

LIMIT DOWNTOWN PARKING TO HOUR IN NEW CITY LAW

Council Ignores Daylight Saving and Hospital Bond Ordinances.

One hour parking limit downtown was provided in the traffic ordinance passed by city council Monday night. The new code provides flat to curb parking on Ohio between Pennsylvania and New Jersey sts., and prohibits parking beneath elevations and on bridges. Parking is permitted only on one side of streets less than thirty feet wide. Angle parking will remain in effect on the other downtown streets.

Delay "Daylight Bill"

No action was taken on the ordinance asking a $1,700,000 bond issue for city hospital although a resolution stipulating council supervision of the project was killed. A threatened fight on the daylight saving ordinance failed to materialize when the bill was not called from committee.

A delegation of residents who for three years have sought improvement of E. Forty-Sixth St., between Keystone Ave. and Monon railroad, cheered when the council gave its approval for the county to make the improvement.

Councilman Boyton J. Moore moved that council express its appreciation to the new works board and city Engineer Frank C. Lingenfelter for the repairing of many city chuk holes.

Police Want Car

Territory bounded by Raymond St. and Beas, Clark and Keystone Ave. and Walker St., was annexed.

An ordinance drafted by Dr. Herman G. Morgan, city health officer, providing for further regulation of the distribution and serving of milk, was introduced. The ordinance specifying that all milk must be served from original bottles.

Authority to purchase a new police emergency car was asked. Rezoneing of Fifty-Seventh St. and Central Ave. from residential to business classification was proposed in an ordinance referred to committee.

The largest ball room in the world is to be built at Chicago. It will cost more than a million dollars and will accommodate 7,500 dancers.

COUNTY'S ROAD FUND IN DEBT FOR $100,000

Commissioners Seek to End Excessive Equipment Buying.

The county's free gravel road fund, from which all expenses of constructing and maintaining township roads are taken, is overdrawn about $100,000, it was learned today. Records show the debt has been hanging over the county for some time, mounting to its present height in the last few years. It was almost cleared in 1925, but jumped again last year.

County Auditor Harry Dunn admits the debt is "almost $100,000," but says it "was worse." He also predicts that by next spring the debt will be sliced away and the free gravel road fund will show a tidy sum on the better side.

Check Buying

Word has gone out in the offices of the county commissioners that a stop must be put to excessive buying of road materials and road construction machinery. According to Dunn the only machinery that will be bought for road work this year will be a tractor.

While county officials are planning to cut down the debt, petitions are continually coming in for more roads.

Following a survey of about 100 miles of petitioned-for roadway, commissioners announced that as far as improving them was concerned "it couldn't be done."

This year the free gravel road fund will get about $210,000 from taxes. Three cents on each $100 is turned into this fund. Dunn has estimated that with a strict economy program this $210,000 can be utilized not only in the yearly maintenance program but also in paying the debts.

Under the new budget law, passed by the recent Legislature, it will be illegal for the county to permit such debts to mount. This law is effective next spring.

In Debt 15 Years

Dunn declared the fund has been in debt for about fifteen years. Leo K. Fesler, county auditor who preceded Dunn and held office for eight years, was astounded at the admitted amount of the road fund debt.

He said several times during his two terms the road fund was clear and had a balance on hand. He said only once or twice the fund showed negative amounts.

CRIMINALS VARY THEFT METHODS

Loot, Rob, Pick Pocket and Attempt Purse Grab.

A hold-up, liquor party robbery, attempted purse seizure and burglary were the high lights of local crime Monday night.

Leslie Oakley, 1413 E. St. Clair St., conductor on a Columbia Ave. street car, told police that a Negro boarded the car at Twenty-Fifth St., shortly after midnight, and instead of paying his fare, pointed a gun at him and took $24.

Walter P. Tulley, New York City, reported to detectives that while on a drinking party a friend robbed him of $67.

Mrs. Alice Strong, 303 E. Nineteenth St., was walking at New Jersey and Twentieth Sts., late Monday night when a Negro seized a purse dangling from her arm, but ran away without it.

A. L. Block, president of L. Strauss & Co., arrived home with his family Monday night, from New York City. He told detectives that their apartment in the Buckingham, 3107 N. Meridian St., had been looted of a set of sterling silver dinnerware, a silver mesh bag, a gold mesh bag, pins, rings, four quarter-karat unset diamond stones and five suits of men's clothes.

Tryme BEVERAGES

TO HOLD RITES THURSDAY FOR CHARLES HENRY

Indiana Interurban Lines Founder Taken by Death After Long Illness.

Funeral services for Charles L. Henry, 77, founder of Indiana interurban lines, will be held at the home, 1414 Broadway, Thursday at 10 a. m. The Rev. Virgil E. Rorer, pastor of Meridian Street M. E. Church, will officiate and burial will be at Maplewood cemetery, Anderson. Mr. Henry died at his home late Monday, following a lingering illness.

Mr. Henry inaugurated the first street railway in the State, coined the word "interurban" and at the time of his death was president and receiver of the Indianapolis-Cincinnati Traction Company, a project on which he had devoted years of labor.

Born in Hancock

Born on a farm in Hancock County, he was educated in the Pendleton schools, Asbury College, now De Pauw University, and later in law at Indiana University. He commenced the practice of law at Anderson, where he remained for twenty-five years, coming to Indianapolis in 1903. It was at Anderson that he introduced the first mud-drawn street car in 1890.

In 1898 Mr. Henry operated the first electric line in the State, between Anderson and Alexandria. He then became interested in the Union Traction Company, which he aided in developing. In 1903 he started the Indianapolis-Cincinnati line and became its first president.

Besides his traction interests, Mr. Henry realized a small fortune in the development of natural gas resources in eastern Indiana.

Was in Congress

An active Republican, he served two terms as a member of the lower house of Congress, 1894-96, and in the Indiana Senate, 1896-98. In 1903 he purchased the Indianapolis Journal, later merged with the Star, but sold it within a year.

For the last fifteen years Mr. Henry had been chairman of the national relations committee of the American Electric Railway Association and since 1920 president of the Indiana Public Utility Association.

In 1873 he was married to Eva N. Smock, Greencastle, who died about a year ago. Survivors are four daughters and one son: Misses Atta, Edna and Alice of Indianapolis; Mrs. Edith Lindstrom, St. Louis, and George, Indianapolis.

Mother's Trial Is Set

LAFAYETTE, Ind., May 3.—Trial of Mrs. Lillian Watkins, charged with the murder of her new born baby April 16, has been set for May 17. She pleaded not guilty when arraigned Monday. She is alleged to have strangled the baby to conceal its birth from her husband.

DEFENDS GIRLS, SMOKES ON HIS 96TH BIRTHDAY

George A. Wilson, 96

By Eldora Field

Who says smoking's harmful? Not the 96-year-old philosopher, George A. Wilson, who celebrated his birthday Monday by smoking many big, black cigars.

"Say, I began smoking when I was 12 or 13 years old," said this jolly old gentleman, known to his friends as "Dad." "I'm in excellent health—my doctor says I'm a wonder—and if about eighty-four years of blowing smoke rings has left me in this condition—well, just how would I have been if I hadn't smoked?" "Dad" asked, his eyes twinkling merrily.

He Isn't Lonesome

"It's a good world, and it's getting better every day," he said. "It seems that way to me. Maybe it's because I've always been cheerful. Started trying to be years and years ago because I think that helps other folks, and it's got to be a habit."

The nurses and attendants at the Indiana Christian Hospital, where "Dad" makes his home, say they have never seen him "out of sorts." With every relative dead ("Dad" isn't a father and his wife has been gone many years) the old man might be expected to be lonesome. "I should say I'm not," he declares emphatically. "Why, I've a million things to think about—to enjoy. One of them is the radio."

"Do you know what I think is the next logical step? Communication with these we call 'of the other world.' But I don't refer to anything bordering upon spiritualism. I mean actual, scientific wireless tuning in to sound waves—maybe thought waves, that they will catch and understand. That is not far off. I'd bet—well, I mean on it," and "Dad" laughed and puffed meditatively.

"Another thing I sit here and think about," he said, "is how much freer everybody seems nowadays. That's good—fine, and folks should not get pessimistic about it. The young folks for instance—some think they're worse than they used to be. Nothing of the sort. They're really not as wild as they used to be—I was a pretty wild youngster myself and I ought to know. The big difference is that they're frank and open about it nowadays. That's best anyway."

"I'm not planning to be a 100," the old man continued, "I'm just so blessed, everybody is so good to me—look at those birthday flowers and candy and cigars and the doctor who is my good friend and comes in every few hours and the nurses who take me walking and the friends who stop in and visit. No, I'm not planning to be a 100—I'm just sittin' here happy and planning to be a 110!"—and the old man laughed heartily.
