HIGH HAT

"Art Circle" is what Reboux calls her new moiré felt. The pile, being longer than on ordinary felts, lends itself well to this treatment of pressing down the design.

SAVES YOUR STRENGTH
If you have a small family you may save time and strength by doing your dishes all at one time. Scrape and pile them in an ordinary pile, pour hot water over them, and let them stand until the most convenient hour for washing them.

MUSLIN TRIMMING
Pink muslin is used to trim a dinner gown of black panne velvet—but it is a French creation, and handled in a most knowing manner.

PRACTICAL DRESS.
Silk and wool jersey make this practical dress for classroom, travel or business wear. It features a trim shoulder line, natty turn-over collar and cuffs. Inverted plaits at side seams add width to hemline. Design No. 2861 is particularly lovely, developed in black crepe satin, with dull side of crepe used for front applied band, collar and cuffs. A narrow gold kid belt and flesh colored collar of crepe remain, worn over the dull crepe collar, will add to its attractiveness. Kasha, velvet and canton crepe are suitable. Pattern can be had in sizes 16, 18 years, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 3 1/2 yards of 40-inch material with 1 1/2 yard of 32-inch contrasting, is sufficient to make it. Price 15 cents in stamps or coin. (coin preferred). Our patterns are made by the leading Fashion Designers of New York City and are guaranteed to fit perfectly.

Every day The Times will print on this page pictures showing the latest up-to-date fashions.

This is a practical service for readers who wish to make their own clothes.

You may obtain this pattern by filling out the accompanying coupon, enclosing 15 cents (coin preferred), and mailing it to the pattern department of The Times. Delivery is made in about one week.

Be sure to write plainly and to include pattern number and size.

self to let her meet the wilderness like this, serene and confident.

Off the train at the little frontier town, we inquired about the house we sought. "Oh, that is about sixty miles in the brush," they said, as casually as we would direct a stranger to the postoffice.

Yes, there was one car in town for rent. The taxi man would drive us there, if we could stand it. Pretty bad. Maybe we could do the sixty miles in four hours, probably five.

It was a wagon trail through tangled underbrush, a sandy path that slid and melted under the car, a rocky road that ran along steep precipices. There was no restaurant along the way; we had no lunches with us.

We passed only one house, a trapper's. He and his family were at dinner as we passed. They spoke only French, but smiled a welcome to their feast of boiled minkrat. We thanked them and hurried on.

Journey's end—and no one at home! No restaurant, no food. Even Baptiste was not eager to receive that sixty miles in the darkness, which was only two hours away. We had a bar of chocolate. There was a robe in the car. Hunger and cold were better than death over a cold black cras, we agreed.

But there was a town thirty miles further on—"Rat River." We hurried there before dusk came and found what was called a "boarding house." There was a room for me if I'd sleep with the two kids. Flypaper, dirt, odor of drying shoes. There was moose steak for supper.

I was tired and wanted to sleep. The entire feminine household insisted on watching me disrobe. Ragsageless, tooth-brushless, combless, handkerchiefless.

I am in "the brush," in the flaming woods of the North Canadian autumn. Overnight a Twentieth Century train whisked me into a world so new, so strange, so simple and yet with all its simplicity so complex to a city dweller that I seem as strange to these people of the patois as they and their life seems to me.

I am in Mrs. House's country, where she is glad and content to live and die. I marvel at her strength. There must be something within her

MENUS For the FAMILY

By Sister Mary

BREAKFAST—Stewed dried peaches, cereal, thin cream, French toast, syrup, milk, coffee.

LUNCHEON—Scalloped onions and tomatoes, graham bread, apple tapioca pudding, milk, tea.

DINNER—New England boiled dinner, celery, Indian pudding, whole wheat bread, milk, coffee.

A New England boiled dinner uses all the vegetables in season in its composition. Parsnips, carrots, turnips, cabbage, potatoes, onions and beets lend their flavor and nourishment to this time-honored American dish. Corned beef or salt pork are the meat chosen for the dinner. It's well worth while to use a heavier piece of corned beef than will be needed for one meal, for corned beef hash or the meat served sliced cold is delicious. The beef absorbs some of the flavors of the vegetable cooked with it and the result is a delicately seasoned, delightfully tender, cold sliced meat.

Scalloped Onions and Tomatoes
Six or eight medium-sized onions, 3 tablespoons butter, 2 cups solid canned tomatoes, 1 teaspoon sugar, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1/2 teaspoon pepper, 1/2 cup grated cheese, 3 eggs, 4 tablespoons buttered crumbs.

Peel and slice onions, melt butter in sauce pan, add sliced onions and cook five minutes. Add tomatoes, salt, sugar and pepper and simmer for forty-five minutes. Sprinkle a well-buttered baking dish with coarse crumbs, making a thin, even coating. Turn in onion and tomato mixture, sprinkle with grated cheese, put in the oven long enough to melt the cheese. Make four slight depressions in top of dish, slide an egg carefully into each hollow, sprinkle with buttered crumbs and return to the oven for eight minutes to cook the eggs and brown the crumbs. Serve from the baking dish.
