

POLICE ADVANCE REVENGE THEORY IN CARTER CASE

Seeking Man Who Threatened to Get Officers After Sentence.

Police turned to the "revenge" motive today in an effort to solve the identity of the slayer of Patrolman Charles E. Carter, 30, of 2014 Brookside Ave.

Officers were seeking the man whose personal dislike for police in general was voiced in municipal court in January, when he threatened to "get" the police after Judge Paul Wetters had fined him $10. The jurist, overhearing the remark, added a thirty-day jail sentence.

Although Officer Carter did not become a member of the force until March 22, officials, realizing that any policeman would have been a welcome target for the gun of the man who made the threat, began search for the suspect.

Trained to House

Sgt. Frank Reilly and a squad of police Monday trailed the movements of the man from the time he was seen Saturday morning in a restaurant in the vicinity where the fatal shooting took place in the 500 block E. Court St. to the home of a friend, where he was last seen early Monday. There the trail was lost.

The "suspect" went to the home of a friend Sunday noon, and asked for a place to stay, Reilly said. He was intoxicated and remained until Monday morning when the host gave him 75 cents and a clean shirt and sent him away. The host told Reilly his guest talked about the slaying of the policeman but because of his intoxicated condition he paid no attention to the story.

Another clew led police to a nearby town. A watch is being maintained there for a man police believe may have shot Carter. He has not returned home since he left Saturday to visit in Indianapolis.

All Police Active

Police Chief Claude F. Johnson issued orders again today that every policeman must keep a close watch for clews.

Reilly arrested a man early today and slated him at city prison under $500 vagrancy bond. He is said to be a pal of the man who threatened "to get the police." He refused to give any information that might lead to the man they sought.

If You Need a Tonic,

Mrs. Mary Bauer

"As a tonic to build a woman up I have never found anything to equal Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. I was in a weakened and run-down state of health, was nervous and restless, could not sleep nights, I had pains through my head, my limbs ached, I was run-down in every way, but after taking a couple of bottles of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription I was feeling fine, my strength returned, my nerves quieted down, the pains in my head left me, my limbs quit aching and I was in as good condition as one could wish to be."—Mrs. Mary Bauer, 403 Washington St., Elkhart, Ind.

Funeral services for Officer Carter will be held at the residence Wednesday at 2 p. m. and burial will follow in Memorial cemetery. Six policemen have been chosen pallbearers. They are Patrolmen Ross, who was with Officer Carter in the pistol battle with the drunken man, and Patrolmen Sheehan, R. Wilkerson, Gaither, Chilcote and Bushong.

'WILL O' WISP' MEN BOLSTERING BIG BAYOU DIKE

Louisiana Residents Refuse to Quit Homes Until Routed by Flood.

By United Press

Levees in southern Louisiana still were holding today as workers continued doggedly to build sand bag tops on the dikes in a seemingly hopeless attempt to avert the threatening flood.

Maximum danger will not be reached until tomorrow, or later, with the crest at the big bend along Bayou Des Glaives. Thirteen parishes in the south-central part of the State—one of the greatest sugar cane belts of the world—were threatened.

Residents of the Louisiana valley continued to refuse pleas to evacuate before it is too late. A few have left, but the majority chose to remain until driven from their homes by the water.

Wave washes along the bayou and on the Mississippi near Baton Rouge have been checked without serious damage.

The Mississippi was falling from Natchez, but between Anxola and New Orleans it is rising at the rate of one-tenth of a foot a day. The water level at New Orleans is stationary and the city is believed free from serious danger.

TWO DRIVER ARRESTS

Pair Nabbed When Autos Hit Other Cars—One Damaged.

Police charged Charles F. Wilstach, 106 W. North St., and Cary Brooks, 50, of 617 N. Alabama St., with driving autos while intoxicated Monday night.

Brooks is alleged to have attempted to drive his auto through a space much too small at 222 E. Walnut St., and damaged a parked auto, property of Clyde Hauhan, 319 E. Forty-second St.

Wilstach's auto collided with one driven by Leo Keller, 560 N. Beville, at Ft. Wayne Ave. and Delaware St., police said.

LAKE MAY YIELD HOOSIER'S BODY

Prisoner Says Group Threw Tucker in Water.

By United Press

WARSAW, Ind., May 10.—Center Lake, near Warsaw, is being dragged today in the hope of recovering the body of Franklin Tucker, 57, Warsaw cigar store clerk, who was murdered Jan. 28.

Renewed activity in the search for the body resulted from a statement made today at the Indiana Reformatory by Robert Sharp, Elkhart, serving a sentence of two to four years on a charge of conspiring to rob Tucker.

The statement was to the effect that Tucker was killed, his body weighted and thrown into the lake. It was made in the presence of Sheriff Frank McKill of Kosciusko County, Chief of Police Winebrenner, Warsaw, and Walter Brubaker, Warsaw attorney.

Sharp charged that Vern Martin and Martin Van Buren Ross, both of Elkhart, in jail here awaiting trial on charges of conspiring to rob Tucker, got $4,500 from the slain man. Sharp has agreed to come before the Kosciusko County grand jury to make similar charges. He may be brought here to go before the jury, which reconvenes Saturday for further Tucker case consideration.

COLISEUM ACTION SOON

Mayor Duval Expects to Decide on Financing in Few Days.

Final decision on financing the municipal downtown coliseum will be reached within a few days by Mayor Duval after conference with his cabinet.

The plan of building, size and site were unsettled today following a lengthy conference Monday between the mayor and the convention bureau coliseum committee.

Duval is anxious to incorporate several features of the Minneapolis building into the proposed structure.

Plan Mailmen's Meet

Preparations are under way for the holding of the Indianapolis meeting of the new Tri-State Postmaster's Association, scheduled for July 20 and 21, Postmaster Robert H. Bryson has announced. A committee of postmasters, who will handle plans for the meeting, has already been appointed, Bryson said.

Persons at Fairfax Christian Church Almost Marooned.

Rain Monday night "drowned" the Fairfax Christian Church, Berwick Ave. and W. North St.

The intersection in front of the church is lower than surrounding ground and a pond of water greeted young folks when they attempted to leave the building Monday night after practicing for a play.

More than twenty-five persons who were at the church were forced to climb out a rear window to get to their homes. The entrance steps were covered with water.

North St. has been graded and the street bed lowered in grading for sidewalks and curbing, causing water to flow toward the intersection. There are no sewers to carry the water.

Robert Kelley, 18, of 543 Moreland St., was driving a friend home about 10 p. m. and struck the lake. The street is so bad he could not turn his car around so he decided to plunge it through. He struck a hole, letting the rear wheels drop. Kelly and Lawrence Kinsey, 602 Alton St., worked late into the night to get the car out, but the waters continued to rise to a four-foot depth. Neighbors turned out to assist the marooned motorist. They abandoned the task at 3 a. m., and went back at daybreak. At noon they had made little progress.

J. W. Pedigo, 546 Exeter St., grandfather of the youth in the picture, said the street level had been lowered and cinders removed when the street was graded two weeks ago.

J. H. Hunt of the General Motors research corporation, president of the S. A. E., will make the principal address.

Duke of Leeds Dies

By United Press

LONDON, May 10.—The Duke of Leeds, 62, tenth of his line, died today. The eleventh duke is the duke's son, the Marquis of Carmarthen, 26, who was the next to last of alleged fiances of Mary Landon Baker of Chicago. The dukedom of Leeds was conferred in 1694 and its estates comprise about 24,300 acres.

JACKSON ENTERS DENIAL IN 'STEVE' GARNISHEE CASE

Attorney General Gilliom Acts for Governor as Friend.

Governor Ed Jackson today filed a written denial to charges that he has property belonging to D. C. Stephenson, former Indiana klan dragon, now serving life sentence in Michigan City prison for murder of a girl. The Governor declares he holds no money, property or credits of Stephenson's and is in no way indebted to him.

The answer was filed before Judge James Leathers in Superior Court, in answer to charges made by Mrs. Nettie Stephenson Brehm, of Oklahoma City, Okla., who is asking judgment of $10,000 against Stephenson's former husband, for support of their daughter, Florence Catherine.

Mrs. Martha Dickinson of Seymour, confidante of Stephenson, was also named in the garnishment affidavits filed by Attorney Floyd Mattice for Mrs. Brehm, in which he seeks to recover property she alleges they hold.

Governor Must Appear

Filing of the denial will not eliminate Jackson's appearance before Judge Leathers on May 18, when Attorney Mattice expects to question the Governor "about certain money and automobiles."

Mrs. Dickinson, who held Steve's power of attorney, and who has visited Stephenson at Michigan City as well as doing "missionary work" for him, is ordered to appear before Judge Leathers on May 20.

Jackson's denial was prepared by Attorney General Arthur L. Gilliom, as a friend.

That Gilliom does not wish to become connected with the case in any way as attorney general was shown when, after he learned that the statement, bearing Jackson's signature, had been filed by an assistant attorney general in a folder from his own office, Gilliom ordered Harry Gault, an assistant, to the courthouse, where his name and title were scratched from the envelope.

No attorney has made an appearance for Jackson, and in view of Gilliom's preparation of the statement it is believed that the Governor will engage no counsel.

"Pieces-of-Eight" Hint Gory Murder

By United Press

LONDON, May 10.—The dismembered body of a nude woman, age 20 to 30, was found today in a black leather trunk in the checkroom of Charing Cross station.

Head and limbs had been severed from the body, which had been cut unskillfully into eight pieces. The pieces were wrapped in brown paper.

A well-dressed man who arrived at the station in a taxi checked the trunk Friday. Scotland Yard detectives opened the trunk. No marks of identity were found. It appeared that the woman had been dead about thirty days. The yard is looking for the taxi driver.

Love's Wreckage

The Tragic Story of a Woman's Flaming Battle for Her Husband's Love

WHEN Babs married Dick, she thought nothing could ever rob her of her husband's love. Was she not a devoted and faithful wife? Did she not run her house with economy and efficiency, never nagging and complaining when things went wrong? Was she not constantly thinking and planning the little things she could do to add to her husband's comfort and enjoyment of life?

And when the baby came, bringing multiplied cares and worries, did she not sacrifice her own pleasures, and slave and save, that Dick might not worry at home?

It never occurred to her that a man wants a woman to keep step with him, to guard her personal appearance, and improve herself mentally and physically. She half realized her neglect in matters of dress; in the care of her hands and skin; that she was getting old—womanish; that she had lost interest in the occasional "evening out" which Dick begged her to share with him.

Babs had her baby, her home. She thought nothing else mattered—until that ghastly day when she discovered that Dick had given his love to another; that it was not a momentary infatuation, but a true, sincere love for a woman who was as wise as she was beautiful and good.

Dazed, bewildered, dumb with anguish, poor Babs groped blindly, frantically, for a way out. Was Dick lost to her forever? Could she yet salvage a little happiness from the wreck she had made of her home?

Driven to desperation, Babs made a decision that was to plunge her into a battle of souls the like of which she had never dreamed. Don't miss her story, "The Woman Who Lost Step," in True Story Magazine for June.

THE widespread, steadily growing popularity of this great magazine is ample proof of our oft-repeated statement that life itself is always more dramatically thrilling than mere fiction can ever be. In its pages, human experience is seen at its best and its worst.

Its writers have lived—have scaled the heights of happiness and have plumbed the depths of despair. Most of all they have learned, through trial and error, the truth about life, and are willing to bare their souls for the benefit of others. Read in June True Story, for example:

"The Mad Whirl"—Since Jean and Terry had grown up together, Jean's parents assumed that of course they would marry. The fact that Jean was now in love with her old playmate, and that her response to his caresses was of a most perfunctory sort, did not seem to enter into the matter. Jean, they said, would do as she was told — and Terry agreed with them. But they were to learn to what desperate lengths a girl will go when stirred to revolt against such tyranny.

"The Song of Satan"—Francesca had all that any woman could desire to make her happy—a loving husband, a comfortable home, an adorable child. Then came Alfredo — who seemed to possess every attribute of emotional fire and physical beauty that her husband had not. And as they looked into each other's eyes, as their hands touched, something happened in Francesca's soul. Her own story of the frightful struggle she made to resist the seductive lure of Alfredo's matchless love-making, and its dramatic outcome, will grip your interest and tug at your heartstrings.

"When a Woman Wills"—Jane was eighteen when she became private secretary to George Redden—old enough, it would seem, to know right from wrong. Actually she was pathetically ignorant of life and of men — and Redden was the most magnetic, most fascinating, most forceful personality she had ever known. So she believed him when he told her of his unhappy home life and ended by feeling terribly sorry for him. Too late she awakened to her own frightful peril. A startling true-life narrative.
