

MRS. REMUS LOVE AFFAIR WITH DODGE IS CHARGED

QUIZ MYSTERY WOMAN ABOUT AGENT OF U. S.

Justice Department Sleuth 'Played Around' With Wife, She Says.

TOGETHER AT HOTEL

Bellboy Declares He Saw Pair in Same Room at Cleveland.

CHICAGO, Oct. 27.—The "mystery woman" in the George Remus case swore to a deposition today in which she lent strong support to Remus' charges that his wife, Mrs. Imogene Remus, had engaged in a love affair with Franklin Dodge, prohibition agent, while Remus was in jail on bootlegging charges.

The mystery woman, whose identity had been carefully hidden until today, was Mrs. Olive Webber Long, a sister of Mrs. George Heicher, an intimate friend of Mrs. Remus.

Mrs. Long swore that she heard a telephone conversation between Mrs. Remus and Dodge in which expressions of affection abounded, and said Mrs. Remus told her she was in love with Dodge.

Said She'd 'Fix Him'

Mrs. Long said she called on Mrs. Remus in a hotel here the fall of 1924 or 1925, the night after Remus was released from jail at Portsmouth, Ohio, where he served a term in connection with activities gained for him the title of 'millionaire bootlegger.'

Mrs. Remus, she said, was telephoning to her mother in Cincinnati. Mrs. Long said she heard Mrs. Remus say, "Don't worry, I'll fix him."

Samuel Charles Clapper, bellboy at a hotel here, testified he had seen Franklin Dodge Jr. and a woman later pointed out to him as Mrs. Remus in a room of the Hollenden Hotel, Cleveland.

Clapper said he then was night clerk of the hotel and knew Remus well. At 2 a. m., Feb. 26, 1925, he said, Fred Yocke, night watchman, reported to him that a man and woman were talking in a certain room.

Saw Woman in Bed

At 3 a. m. the watchman reported they still were talking. Clapper said he went to the room and knocked. After about fifteen minutes, he said, Dodge came to the door carrying his shoes. Clapper said he saw the woman in bed.

She said, he testified, that she had a sick headache and Dodge was caring for her. Dodge told him, Clapper said, he intended to marry the woman.

Clapper identified a picture of Mrs. Remus as the woman whom he had seen in bed and said he also recognized her as the same woman when she had been pointed out to him some time after the hotel episode.

SCHOOL HEAD MAKES FINAL BUDGET PLEAS

Represents Tax Board for Cut of 43 Cents in Levy.

"The State tax board is determined to set the Indianapolis city school rate at $1.02 and it doesn't give a damn about the result."

This was the assertion of President Theodore Vonnegut of the school board before the tax commissioners today, accompanied by other school officials, in a final effort to save the budget. Their original budget called for a $1.45 tax levy.

The 43-cent cut is excessive, the schoolmen declare.

The final order has not been made by the tax board, but it appeared certain that they would stick to $1.02. This would allow the special fund 30 cents; tuition, from which salaries are paid, 65 cents; library, 6 cents; and kindergarten, 1 cent.

WINS $12,000 DAMAGES

Former Butler Star to Pay for Automobile Crash.

Carl W. Rafert, 61, was awarded $12,000 damages in Superior Court today against Robert Wakefield, 22, of Ben Davis, a former Butler University basketball star.

Rafert suffered a broken arm and leg, and subsequently underwent amputation of one leg, when struck by Wakefield's auto, Sept. 21, 1926, as he was alighting from a street car at W. Washington and Blackford Sts. Wakefield was charged with speeding and reckless driving.

HOOSIER GIVEN MEDAL

Soldier From Kokomo Showed Bravery in Explosion Disaster.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27.—Staff Sergeant Arlie L. Downey, Kokomo, Ind., has been awarded the soldiers' medal among others who took part in rescue work during the Lake Denmark (N. J.) arsenal explosion in May, 1926, for exceptional bravery.

Downey, seeing a woman lying near the scene of the heaviest explosions, ran to her aid while the air was still filled with flying shells and magazines were exploding continuously, carried her to safety with the aid of two other men. He is now stationed at the ordnance school here.

CLERGY VOTES AGAINST DRYS

Episcopalians Find Volstead Act Unsatisfactory.

NEW YORK, Oct. 27.—In 2,500 responses to a questionnaire sent out to 5,000 clergymen of the Protestant Episcopal Church the majority opinion was against prohibition, the Church Temperance Society conducting the poll announced today.

The society caused some dissension when it made a similar survey eighteen months ago. It has taken a stand against regulation of intemperance by legislation.

The vote on various questions follows:

"Regardless of one's attitude toward the use of liquor, do you believe a prohibition law offers the best solution for the problem of intemperance?" "Yes," 624; "no," 1,138.

"Should the Volstead act be modified?" "Yes," 1,032; "no," 593.

"Is prohibition a success in your locality?" "Yes," 445; "no," 745.

"Have we had the law long enough for a fair trial?" "Yes," 950; "no," 621.

"Should the Eighteenth Amendment be repealed?" "Yes," 825; "no," 793.

In commenting up the survey, the Rev. Charles A. Livingston, chairman of the society's publicity committee, said "the progress against prohibition is very satisfactory."

CHINESE BEATS FT. WAYNE GIRL, KILLS HIMSELF

Yellow Man's Spurned Love for White Girl Ends Tragically.

FT. WAYNE, Ind., Oct. 27.—The line from Kipling, "For east is east and west is west, and never the twain shall meet," is only a repetition of an old teaching in the Orient, and Allen Young, 24, Americanized Chinese, knew that. But he thought his ancestors unwise. Did not the United States tell its citizens that all men are free and equal? It did, and for two years Young wooed Miss Korea Weeks, 17, and pretty.

There was no response. The American girl was inexperienced, and did not know exactly how to go about it, so the manner in which she repulsed her Oriental suitor did not impress him as being final, and he kept courting.

Realized Coldness
There came a day when Young, uneasily wondering whether hope ever was to be rewarded, for he had made no progress and it came to him that Miss Korea was colder than ever toward him.

What other thoughts ran through his American-trained Oriental mind may only be guessed except by clues contained in the note he left in his apartment Wednesday night when the news came to him that Miss Korea was about to go to Detroit.

"I love American girl," the stilted handwriting read. "I love her for two years, but I am under her feet and now I go to her for last time."

Unconscious in Bedroom

It was the last time. Unconscious from a blow, Miss Korea was found today in the bedroom of her home—she rooms with her brother-in-law, Leslie Eisenhut. Later, Young's body was found in a barn back of the Eisenhut home, where he had committed suicide by hanging.

Miss Korea could not speak and tell what happened. But it was apparent that she had been struck a cruel blow on the head while asleep and a hammer near by indicated how it was done.

Perhaps Young's ancestors will understand his deed was one of love, an appreciation that will not occur to the occidental. Perhaps Young's failure to win Miss Korea's love in life had determined him that they should leave the world together in death.

There seems to have been no other motive. But Young's purpose, if such it was, will not be realized, for although she is suffering from shock, Miss Korea probably will recover.

'Phoney'

Wrong Number Calls Keep County File Clerk in 'Good' Humor.

HAVE you any fresh pig hearts today?
"Who, me?"
"I say, have you any fresh pig hearts today?"

"I am sorry, but this is the county clerk's office."

This was the conversation between Louis Meyers, county file clerk and some unknown over the telephone.

"Now wouldn't that jar you?" Meyers asked as he hung up the receiver. "I guess I'd better keep the phone near at hand because somebody will be calling in a few minutes to find out what time the next train leaves for Chicago."

Meyers gets as many odd calls as an information desk. They are not purposely-made calls, but come from errors on the part of callers and phone operators.

"They ask anything and everything," he continued. "What I need is a city directory, market prices and a train schedule and then maybe I could help. I get as many calls for the Statehouse as I do for my office."

MRS. STILLMAN IN AIR

Trip From Quebec Lodge Is Cut By Two Days in Plane.

NEW YORK, Oct. 27.—To the ranks of aviation enthusiasts today was added the name of Mrs. Anne U. Stillman, who has found that she can shorten by two days the trip from her lodge at Grand Anse, Que., to her estate at Pleasantville, N. Y.

Mrs. Stillman and her daughter, Mrs. Henry P. Davison, flew the 700 miles in a hydroplane yesterday, completing the trip in less than six hours. It was believed that the capitalist's wife would use aerial commutation hereafter.

Sues for $100,000 When Actress Says, 'You Wop'

NEW YORK, Oct. 27.—"You wop, you big wop," cried Hope Hampton in her late Broadway musical comedy, "The Princess," and Guido Ciccolini almost fell out of his seat.

Because his feelings were hurt, Ciccolini, a singer, has brought suit against the actress, her husband, and the producer of the show to collect $100,000.

In his complaint, Ciccolini alleges the principal male character in "The Princess" has been named "Ciccolini," that he is indirectly held up to ridicule by the lines; and that $100,000 and an injunction against road showings are all that will satisfy him.

NEW CRUSADER JOINS 'BIG BILL'

German-American Editor Hits 'British Conspiracy.'

CHICAGO, Oct. 27.—A brand new star today stepped into the spotlight of Chicago's drama, "School-books and Kings," and literally stole the show from Mayor William Hale Thompson, heretofore the leading character.

The newest performer, Frederick F. Schrader, 71-year-old German-American magazine editor, believes, like Thompson, that "King George should be chased out of American schools and libraries."

He believes it so firmly that he has astounded even Thompson's most ardent followers with his blunt condemnation of "British tactics in obtaining a foothold in this country."

Undaunted by a barrage of attacks turned on him by opponents of Thompson, he tore loose with statements far stronger than any yet made by the most vigorous backers of the "America First" movement.

Schrader was brought into the campaign by Thompson to aid in the prosecution of Superintendent of Schools William McAndrew, who is on trial on charges of "favoring England in schoolwork."

McAndrew's trial again was recessed yesterday and will reopen Nov. 2.

WAIVES QUIZ IN STABBING CASE

Lucid Faces Indictment for Kin's Murder.

George Lucid, 35, of 926 Prospect St., today awaited grand jury indictment for murder after waiving preliminary hearing in municipal court Wednesday afternoon before Special Judge William Faust.

Lucid is charged with having fatally stabbed his brother-in-law, Leo Dewey Carpenter, 29, of 2021 Minnesota St., with a penknife, following a beer party Tuesday night at the home of George Lee, 1229 Laurel St.

Relatives told police that Lucid bore a grudge against Carpenter, who, as a "stool pigeon" for Federal prohibition officers, had testified against one of Lucid's friends.

Lee, at whose home the argument is believed to have started, was sentenced to ninety days on the State farm and fined $100 and costs on a blind tiger charge by Judge Faust after Lucid's preliminary hearing.

SAVE MONEY ON ROADS BY NEW PROCESS

Tar Retread Enables County to Work; Cut Profits of Contractors.

Under a new process of road construction Marion County taxpayers will be saved 20 per cent on road building if county employees do the work rather than contractors, it was revealed today in a report of Highway Superintendent Luther Tex. The new treatment known as tar retread has undergone experiments in the county and will be recommended for future construction, Tex pointed out.

"The problem of maintaining roads in Marion County has resolved into two considerations," he said. "One is to make a road strong and safe for travel and the other to control the dust and loss of aggregate from the surface."

Used on W. Thirtieth St.

He pointed out that the new process was used on W. Thirtieth St., from Flackville to the Georgetown Rd., and south on this highway to Sixteenth St., in 1926. This road, during the period of the Speedway races, is "subject to extremely heavy traffic," Tex said. Recent tests of the road show it to be in good condition and that maintenance will cost only 10 cents a square yard, while actual construction costs 45 cents a square yard.

"This type of construction is adaptable to a county road program and cannot be handled by contract for within 20 per cent of the cost which it is now being constructed by county employees," he said.

Economical Resurfacing

Fifty-Sixth St., Cold Spring Rd., the Edgewood Rd. and the Allisonville Rd., from the State fairground to Fortieth St. and Keystone Ave. are so constructed.

The engineer's estimate for the Allisonville Rd. was $32,386. The total cost of this road, under the retread process was $9,426.40.

"It will be this department's intention, by these methods, to show how county commissioners economically can resurface secondary roads in the county and other sections of roads which can not be constructed otherwise because of petty blocks which are easy to place in the way of any procedure where political units are apt to be involved," the report read.

Agents, Not Conspirators, Brought in Rum, Says Jorman.

Cornelius Jorman of Indianapolis did not enter into a liquor conspiracy for which he was fined $500 and sentenced to two to fourteen years in prison by the Marion County Criminal Court, according to defense set out in his appeal, brief filed today in Supreme Court.

He merely hired Charles Henry, Henry Elliott, Clifford Caslette and Mary Belle Rhea to take his car to Chicago and bring back huge quantities of alcohol. The original car broke down on the return trip, so Jorman sent another which arrived in Indianapolis with the cargo, only to be picked up by Detective Jesse McMurtry.

"It takes two or more to make a conspiracy," the brief asserts, pointing out that the rum runners were mere servants whom Jorman ordered, rather than fellow conspirators.

BANKERS VISION GOOD BUSINESS

No Sign of Depression, Say Convention Visitors.

HOUSTON, Texas, Oct. 27.—An optimistic future for business was predicted by bankers attending the American Bankers' Association convention here.

"There is nothing to indicate we are likely to face anything in the nature of depression," a resolution adopted by the meeting said. "The country has been prosperous and all sections have continued to flourish."

The bankers also saw indications of improved farm conditions. "Agricultural conditions are improving," they said. "Though there is room for much betterment. Farmers are likely to have much less cause for complaint than in the past."

Congress was urged to take prompt action to provide for construction and maintenance of necessary flood control projects.

It also was recommended to Congress that cooperation taxes be decreased at the next session.
