MINISTERS FROWN ON NEW BOOK

Clergy Here Passive on Sinclair Lewis' 'Elmer Gantry.'

Sinclair Lewis' newest book, "Elmer Gantry," will have little sale among Indianapolis ministers, it appears from a survey today.

The book singles out a minister, Gantry, who begins with small town pastorale and becomes a "go-getting" evangelist.

Misrepresenting

After experiences with a woman evangelist, Gantry develops into a "beefy, lying, alcoholic libertine, in love with two things, publicity and pretty women," according to one reviewer.

Characterizing the book as "grossly misrepresenting," Rev. Orlen W. Fifield, pastor of the Central Avenue Methodist Episcopal Church, said: "Sinclair Lewis has chosen a type of man who represents about one-half of one per cent of those who make up the ministry."

Fiction Slander

"This abnormal character makes the whole ministry bear the brunt of the attack. Well informed people will dismiss Lewis' picture as a pile of fiction slander."

Other Indianapolis ministers said they were not familiar with the book or that its author's radical tendencies would override any merit the book might otherwise possess.

DELAY C. OF C. MOVE

Office Reorganization Held Up Until Directors Meet.

Physical reorganization of the Chamber of Commerce offices was delayed Thursday with the postponement of the directors' meeting until next Thursday.

It is planned to consolidate several second-floor offices with the general offices on the third floor.

C. L. Harrod, Chamber manager, announced he and Dick Miller, Chamber president, were formulating the list of six or seven outstanding points in the 1927 constructive program. Appointment of an industrial committee is pending.

Hoosier Briefs

Joseph Neal, township assessor of Brazil, was granted a divorce and the custody of his children, whom he calls "Bum," "Cabbage," "Speedy," "Kirk," "Mag," "Belle" and "Dot."

"I did not intend to burn the house, but only to scare the party calling on my wife," was the explanation of Frederick Flinn, Lebanon.
