

COUNTY BOASTS ONE AUTO TO FOUR PERSONS

Ratio Is Higher Than One to Five Shown for United States.

While there is one automobile for every five persons in the United States, according to figures in the current issue of "Barron's Financial Weekly," figures at the licensing bureau at the Statehouse indicate that there was one pleasure car for approximately every four Marion County citizens.

The compilation is for 1926, and while the county figures are not available for the first six months of this year, the State as a whole shows an increase of 43,563.

World Survey Made

Last year's Marion County total given by Bureau Director Mark Rhoads was 100,428 passenger cars, 22,146 trucks, 778 motorcycles and 10,152 licensed chauffeurs. Total passenger cars for the State was 663,540. Thus far this year it is 641,079, an increase of 43,563 for the first six months of last year. The figures are approximate, Rhoads explained, being taken from the various county licensing branches.

"A world survey shows a car to every sixty-six persons," Barron's reads. "About 95 percent, or 27,650,267, of all cars registered were of American manufacture."

"Canada and Hawaii rank second to United States in proportion of population owning automobiles, with one in eleven persons."

FLIERS OFF TO BOSTON

Maitland and Hegenberger Leave Nation's Capital.

WASHINGTON, July 22.—Lieutenants Lester J. Maitland and Albert Hegenberger, Hawaiian fliers, left at 12 p. m. today in a trim-motored Army transport plane for Boston. The flight will take about six hours.

While here the fliers received citations for the Distinguished Flying Cross, and the praise of Army officials, Secretary of State Kellogg, Secretary of the Navy Wilbur, General Pershing and other officials.

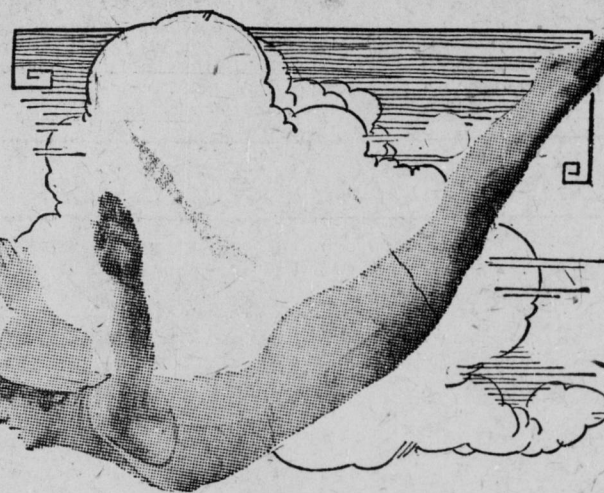

Bank Bandits Escape

PARAGON, Ind., July 22.—Evidently a pursuing posse only by the most skilled driving, three bandits who robbed the Paragon State Bank of $2,000 Thursday had made good their escape today. At times the pursuers were almost in sight of the fugitives, but the gang's automobile finally shot ahead and is believed to have vanished down a side road.

THREE DISTINCT STEPS SEEN IN MAKING SWAN DIVE

THE swan dive is one of the dives that form the foundation of the diver-to-be. The swan dive consists of three important factors, namely the take-off, form in the air, and entry in the water.

The take-off must be smooth and lively, using at least three steps, the last step being a jump. Then swing the arms from a position extended even with the shoulders, downward and upward in front of the body into the swan position. This arm action helps the diver in attaining height.

When leaving the board upward and outward, the body must be rigid and graceful. All movements must be easy and feel natural.

The back should be well arched, head up, arms extended to the sides parallel with the shoulders, ankles together and the toes well pointed.

Just before entering the water the arms are brought above the head with fingers rigid. Keep the body rigid till the dive is completed.

Next: The Back Dive.

OTHER AIRLINE MAY SEEK MAIL

Competition for Indianapolis Contract Is Likely.

More than one bid on the contract for the new Cincinnati-Chicago air mail route by way of Indianapolis may be submitted, it was said following a meeting of W. Irving Glover, second assistant postmaster general, with George T. Bryant of Central Airways, Inc., Thursday.

Embree Aircraft Corp., of Cincinnati, which holds the Cleveland, Cincinnati, Louisville air mail contract, is considering a bid for the Cincinnati-Chicago contract, it was reported.

Glover announced Wednesday, during the Tri-State Postmasters Association convention, that bids for the air mail route through Indianapolis will be received at Washington, D. C., Aug. 18.

The bids will be submitted on a pondage basis the same as railway Central Airways is considering bidding.

ATTACKS 'SPINE CURE'

"Before and After" Picture in Ad Draws Ire of U. S.

WASHINGTON, July 22.—The Federal trade commission today ordered Hobart Bradstreet, Inc., Chicago, to discontinue "false and misleading advertising" used in selling a course of physical exercises called "spine motion."

One of the widely printed advertisements to which the commission objected showed a man "before" and five weeks "after" taking the course. The improvement in appearance was due to the use of light extremes and retouching, not to spine motion, the commission found.

Doctor Passes

Dr. W. H. Foreman

W. H. Foreman Victim of Heart Attack at Hospital.

After an illness of less than three days, Dr. W. H. Foreman, widely-known physician, died early today at the Indiana Christian Hospital.

Dr. Foreman was the victim of a heart attack Tuesday morning at the hospital.

Serving as a member of the board of health during the Shank administration, Dr. Foreman was a recognized authority on gastroenterology and dietetics.

He served on the medical staffs of several hospitals and was associate professor on the faculty of the Indiana University school of medicine. From 1901 to 1910 he served as professor of physicians and surgeons at Indiana.

He maintained an office here at 702 Medical Arts building and a residence at Haverstick Park on White River, north of Broad Ripple. He leaves his widow, Mrs. Willie Foreman, and two daughters, Mrs. Charles Binkley and Mrs. Clarence Wilkinson, both of Indianapolis.

'Brewing Made Easy' or 'Where Papa Bought It'

Law of Demand and Supply Works Inexorably in All Things.

"There are more things 'neath heaven and earth, Horatio, than in your poor philosophy."

Thus spake Hamlet.

Once upon a time the beer-drinking fathers of Indianapolis, when they came home from work tired and thirsty on a hot summer day, would send Johnny to buy a pall of beer.

These days they send Johnny to the nearest grocery or five and ten-cent store to buy materials and blithely make their own.

For most every grocery in Indianapolis, and particularly the chain stores, carry in stock and sell large quantities of the necessary malt, all prepared with the proper mixture of hops and other ingredients to make home brew beer.

And the five and ten-cent stores, always quick to meet the public demand, carry full equipment and weekly are introducing new labor-saving devices to make the home-brewer's task easier and the product of his stove and far more like Milwaukee's best of yore olden days.

Step into any of these stores, and view the beer counter display. But don't ask a store official directions to the beer counter. You'll be greeted with an icy stare and directions to the bottling goods counter.

For it might be considered illegal for a store to sell and display material for beer making. And it would be contrary to law for the writer of this to tell you how to make beer, if he knew—which of course he doesn't.

But there is nothing contrary to law, at least as it is enforced, for a store to do a good business in: Bottles and caps with which you might want to bottle some innocent fruit juices.

Or rubber hose and various siphon attachments to filter the brew as it passes into the bottles which might be used to stock up some invigorating but mild root beer.

Or a can of malt, costing from 20 to 50 cents, which might be used, as the label suggests, to sweeten most any kind of bakery product.

Or a three-gallon jar, an ideal receptacle for the mixture while in the fermentation process, but which could be used to soak the baby's clothes or to make sauerkraut.

Or a funnel to help in the bottling, but which also would be fine for gasoline.

Or a capper which will tighten the cap on the bottle so no damaging air may enter, but which might do that for a bottle of pop.

One store even displays, and sells for one quarter, an alcohol gauge with directions attached, which explains that the instrument when properly used, while the brew is fermenting, will show what percentage of alcohol it will contain when bottled and allowed to stand.

The directions discreetly remind that one-half of 1 per cent is the legal limit of alcohol allowed by law. But the gauge is graded to show up to 6 or 8 per cent.

INVITED BACK TO SPAIN

LONDON, July 22.—The Westminster Gazette understands that the Prince of Wales recently was invited by King Alfonso to visit Spain after he returns from Canada and that he probably will accept.

GARY VISITED BY STATE OFFICIALS

Public Service Commissioners to Inspect Projects.

Public service commissioners left today for Gary over the Big Four. They will be met at Englewood by a special car of the Gary Traction Company and during the day will visit various utility projects.

The Gary Chamber of Commerce has invited them to be their guests while in the city and have arranged a special luncheon.

Weekly conference of the commission was held Thursday afternoon. Approval was given to a $1,979,200 5 per cent first mortgage bond issue and a $15,000 common stock issue of the Interstate Public Service Company.

Permission was given the Indiana Service Corporation to increase its preferred stock from 40,000 to 70,000 shares and common from 500,000 to 850,000 shares. Chicago, South Shore & South Bend Railroad Company was authorized to issue $710,000 par value equipment trust certificates.

Motion asking the commission to indefinitely postpone hearing on the proposed Guilford Ave. bus route, petitioned for by the Peoples Motor Coach Company, was filed by A. Smith Bowman, company president. This action was taken pending appeal of the proposed bus merger by purchase of the Peoples company by the Indianapolis Street Railway for $500,000, which was turned down by the commission.
