

5 PROSPECTS IN LINE FOR C. OF C. SECRETARYSHIP

Job Open March 1 Offers $10,000 Salary and Increase Promise.

Five men are being considered for the position of general secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, made vacant after March 1, by the recent resignation of John B. Reynolds, it was learned today. A special secret committee appointed by Dick Miller, Chamber president, has been in conference with prospects for the job at various times during the past two weeks. Miller has refused to disclose tentative plans.

It was learned, however, that Frank Jordan, secretary of the Indianapolis Water Company, was one of the first men "reviewed" by the committee. Jordan was also a "possibility" seven years ago, when Reynolds was selected.

A report also had it that Ed Hunter, of New York City, former secretary of the Advertising Club here, had been considered. It was not learned definitely what action been taken in Hunter's case. Hunter is at present director of club services of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World.

Among the other men considered is Walter K. Greenbaum, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce at Michigan City, Ind. He was in Indianapolis last week for a conference with the committee, which met at the Indianapolis Athletic Club, according to Miller.

J. S. N. Walter, Industrial commissioner of the Memphis (Tenn.) Chamber of Commerce, and Col.

L. H. Britton, industrial chief of the Chamber at St. Paul, Minn.,

have also been regarded as prospects it was learned.

An offer of $10,000 a year salary is being made to the prospects, it is understood. This is accompanied with a promise of an increase when the new "secretary" shows what he can do." Reynolds' salary was $12,000 yearly.

The change in the administrative head is attributed to the new policy adopted for 1927 in accordance with the Indianapolis First movement. Plans call for the subordination of the secretary's position to that of an industrial engineer, which position is also to be filled. The industrial executive is to "sell" Indianapolis to industries prospecting for location.

Miller recently stated that about twenty men had been "looked over."

Konjola Ended Rheumatic Agony and Reduced Swollen Joints, This Lady Says.

So many seemingly hopeless cases of health troubles have been completely ended in Indianapolis by this remarkable new Konjola medicine that the drug and medical trades of this vicinity are astounded. Reports from over this entire section point

EVERY ACHE AND PAIN SHE HAD IN 10 YEARS IS GONE

Konjola Ended Rheumatic Agony and Reduced Swollen Joints, This Lady Says.

George Northcutt and his son had a private cold wave all their own at Flora. The door slammed when they entered the storage room of their ice cream factory and they were imprisoned for three hours with the temperature 10 above zero.

Two Kokomo couples celebrated their sixty-third wedding anniversary. They were Mr. and Mrs. John F. Mitchell and Mr. and Mrs. John W. DeWeese.

Mrs. Elma Cambell of Bluffton, like Mrs. Hubbard, went to the cupboard. The cupboard wasn't bare, however. Instead it fell on her when she tried to get a cook book on the top shelf. She was severely bruised.

For the first time, Attorney Gilbert Adams of Frankfort, who has defended many persons in court, said "Good morning, Judge" himself. He was fined for drying past a stop sign.

Atlanta has organized a fire brigade. Officers are A. G. Kauffman, president; H. E. Snyder, vice president; M. E. Steckel, secretary and treasurer. Denzil Lewis is fire chief, assisted by Uly Jacson and Gus Buscher.

Veterinarians at the circus headquarters at Peru endeavored to save a large boxing kangaroo, ill with pneumonia, by placing a mustard plaster on its chest. The animal died.

"My case may be like many others you hear about, but I wish to say the first pain appeared in 1916. My hip was affected, and a pain seemed to center in my left limb. This became worse until I had to limp every place I went. Finally both my legs were afflicted and my ankles and knees were so swollen that I could barely get around the house. I often thought I had dropsy, and for a positive fact, I was unable to wear shoes over two months. All this time I had been subject to the most agonizing pains anyone could suffer. I very seldom could leave my room, and, besides the rheumatism, I had a poor appetite, pains in the back and would have dizzy spells frequently.

"I began to notice what several people had to say about Konjola. I felt sure this medicine would help me, but never had any idea it would completely restore my health. It seemed I could feel a great difference the first week I had been taking Konjola, because I was resting better and some of the swelling was gone. I noticed the dizzy spells didn't come so often and the pains were easing up. Less than 6 bottles had entirely ended my miseries, and now I can wear my shoes without pain of any kind. The swelling is all gone, and not a single ache or pain has bothered me in several weeks. My strength is so much better that I can do a big washing every week without getting tired. At the same time, Konjola has given me a wonderful appetite and improved my system in general.

"I am endorsing this medicine because it is the only treatment that delivered me from my health troubles, and I am highly thankful."

The Konjola Man is at Hook's Drug Store, Pennsylvania and Market Sts., Indianapolis, where he is daily meeting the local public and introducing and explaining the merits of this remedy. Konjola is sold by every Hook Store in Indianapolis, and by all druggists in the nearby towns throughout this section.—Advertisement.

Out Our Way

—By Williams

ARMED GUARD IN COURT

Officials Take No Chances at Trial of Shelton Gangsters.

By United Press
QUINCY, Ill., Feb. 1.—Except for the presence of a number of armed guards standing about the courtroom, the trial of the three Shelton brothers—Earl, Carl and Bernard—lacks the drama generally connected with the trial of gangsters of nationwide notoriety.

The three leaders of the Shelton gang of southern Illinois are on trial for the hold-up of a Government mail messenger at Collinsville and the theft of $15,000.

Charles Birger, leader of the gang which opposes the Sheltons, is in Quincy, as is his chief aid, Art Newman. However, both are being kept from public view under Government guard. Government officials fear their appearance might cause some disorder.

RABIES CLAIMS NUMEROUS LIVES

Two Die in Indiana During Year—National Problem.

Increase in deaths from rabies has been marked during the past year according to a survey of health departments of the United States and Canada, made by Dr. Norman Beatty, who has charge of the State laboratories here.

A questionnaire was sent to each State health officer and the results show that the disease is becoming a national problem, Dr. Beatty declared.

There were two deaths in Indiana during the year, while in some States deaths ran as high as seventeen. The disease also is prevalent among the wild animals. A quarantine has been in effect in this State since Jan. 15, and no dog can roam unmuzzled, unless inoculated against the disease.

Of 735 heads examined by Dr. Beatty, 391 have tested positive. Nearly 500 persons have been treated and another 200 have received private care by family physicians. Money to carry on the work is taken from the Governor's contingent fund and turned over to Dr. William F. King, health department secretary, as a special hydrophobia appropriation.

Padlock proceedings against small bootleggers who fall into the Federal dry squad net will be instituted by Deputy Prohibition Administrator George L. Winkler, it was announced today. The decision is the result of a conference some time ago between Winkler and Albert S.

Ward, United States district attorney.

Winkler also will petition the court for a temporary injunction restraining further opening of such resorts for a year.

This is aimed at those convicted and serving terms of from thirty to ninety days. It will render it impossible for another bootlegger to establish himself on the same premises, Winkler said.

"Padlocking of such places for the remainder of the year will serve as our best weapon against the smaller bootlegger," said Winkler. "No proprietor or property owner can afford to let his store or other place of business remain vacant." He added, "Property owners should know what their tenants are doing."

Padlock proceedings against small bootleggers who fall into the Federal dry squad net will be instituted by Deputy Prohibition Administrator George L. Winkler, it was announced today. The decision is the result of a conference some time ago between Winkler and Albert S.

Ward, United States district attorney.

Winkler also will petition the court for a temporary injunction restraining further opening of such resorts for a year.

This is aimed at those convicted and serving terms of from thirty to ninety days. It will render it impossible for another bootlegger to establish himself on the same premises, Winkler said.

"Padlocking of such places for the remainder of the year will serve as our best weapon against the smaller bootlegger," said Winkler. "No proprietor or property owner can afford to let his store or other place of business remain vacant." He added, "Property owners should know what their tenants are doing."

Padlock proceedings against small bootleggers who fall into the Federal dry squad net will be instituted by Deputy Prohibition Administrator George L. Winkler, it was announced today. The decision is the result of a conference some time ago between Winkler and Albert S.

Ward, United States district attorney.

Winkler also will petition the court for a temporary injunction restraining further opening of such resorts for a year.

This is aimed at those convicted and serving terms of from thirty to ninety days. It will render it impossible for another bootlegger to establish himself on the same premises, Winkler said.

"Padlocking of such places for the remainder of the year will serve as our best weapon against the smaller bootlegger," said Winkler. "No proprietor or property owner can afford to let his store or other place of business remain vacant." He added, "Property owners should know what their tenants are doing."

Padlock proceedings against small bootleggers who fall into the Federal dry squad net will be instituted by Deputy Prohibition Administrator George L. Winkler, it was announced today. The decision is the result of a conference some time ago between Winkler and Albert S.

Ward, United States district attorney.

Winkler also will petition the court for a temporary injunction restraining further opening of such resorts for a year.

This is aimed at those convicted and serving terms of from thirty to ninety days. It will render it impossible for another bootlegger to establish himself on the same premises, Winkler said.

"Padlocking of such places for the remainder of the year will serve as our best weapon against the smaller bootlegger," said Winkler. "No proprietor or property owner can afford to let his store or other place of business remain vacant." He added, "Property owners should know what their tenants are doing."

Padlock proceedings against small bootleggers who fall into the Federal dry squad net will be instituted by Deputy Prohibition Administrator George L. Winkler, it was announced today. The decision is the result of a conference some time ago between Winkler and Albert S.

Ward, United States district attorney.

Winkler also will petition the court for a temporary injunction restraining further opening of such resorts for a year.

This is aimed at those convicted and serving terms of from thirty to ninety days. It will render it impossible for another bootlegger to establish himself on the same premises, Winkler said.

"Padlocking of such places for the remainder of the year will serve as our best weapon against the smaller bootlegger," said Winkler. "No proprietor or property owner can afford to let his store or other place of business remain vacant." He added, "Property owners should know what their tenants are doing."

Padlock proceedings against small bootleggers who fall into the Federal dry squad net will be instituted by Deputy Prohibition Administrator George L. Winkler, it was announced today. The decision is the result of a conference some time ago between Winkler and Albert S.

Ward, United States district attorney.

Winkler also will petition the court for a temporary injunction restraining further opening of such resorts for a year.

This is aimed at those convicted and serving terms of from thirty to ninety days. It will render it impossible for another bootlegger to establish himself on the same premises, Winkler said.

"Padlocking of such places for the remainder of the year will serve as our best weapon against the smaller bootlegger," said Winkler. "No proprietor or property owner can afford to let his store or other place of business remain vacant." He added, "Property owners should know what their tenants are doing."

Padlock proceedings against small bootleggers who fall into the Federal dry squad net will be instituted by Deputy Prohibition Administrator George L. Winkler, it was announced today. The decision is the result of a conference some time ago between Winkler and Albert S.

Ward, United States district attorney.

Winkler also will petition the court for a temporary injunction restraining further opening of such resorts for a year.

This is aimed at those convicted and serving terms of from thirty to ninety days. It will render it impossible for another bootlegger to establish himself on the same premises, Winkler said.

"Padlocking of such places for the remainder of the year will serve as our best weapon against the smaller bootlegger," said Winkler. "No proprietor or property owner can afford to let his store or other place of business remain vacant." He added, "Property owners should know what their tenants are doing."

Padlock proceedings against small bootleggers who fall into the Federal dry squad net will be instituted by Deputy Prohibition Administrator George L. Winkler, it was announced today. The decision is the result of a conference some time ago between Winkler and Albert S.

Ward, United States district attorney.

Winkler also will petition the court for a temporary injunction restraining further opening of such resorts for a year.

This is aimed at those convicted and serving terms of from thirty to ninety days. It will render it impossible for another bootlegger to establish himself on the same premises, Winkler said.

"Padlocking of such places for the remainder of the year will serve as our best weapon against the smaller bootlegger," said Winkler. "No proprietor or property owner can afford to let his store or other place of business remain vacant." He added, "Property owners should know what their tenants are doing."

Padlock proceedings against small bootleggers who fall into the Federal dry squad net will be instituted by Deputy Prohibition Administrator George L. Winkler, it was announced today. The decision is the result of a conference some time ago between Winkler and Albert S.

Ward, United States district attorney.

Winkler also will petition the court for a temporary injunction restraining further opening of such resorts for a year.

This is aimed at those convicted and serving terms of from thirty to ninety days. It will render it impossible for another bootlegger to establish himself on the same premises, Winkler said.

"Padlocking of such places for the remainder of the year will serve as our best weapon against the smaller bootlegger," said Winkler. "No proprietor or property owner can afford to let his store or other place of business remain vacant." He added, "Property owners should know what their tenants are doing."

Padlock proceedings against small bootleggers who fall into the Federal dry squad net will be instituted by Deputy Prohibition Administrator George L. Winkler, it was announced today. The decision is the result of a conference some time ago between Winkler and Albert S.

Ward, United States district attorney.

Winkler also will petition the court for a temporary injunction restraining further opening of such resorts for a year.

This is aimed at those convicted and serving terms of from thirty to ninety days. It will render it impossible for another bootlegger to establish himself on the same premises, Winkler said.

"Padlocking of such places for the remainder of the year will serve as our best weapon against the smaller bootlegger," said Winkler. "No proprietor or property owner can afford to let his store or other place of business remain vacant." He added, "Property owners should know what their tenants are doing."

Padlock proceedings against small bootleggers who fall into the Federal dry squad net will be instituted by Deputy Prohibition Administrator George L. Winkler, it was announced today. The decision is the result of a conference some time ago between Winkler and Albert S.

Ward, United States district attorney.

Winkler also will petition the court for a temporary injunction restraining further opening of such resorts for a year.

This is aimed at those convicted and serving terms of from thirty to ninety days. It will render it impossible for another bootlegger to establish himself on the same premises, Winkler said.

"Padlocking of such places for the remainder of the year will serve as our best weapon against the smaller bootlegger," said Winkler. "No proprietor or property owner can afford to let his store or other place of business remain vacant." He added, "Property owners should know what their tenants are doing."

Padlock proceedings against small bootleggers who fall into the Federal dry squad net will be instituted by Deputy Prohibition Administrator George L. Winkler, it was announced today. The decision is the result of a conference some time ago between Winkler and Albert S.

Ward, United States district attorney.

Winkler also will petition the court for a temporary injunction restraining further opening of such resorts for a year.

This is aimed at those convicted and serving terms of from thirty to ninety days. It will render it impossible for another bootlegger to establish himself on the same premises, Winkler said.

"Padlocking of such places for the remainder of the year will serve as our best weapon against the smaller bootlegger," said Winkler. "No proprietor or property owner can afford to let his store or other place of business remain vacant." He added, "Property owners should know what their tenants are doing."

Padlock proceedings against small bootleggers who fall into the Federal dry squad net will be instituted by Deputy Prohibition Administrator George L. Winkler, it was announced today. The decision is the result of a conference some time ago between Winkler and Albert S.

Ward, United States district attorney.

Winkler also will petition the court for a temporary injunction restraining further opening of such resorts for a year.

This is aimed at those convicted and serving terms of from thirty to ninety days. It will render it impossible for another bootlegger to establish himself on the same premises, Winkler said.

"Padlocking of such places for the remainder of the year will serve as our best weapon against the smaller bootlegger," said Winkler. "No proprietor or property owner can afford to let his store or other place of business remain vacant." He added, "Property owners should know what their tenants are doing."

Padlock proceedings against small bootleggers who fall into the Federal dry squad net will be instituted by Deputy Prohibition Administrator George L. Winkler, it was announced today. The decision is the result of a conference some time ago