

FARRELL SELECTS ALL-AMERICANS—THREE NOTRE DAME MEN LISTED

PURDUE, WABASH VICTORS IN STATE RIVALRY FRAYS

Notre Dame Continues on Unbeaten Way by Downing Drake—Butler Loses to Dayton U.

State college football rivals have settled their differences for another year and the rooters of the respective teams have only arguments left until next fall. Purdue defeated Indiana, 24 to 14 at Lafayette, and Wabash downed De Pauw, 6 to 0 at Greencastle, last Saturday in the two climactic struggles of the season for the Hoosier schools.

The results were more or less expected by the supporters of the winning teams and unbiased onlookers. The only ones shocked were the students of De Pauw and I. U. They could not "see" the opposition and probably don't believe the scores yet which is an attitude not to be blamed, but praised.

Purdue had too much slash and smash for the Crimson. Wilcox did the slashing and Koransky did the smashing, aided and abetted by a line that out-played the I. U. forwards throughout.

Purdue's first touchdown came as the result of a fifty-five-yard run by "Cotton" Wilcox on a great cut-back sprint. The ballmaker back was a constant threat on sweeping end runs which had plenty of interference heading the play.

Cook, a sophomore half back who touched down on the second half, made the second end run in the second period. Wilcox added to the Purdue total by a drop kick at a difficult angle from the 35-yard line in which the ball was in the air as the gun was fired ending the half.

Bennett Stars
Chuck Bennett, Indiana's chief ground gainer, scored a touchdown in the second period with some fine off-tackle smashes in which the Crimson back cut in fast. Bishop place-kicked the extra point. Wilcox place-kicked, both end runs after Purdue's two touchdowns and the score at the half was Purdue, 17; I. U., 7.

Each team scored a touchdown in the third quarter, Koransky going over for Purdue after a steady march and Bennett making another for Indiana after penalties had put the ball in Purdue territory just after the opening kickoff of the second half.

Approximately 15,000 fans witnessed the twenty-ninth annual game between the two Hoosier rivals. If the stadium had not been built of concrete the shivering multitude might have shook it down. A cold wind chilled the spectators to the marrow, but the play on the white chalked field was hot enough.

Only a small crowd of about 2,000 saw Wabash down De Pauw for the secondary State title. The Little Giants had a harder time than anticipated by their followers and were tossed out a victory in the last "Stow" Myers plunged over the line score of the game after the press had brought the ball close to the Tiger goal.

De Pauw fought valiantly and several times stemmed the Scarlet advance only to lose the game in the last minutes of play. It was a typical Wabash De Pauw struggle with the elvens fighting desperately for the advantage.

Sturridge Cuts Loose
Sturridge, playing his final game for De Pauw, was a constant threat but could not quite get loose for a touchdown, although he made some dazzling runs.

Drake gave Notre Dame quite a tussle, but the "Irish" won out, 21 to 0. Rockne's men, who believe in plenty of gridiron activity, have two more games this season, Next Saturday, Carnegie Tech is played at Pittsburgh and on Dec. 4 the South Bend club goes to California to meet the University of Southern California.

Some 15,000 witnessed Notre Dame's last appearance this season on a mid West gridiron. It was a homecoming day, but freezing weather kept many away.

The scrap was the hardest fought of any at South Bend this year. N. D. scored one touchdown in the second period and in a belated rush added two more in the final period. Forward passes and O'Boyle's crashing accounted for two touchdowns and one came as the result of an intercepted pass. Edwards, Wallace and O'Boyle scored the touchdowns.

Drake came within inches of scoring a touchdown in the second quarter and offered a stubborn defense throughout. Rockne used about three teams before the game was over. Almost everybody got a chance.

Butler Loses
Butler closed a disastrous season with another defeat. Dayton U. showed no mercy on the local crumples and ran up a 30 to 6 score. It was ample revenge for a defeat last year at the hands of Butler, 10 to 7.

Butler's only score came in the fourth period when Cochrane plunged over. Fromuth's try for point was wide. Dayton scored a touchdown in every period and added a forty-two-yard place kick in the final frame for good luck.

In other State contests Muncie Normal defeated Earlham, 6 to 0; Oakland City beat Jasper College, 25 to 0; Western Kentucky Normal swamped Evansville, 51 to 0; St. Viators downed Valparaiso, 9 to 0; Wabash freshmen defeated De Pauw yearlings, 6 to 0.

Loughran, Who Boxes Here, May Meet Berlenbach

"Paul Berlenbach, light heavyweight champion of the world, refuses $50,000, offered by Philadelphia promoters, Taylor & Gunnis, to fight Tommy Loughran, the logical light heavyweight contender, conqueror of Georges Carpentier and Jack Delaney."

Posters, two by three feet in size, bearing the above in red ink, were prominently displayed all over the East before the recent Delaney-Berlenbach fight, in which the crown moved from Paul to Jack, in an effort, according to Joe Smith, manager of Loughran, to "smoke out" Berlenbach, after "Punch" (em Paul) is alleged to have run out of a match with Loughran. Copies of the poster have been received in this city.

However, the latest word is that Tex Rickard has waved his magic wand and the Berlenbach-Loughran match is on again, the meeting to take place in Madison Square Garden the middle of January. The scrap would seem to justify the use of that overworked phrase, "a natural."

In order to keep his slate clean in his climb toward higher honors, it will be up to Loughran to beat George Manley of Denver, whom he meets here at Tomlinson Hall next Monday night in a ten-rounder, topping the Olympic A. C. card. A hasty perusal of the bushels of press clippings and other "dope" forwarded here by Leo P. Flynn, Manley's manager, reveals that the Denver brawler is no slouch of a ring performer, having "wins" over Wiggins, Risko and Metoquah to his credit.

HARDWOOD CALL HEARD

Cavemen Turn From Gridiron Sports to Net Game.

By Times Special
CRAWFORDSVILLE, Ind., Nov. 22.—Pete Vaughn, veteran Wabash College coach, issued the first call for basketball material here today at the close of an enthusiastic chapel service.

Football players received the last applause from the student body this year and turned their faces to the hardwood game.

Under Captain Benny DeVol, forward, and ex-captain, Red Robinson, former all-western forward, net candidates have been working out for two weeks.

Boeringer, Mayer and Flanagan Mentioned by United Press Critic.

By HENRY L. FARRELL
NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—Practical football men say that an all-American team, consisting of the eleven best players in the game, can not be picked, because there are three or four equally good men for every position on a team that can hold only eleven.

Theoretical football men say that an all-American team should not be picked, because in principle it destroys the morale that football is supposed to teach sacrifice of individual glory for the team.

The two arguments are sound and beyond dispute.

Picking a team of eleven players that could go on the field and defeat any eleven other players in the Nation is one of those tasks that is admitted to be impossible, but there is no death penalty for trying.

Thirty-Three Stars
It is no difficult task to pick thirty-three star players who have distinguished themselves in one of the greatest seasons a great sport ever has enjoyed.

In spite of logic and convincing arguments against the practice, picking an all-American team has become a whistle-blowing finale to the season and here goes the whistle that will summon the mob with implements to assault the picker:

In rating the players, an attempt was made to consider the quality of the opposition against which the players distinguished themselves.

Connors, of New York University, for instance, is one of the greatest quarter backs of the year and probably will be a clinch for the first team next year. Kelly of Montana also is one of the greatest quarters in the game, but Connors and Kelly did not have to carry the load that Benny Friedman or Moon Baker or Danny Caulkins carried.

Team Value

Broda, Hanson, Born, Oosterbaan, Thayer and Shipkey were almost on a par as ends, but Broda and Hanson were given the first places because of their team value. Oosterbaan looks out of place on any second team, but he didn't play an all-American end in the hardest game that Michigan had against the Navy. Friedman was smeared also in the Navy game, but he was the ranking star of the season in Michigan's other games.

Giving the preference at tackles to Lassman and Wickhorst and the guards to Connaughton and Hess was the result of the opinions of coaches and officials who have seen the other candidates in all sections of the country.

It was hard to decide between Butler and Boeringer for center. Boeringer rose to his greatest heights against the Army, but Butler was a great star in every game on Penn's schedule.

The back fields are just a matter of opinion and there are countless backs who can't even be mentioned because of the prominence that a back field star attracts.

CITY BOWLING GOSSIP

By Lefty Lee

The Antlers and Shin Bones are staging a merry battle for top honors in the Elks League. At present the Antlers are out in front one game, having won seventeen and lost seven. The Shin Bones have won sixteen and lost eight. Weisman is far out in front in the individual class, having an average of 197 for the season.

The Hi-Jacks are sure living up to their name and making a runaway race in the Highland Golf League. They have won twenty-one and lost but six and are five full games away from their nearest rival, Vandlingham is leader in the singles, having an average of 172. Agnew and L. Rodabough are pressing him with 170 each.

The reason for the high scoring in the Capital No. 1 League can be seen in the individual average standings. Charlie Gray is holding his lead with an average of 267. "Nan" Scott, A. Striebeck and Weisman are other shooters to have an average of 200 or better. Of the forty-six bowlers shooting in this loop twenty-six have an average of better than 190, and but three are under 180.

The Marmon Motor League has a hot race on. Gus Duco, in third place, are but two games behind Bo's Buyers, who are leading with nineteen won and eight lost. Wright, with an average of 182, appears to have the lead sewed up in the individuals as Clapp, his nearest threat, has but 177 to his credit.

The A. C. Bradley team is the leader in the Ladies Social League, having won twenty and lost ten. This is another tight race and but three games separate first and fifth place. Kritch is far in front with an average of 177. Moore, who is next, has 166. Seven of the ladies have an average of 160 or better.

An interesting doubles match has been arranged between two of the fastest doubles combinations in the city. I. Fehr and Larry Fox of the Baker Bros. team are to roll Frank Hueber and Roy Halsup of the Silver Flash team, two games, total pins to count. This match will be rolled on the Capital and Recreation Afeys, the first half to be bowled next Sunday at 2 p. m. on the Capital Alleys.

Eddie Hornberger won the turkey with all the "trimmings" in the draw Sunday at the Capital Alleys. As "eye scrubber" was the one selected to pull the chances from the box Eddie has promised us a drumstick so that is one meal we will not have to worry about.

The Shank Storage ladies' team won a special match game with the Citizens Gas team, composed of men on the Capital alleys Sunday afternoon by a score of 2,504 to 2,441. It was an interesting match and the ladies had the pep which puts across "wins" in any competition.

Art Hines and Johnny Eiden had things framed to split the turkey given by the Century alleys for high practice game, when along comes Henry Shriver of the House of Crane team and shoots a perfect 300. As this was rolled in practice no medal will be awarded, but "Hank" will surely eat turkey soon.

Sixty-five-man teams, 151 doubles and 285 singles entries have been obtained for the city tournament, which will start next Saturday at the Recreation alleys. While this entry is not a new record, new record scores can be expected, as the boys have been hitting the pins in wonderful style all season.

The Silver Flash team again led the city last week with a total of 3,042, closely pressed by "Schott Bros. & Co.," better known as the Em-Rops, who had 3,025. The Broad Ripple team of Capital No. 2 league was another to top the mark, having 3,007. Jerry O'Grady's 704 leads the shooters in the singles, closely pressed by Rus Smith, who had 699. Eighty-seven of the boys had a total of 600 or better.
