Hinkle has his Bulldogs in good shape.

Over at Purdue the annual rivalry set to be scheduled with Wabash. Both teams appear strong. The Boiler-makers are given the edge because of the fine game put up against the Navy. The Scarlet team, however, is not a bit frightened. Thrills are certain to abound.

Notre Dame, with a team which is reported to be stronger than last year, gets its first real test at Minnesota. The Gophers are not being taken lightly by Coach Rockne. The Minneapolis aggregation was powerful last season as sophomores and have a year's experience behind them.

University of Kentucky eleven, reported a heavy team, will play I. U. at Memorial stadium at Bloomington. Fans who wish to stay in Indianapolis can witness Indiana Central play Earlham at the University Heights gridiron.

Other games: De Pauw at Hanover, Franklin at State Normal, Rose Poly at Louisville U., Illinois Central at Evansville, and Oakland City at Danville Normal.

Mrs. Hornsby's Share

By United Press
ST. LOUIS, Oct. 7.—A diamond ring and a fur coat are Mrs. Rogers Hornsby's share of the world series melon. When the wife of the Cardinal manager received the gifts from her husband she characterized him as a "wonderful boy."

"Really, he is a wonderful, wonderful boy," she said. "He may be a good baseball manager, but he is even a greater father and an ideal husband. I am proud of him."

LIEUTENANT TUNNEY

By United Press
NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—Mayor Walker is to present the commission of first lieutenant in the Marine to Gene Tunney on Saturday. The presentation will take place on the city hall steps.

The champion also will receive an engraved sword from the enlisted men of his barracks.

Gentlemen: here's your kind of a sale!

I do not claim to be a judge of everything gentlemen prefer—but there is one point upon which they all agree, and that is the absolute necessity of being well dressed. Gentlemen, here's your kind of a sale—your biggest opportunity to order YOUR kind of clothing at a figure unheard of until now, for such quality. I have just purchased from one of America's oldest, largest and highest grade woolen houses their entire line of exhibit fabrics, (samples tailors buy from). Woolens which bought in the regular way could not be tailored to your measure for less than double the money.

The very identical fabrics that other tailors around town (and I mean the best ones), are getting $70 to $100 a garment for. I dare not mention the brand as that would ruin the $100 tailors' business.

Pride of the Mills—A Suit

TAILORED

to Your Individual Measure

Tremendous selection. Over 75 pattern and style combinations. Every desirable fabric—every thread PURE WOOL.

For Only

Other Fabrics Tailored to Individual Measure for as Low as $29.50

Gentlemen, here is a tailoring value that words cannot exaggerate. These goods are made from very fine Australian worsted yarns. Color guaranteed. The cloth has been thoroughly shrunk and refinished. If you know anything at all about fine woolens you will instantly recognize their exceptional quality.

All Leon garments are made right here in my own shop by the most skilled tailors—each suit tailored to individual measure and at least two try-ons given before the job is completed. Every garment hand-finished, all coat fronts are backed with genuine imported Belgian or Irish linen, button holes etc. all made by hand. A perfect fit absolutely guaranteed or you do not take the garment. No quibbling—you are the judge.

In this sale you have everything to gain and nothing to lose. I want you to at least come up and see what I have to offer. If you don't see anything to your liking, you can walk out just as easily as you walked in. All goods conveniently displayed—you do your own buying.

Read my sworn statement below: every word in it is true. Don't think for a minute that after 13 highly successful years here in the tailoring business I would be so foolish as to perjure myself just for a little monetary gain.

SWORN STATEMENT

October 6, 1926.

In all my tailoring experience I have never offered nor seen or heard of anyone else offering this brand of fabrics at anything like a price of $41.00. If there is anyone who can duplicate (in the regular way) this tailoring value elsewhere I will make them a suit for nothing.

Signed:

LEON
