

LAW BLAMED FOR FATAL PRISON OUTBREAK

ROBINSON LOSES TO WOOLLEN IN MARION COUNTY

Watson's Lead Also Slight, Though Whole G. O. P. Ticket Wins.

Complete official election returns, unofficially tabulated show that Senator Arthur R. Robinson was defeated by Evans Woolen, his Democratic opponent, in Marion County by more than 1,000 votes and that Senator James E. Watson ran far behind the Republican ticket and won over his opponent, Albert J. Stump, by only a little more than 700 votes.

Woolen, piled up 46,411 votes and, despite the fact that the Republicans carried all county offices, beat Robinson by 1,023 votes. Robinson's complete county vote was 45,388.

Watson and Stump figures for Marion County were 46,391 and 45,658, respectively, giving Watson a lead over his opponent of 732.

Treasure Contest Hot

Clyde E. Robinson, Republican county treasurer, won by a narrow margin from his Democratic opponent, Merle V. Bierhart, his majority being around 2,000 votes.

Prosecutor William H. Reeder piled up the largest Republican majority leading his ticket with 52,850 votes and winning over his Democratic opponent, Raymond F. Murray, by 13,138 votes.

Judge James A. Collins of Criminal Court faced a stiff contest with his Democratic opponent, Clarence E. Weir. Collins' majority was around 4,000 votes.

Sheriff Omer H. Hawkins was re-elected by receiving 5,172 votes while more than Charles (Buck) Sumner, Democrat.

Republican Majorities

Republicans George O. Hutsell, county clerk; Harry Dunn, county auditor; Judges James M. Leathers, Lynn D. Hay, Frank J. Lahr, Harry O. Chamberlain, Byron K. Elliot, William O. Dunlavy, Joseph Milner; Coronor Paul F. Robinson and Assesor James C. Douglas all received substantial majorities.

With the election of George Snider and re-election of Charles O. Sutton as county commissioners, the entire county board becomes Republican.

Republican county councilmen at large were successful. They are Frank Cones, G. N. Montgomery and Sollis Runnels.

EFFECTIVE SOLDERING

When soldering wires to screws, no matter how new they are, the screws should always be cleaned with a file, sandpaper or emery paper until they are bright. The soldering will take only a very small fraction of the time if the material to be soldered is bright and clean as it would be the metal the least bit soiled or oxidized.

WARDEN, THREE KILLED

Believe Two of Convicts Committed Suicide.

By United Press

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—Riflemen, special guards armed with riot guns and machine gunners were ordered on duty at all prisons here today to prevent a repetition of the murderous outbreak in the Tombs Wednesday in which four men were killed and three wounded.

A feeling of unrest prevails among the thousands of criminals, authorities believe, and they have been afraid for weeks that a wholesale outbreak would be attempted.

It came suddenly Wednesday and the Tombs guards were caught unaware. Three notorious criminals tried to shoot their way out, and almost succeeded.

They killed Warden Peter Mallon and Jeremith Murphy, a guard. Two of them, Robert Berg and Hyman Amberg, were killed. The third, Michael (Red) McKenna, was dying in a hospital today. Daniel O'Connor, a guard, was in the same hospital, seriously wounded. The other casualty was J. A. Studwell, an office worker, hit in the hand by a stray bullet as he witnessed the siege from an eighth-story window.

Seen by Hundreds

The battle was witnessed by hundreds of office workers and other spectators from the big buildings surrounding the tombs, whose windows look down on the jail yard. In the yard, the prisoners were shot down after they had withstood attack for more than half an hour. A riot call had been sent out and police converged on the prison from every part of the city. Rifles, machine guns and revolvers were brought into play and the prisoners, shooting from the prison yard at any living thing that showed, were under fire from the prison walls, the roof, windows and from the office buildings. Many bullet wounds were found in their bodies, but spectators said all three turned their weapons on themselves, when wounded and outnumbered, they decided to give up the fight and die rather than be taken alive.

The attack came at 3:15 in the afternoon. The three men were prisoners on the fifth tier of cells.

Felgn Illness

Felgn Illness Feigning illness as excuse to be brought to the ground floor of the prison, the three dashed for the front entrance. There they met Louis Lorch, the keeper on duty, and demanded his keys.

"Go to hell" was the retort of the guard as he ran for the rear of the prison, taking the keys with him.

David Lynch, a prison van driver, who had just arrived with a load of prisoners, came from the street and opened fire on the bandits, driving them toward the warden's office.

Warden Shot

Warden Mallon, hearing the firing, went to the office for his revolver. The bandits turned their fire on him as he came out. A bullet passed through his arm, entering his body, lodging in his chest below the heart. He died in a hospital several hours later.

Frustrated in the attempt to leave the prison by the center street gate, the three ran to the rear. There they encountered Jeremiah Murphy and Daniel O'Connor, gate keepers and again demanded the keys. Murphy was killed and O'Connor wounded when they refused to unlock the gate.

Not daring to take the time to search the keepers for the keys, the bandits entrenched themselves behind a pile of coal.

By that time policemen had reached upper windows in surrounding office buildings that commanded the prison yard. Their fire made the coal pile barricade untenable and the bandits took refuge in the small guard house that is built into the prison wall.

Commits Suicide

All but Berg. Spectators in the office buildings saw him stop and lift his gun to his head. At a cry from one of his pals he lowered the gun, but raised it to his temple again. It apparently missed fire, for he was seen to lower the weapon a second time, adjust the action and then raise to his head. As the weapon was discharged he leaped in the air and fell, lying motionless.

Police reserves and details of detectives with machine guns had arrived and pealed the yard with steel-jacketed bullets.

Orville Hulst, police officer of duty, was one of the first to begin firing from outside the prison wall. He heard the shots and mounting a fire escape opened fire on the bandits. One of his bullets struck Amberg in the arm.

Rushed the Yard

Officers of the industrial squad finally rushed the yard.

A workman named Kelly was in a ditch in the yard when the battle began and narrowly missed death as both sides fired upon him during the fight. He saved himself by lying in the ditch.

Blame New Law

Authorities today said they believed the new Baumes law had caused the many habitual criminals in prisons here to lose their heads. The Baumes law ends the parole abuses which enabled criminals in the past to commit major crimes and escape almost without punishment, and ensures that when they are once arrested, they stay behind the bars for many years, if not for life.

Several recent attempts to smuggle weapons into the tombs and other nearby prisons have warned authorities of what was coming.

LONG ILLNESS IS FATAL TO DOCTOR

James R. Anthony Practiced Here Forty Years.

Dr. James R. Anthony, 82, of 1609 College Ave., who practiced medicine in Indianapolis nearly forty years, died at Methodist Hospital early today after a long illness, which became acute only last Saturday. Dr. Anthony's wife who died in 1914, was the former Lucy A. Grant, great niece of General U. S. Grant.

Funeral arrangements have not yet been made, pending word from relatives.

Dr. Anthony was born near Louisville, Ky., April 16, 1844. He graduated from Ohio Medical College in 1874, and pursued professional studies at Bellevue Hospital, New York City. He was a Civil War veteran and member of various medical organizations. He was a member of the College Avenue Baptist Church nearly twenty years.

Five of Dr. Anthony's seven children survive. They are three sons, Virgil S., Lufkin, Texas; James L., Indianapolis, and William L., Nashville, Tenn., and two daughters, Mrs. Gertrude G. Greer, Tampa, Fla., and Mrs. Ruth Maschmeyer, Indianapolis.

THEATRICAL WARFARE

Movies Ruin Business of Houses Featuring Vaudeville.

By United Press

SANTIAGO DE CHILE, Nov. 4.—Two theaters here are fighting a desperate battle against thirty-six moving picture houses.

For more than a year now Santiago has not seen any good theatrical "ensemble" as no dramatic or musical comedy company dares to cross the Andes without a guarantee as to the exact amount of money to be made in the capital of Chile and no promoter is willing to enter into such a contract.

While people pay willingly the equivalent of 50 and 60 cents for a good motion picture they think it over more than once before going to see some theatrical performance.

Moving pictures have invaded all the good theaters in town and only two of them are now resisting the newcomer. One of these two is the stronghold of the comedy and probably never will surrender while the other is never likely to pass over to the enemy lines, because it is too old and does not enjoy the public sympathy.

WOMEN EDIT NEWSPAPER

From Cubs to Manager, Most Are of the Feminine Variety.

By United Press

SALINA, Kans., Nov. 4.—Newspaper, edited and managed by women, is avowed far superior to any man-operated paper, at least by the women. The paper is the Salina Journal.

Women outnumber men in the city newsroom, and the men in this department take orders from a woman city editor, Miss Dorothea Smith. The star reporter is Miss Nelle Talkington. The head feature writer is Miss Mary Jean Bailey.

A woman is in charge of the city carriers and supervises the getting of subscriptions, while another woman takes care of the mail department.

Of the ten linotype operators, four are women.

Two women, during the last few years, have worked up to the position of treasurer of the Journal Company, but both were married after taking up their duties so men now fill their posts.

AERIAL POINT MUST BE GOOD

It is often difficult to solder the end of the lead-in wire to the aerial, and a poor joint at this point means weak signals. When a new antenna wire and the lead-in are first twisted together the contact will undoubtedly be good, but exposure to the weather will soon corrode the joint. If it is inconvenient to make a properly soldered joint at this point, it is desirable to make the antenna and lead-in in one piece.
