

Alice Hedrick Is Bride of Donald G. Ball in Early June Wedding at Church

A BEAUTIFUL early June church wedding was that of Miss Alice Hedrick, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Reese J. Hedrick, 3678 N. Delaware St., who became the bride of Donald G. Ball at the Tabernacle Presbyterian Church Wednesday evening.

Before an altar banked with palms, cibotium ferns, and lighted by seven-branch candleabra, the Rev. J. Ambrose Dunkle, church pastor, pronounced the ceremony. Paul R. Matthews, organist, played "To a Wild Rose" for the precessional and Mendelssohn's wedding march for recessional.

Gowns of Georgette

The bridesmaids, Miss Elizabeth Mackey, Miss Florence Wilson and Miss Irma Schnabel, wore gowns of georgette and lace, fashioned alike with tight bodies and bouffant skirts. Tulle, large, picture hats and slippers harmonized with their gowns, as did their arm bouquets, tied with tulle. Miss Schnabel was gowned in yellow, Miss Wilson in orchid, and Miss Mackey in pale shell pink.

The matron of honor, Mrs. Victor Nicholson, wore a gown of georgette in shades of green and a large, picture hat of gold cloth over green. She carried Columbine roses. Miss Katherine Hedrick, sister of the bride, acted as ring bearer and was gowned in light pink taffeta. Little Elizabeth Ann North, and Mary Ellen Plymire, flower girls, were in ruffled gowns of combined taffeta and georgette.

Given by Father

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore white bridal satin, fashioned with tight bodice waist, beaded in seed pearls and crystals, and bouffant skirt. Her cap-shaped, tulle veil was arranged with orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of bride roses and lilies of the valley.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the Marott Hotel. Mr. and Mrs. Ball left on a trip to Florida. They will be at home at 3678 N. Delaware St., after June 16.

There came a time during the World War when Charles' father was forced to devote practically his entire time to affairs in Washington and away from home. Conduct of the little farm, where the family lived, accordingly fell upon Charles. He took hold of it in his customary thorough manner, but soon decided that there was not enough use made of mechanical help. He set about to remedy the defect.

When he finished almost everything around the farm and farm house was mechanically operated and the farm became a center of much interest in the community.

About that time he was graduated from the Little Falls High School and entered the University of Wisconsin. He began the study of mechanical engineering, but college was not to Lindbergh's liking. He felt he was not learning there the things he wanted to know.

He stood well in mathematics and was an eager experimenter in the laboratories. But it developed that his interest in experiments was gone when he completed the laboratory work. He disliked writing up his notes and he was continually behind. His main interest in college was in the pistol shooting competitions.

He took only a small part in college life, preferring to be by himself and to follow his own dictates. Finally he gave up college in 1921, without completing his course, and soon thereafter began his amazing career as an aviator.

Having a sense of humor is just seeing things in their right proportions and not making mountains out of mole hills. Lucky the man who possesses a wife with this quality!

By Martha Lee

Do women lack a sense of humor? Men sometimes say so, and point out that this causes us to make tragedies out of trifles. That's not so far fetched.

Many is the woman, for instance, who has wrecked her marriage, because she took her husband too seriously.

She got tragical, or hysterical, if he so much as glanced at another woman, or played a stray game of poker, or failed to come home at the exact hour she expected him.

This type of woman takes her children too seriously. They wear her out and she sends them from her by nagging and seeing dreadful import in the fact that they do not act and dress like their grandparents.

Thinks of Business

In honor of Miss Irma Green, who will be married to Robert Challis on June 4, Mrs. W. Leonard, 4516 E. Washington St., entertained Wednesday evening with a miscellaneous shower.

She was assisted by Mrs. Charles Green. The house was charmingly decorated in flowers of pastel shades and with tapers in crystal holders. Sweet peas formed the table decorations.

The gifts were presented to the bride-elect in a large decorated basket carried by little Margie Ann Leonard and little Paul Black, who were dressed as bride and groom. Covers at tea time were laid for twenty-five guests.

The trouble is that I do not believe he told me if I am doing right or not. I have been married to him for a year and I would not have believed that I would ever have left my husband in this little time as I thought we would be together forever.
