

LINDY PUSHES AIR MAIL TO NEW RECORDS

Service He Deserted for Sea Dash Grew 41 Per Cent in Two Months.

BY DAN WILLIAMS
Scripps-Howard Staff Correspondent
NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—Last May a bold-haired young air mail filer strayed from his route and flew to Paris. And the air mail he had deserted grew 41 per cent the next two months.

It grew from 99,000 pounds in May to 140,000 in June, an increase of 41,000. It had grown only 2,000 pounds, or two per cent, the previous month. The two months' increase, still augmenting, means $130,000 more a month in postal revenue to Uncle Sam.

The young pilot who somehow influenced this odd phenomena is modest, but you know his name—Charles A. Lindbergh.

Volume Is Doubled

Postmaster General New gave out these figures at the conclusion of Lindbergh's three-months tour of forty-eight States. He revealed that the air mail last month was almost double its volume of the same month a year ago. He said also:

"At every office Colonel Lindbergh visited there was a substantial increase in the air mail, especially for the day of the visit. The net result, I am sure, will prove that a definite gain was made."

When Lindbergh returned from his European triumph to a tumultuous reception here he could have become a millionaire by nodding his head.

Spurs Easy Money

True, Lindbergh's homecoming did not impoverish him, but he turned his back on hundreds of thousands of proffered easy dollars to make this much less remunerative tour, an ordeal, it turned out, more strenuous than his trans-Atlantic flight.

And this tour, like his flight, was so skillfully executed that he was late at only one of eighty-two cities visited—he was delayed by a bad fog. There were no accidents, no overhauls, no forced landings and no delays of any sort from mechanical difficulties.

Harry Guggenheim, president of the Daniel Guggenheim Fund for the Promotion of Aviation, which sponsored the trip said, "Makes 147 Speeches

Lindbergh and his co-pilot, Lieutenant Love, demonstrated conclusively that well-constructed planes, maintained in good condition and carefully operated, provide as safe a means of transport as the automobile and the railroad train.

Some of the anguish to which Lindbergh's modest soul was subjected in his service to an ideal is measured in these figures:

Number of speeches made, 147. Number of dinners attended, 69. Number of miles paraded, 1,285. Number of women who saw plane, parade, etc., 30,000,000.

PREVENTS FIRE PANIC

Evansville Man Stops Woman's Leap—Gives Lecture to Theater Crowd.

By United Press
EVANSVILLE, Nov. 1.—Posey Beckman, 23, of this city, probably saved one woman's life and quieted an entire theater full of persons when they became panicky because someone shouted "fire." Beckman was sitting in the balcony of the theater when someone yelled "fire."

The crowd went wild and one woman started to jump over the railing to the lower floor, but Beckman grabbed her and sat her back down.

Then he stood up in one of the seats and started a lecture which occupied the interest of the crowd and all sat down and began to listen. It was finally discovered there wasn't a fire but someone below had fainted and caused the confusion.

U. S. INTEREST IN POLITICS IS SEEN LAGGING

William Allen White Calls 'Revelry' Tonic for Apathetic Voters.

By United Press
NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—Next year's presidential election will mean less to the people of the United States than any which has preceded it, judging by the opinion of William Allen White, one of the outstanding Republican leaders of the Middle West.

A trip to New York for a meeting of the Rockefeller Foundation was made the occasion by White for a scanning of the political horizon, a speech on western political viewpoints and a general summary of the low ebb in American political interest.

People Blamed for Failure

Seen by a United Press correspondent between the acts of "Revelry" just before that production closed its New York engagement, the Emporia, Kan., editor discussed reasons for failure of this sensational play to attract the public.

"The people of the United States just don't give a darn," said White, who editorially praised the book "Revelry" when it first appeared.

"Their apathy is partly a result of post-war disillusionment. 'Revelry' is quitting New York, is being taken off the boards in the United States, because the doings of our officials at Washington, D. C., fail to interest the people as they did ten years ago."

Samuel Hopkins Adams, author of "Revelry," said White, had "cracked the shell" and aroused the people of the country when he gave an inside picture of graft and corruption in Washington. By doing so, said the editor, Adams has rendered a service to the American people.

Praises Hoover

"But the people are not so much interested in political matters and the best leaders are not going in for politics as they did a decade ago," said White. "Our great men are more and more taking an interest in inventions, in business. I loath the word business, but it is unquestionably taking many of our best men from State pursuits."

As to presidential candidates, White praised the record of Herbert Hoover, whom he supported in the 1924 convention. He also admitted the great popularity of Governor Al Smith of New York, but refused to concede any great strength to Senator Reed of Missouri.
