

DEATH TAKES 'OLD SCHOOL' RAIL BUILDER

Marvin Huggett Helped Develop Chicago & Northwestern.

By United Press
CHICAGO, Jan. 6.—Marvin Huggett, one of the last of the old school railroad builders, died at his home at Lake Forest today Huggett suffered a paralytic stroke yesterday.

Huggett was president and chairman of the board of the Chicago & Northwestern system for more than thirty years, and since June, 1925, had been chairman of the finance committee.

He worked daily at his desk in the Chicago & Northwestern offices, and was preparing to go to his office Thursday when he suffered the stroke.

Veteran Rail Builder

A son, Marvin Huggett Jr., and three daughters, Mrs. Alfred Granger, Mrs. Charles S. Frost and Mrs. David Dangler, had spent the night at their father's bedside. He died shortly before 10 a. m.

Physicians said only his remarkable constitution kept Huggett alive for more than twenty-four hours after the stroke.

The veteran's railroad history went back to Civil War days. Chauncey M. Depew, chairman of the board of the New York Central, was the only contemporary of his early days who survived him in active duty.

He was given much of the credit for the growth of the Chicago & Northwestern.

Started Career at 15

Huggett started his railroad career at 15, as a telegrapher in the dispatcher's office. During the Civil War he once spent thirty-six consecutive hours at his key, handling messages dealing with mobilization and movement of troops.

In 1872 he became general manager of the Chicago & Northwestern, and a few years later he was made president.

His ninetieth birthday last August was celebrated by four generations of his family. At that time Huggett told interviewers he had only one maxim:

"Keep on working. Keep your interests alive." He obeyed his maxim until he suffered the stroke Thursday.

HUNT ARMY DESERTER

Prisoner at Fort Escapes While Cleaning Flues.

Ft. Benjamin Harrison officials today asked local police to locate Arthur M. Adams, alias John E. Lee, 19, of Erie, Pa., who escaped from guards Thursday while cleaning flues in one of the fort buildings. Adams was under arrest for fraud and desertion while a member of Battery A, 16th Field Artillery, stationed at Ft. Myers, Va., on Oct. 15, 1927. He enlisted again under the name of John E. Lee at Ft. Hayes, Ohio, on Oct. 15, and was assigned to Ft. Benjamin Harrison.

Thousands of Cattle Die to Keep Sides of Dirigibles 'All Puffed Out'

At the top is seen the big room in the Goodyear plant where the "goldbeaters' skin," affixed to rubberized fabric, is shaped into cells for the big dirigible. Below are three steps in the preparation of cattle tissues. At the left a worker is inspecting a tissue for imperfections; in the center the scraping process is shown, and at the right a girl is inspecting a tissue preparatory to applying it to the rubberized fabric.

Hundred Girls Search for Gas Cells for Navy's Los Angeles.

BY ALLENE SUMMER
NEA Service Writer

KRON, Jan. 6.—The king of the elves, in the old fairy tales, sent his pixies and gnomes and dwarfs out into the wide world to seek enough nightingales' tongues or bluebirds' breasts to be woven into a magic carpet for the king's daughter, the lovely princess.

This modern workaday world seems aways from the time of fairies, but in this city, perhaps the busiest industrial town in the country, a modern fairy tale is being lived which even the buzz and drone of modern machinery can not drown.

Hundreds of girls work in the great Goodyear Rubber Company here doing nothing but inspecting hundreds of thousands of cattle tissues in order that the dirigibles, those fantastic birds of the air, may ride safely from ocean to ocean.

Temperature Held Same

Nearly a hundred girls are now employed searching out perfect cattle inner tissues for new gas cells for the Navy dirigible Los Angeles. It takes tissues from 1,000,000 steers to make cells and envelope for a vacuum.

Can't Substitute for Nature

Nearly a hundred girls are now employed searching out perfect cattle inner tissues for new gas cells for the Navy dirigible Los Angeles. It takes tissues from 1,000,000 steers to make cells and envelope for a vacuum.

Science has spent hundreds and thousands of dollars, says J. R. Kelley, foreman of the skin room of the big plant, in a vain attempt to find a synthetic "something just as good" for the famous "goldbeater cloth," which is nothing but the casing of the lower intestine of cattle.

But the old-fashioned bossy cow has won out over grave men in their laboratories. No good substitute has yet been found.

And the great ships of the air fly because thousands and millions of cattle have died, giving their vital tissues to these inanimate "birds" of wood and steel and aluminum and silk.

Sent From Chicago

"Goldbeater cloth" was known to the alchemists of old. Medieval goldsmiths knew its worth.

One of Chicago's greatest packing houses sends direct to the Goodyear skin room this intestinal tissue from every beef butchered in its room and doors are carefully guarded and protected.

About 100 girls have been working on the new lining for the Los Angeles for the past eleven months.

A total of 15,000 yards of fabric must be lined with the cattle intestinal casings before the job is done.

Use Million Skins

About one million skins will be used, meaning that one million dead steers are represented in the big blimp. The cost of the skins alone will be about $85,000.

The process of transforming plain cattle tissues into dirigible gas cells is simpler than it is speedy.

The room where the skins are applied to the fabric is hermetically sealed. The only ventilation comes through a special pipe filled with air which has been put through a vacuum.

HICKMAN PLAYS INSANITY ROLE TO AID HIS PLEA

Youth Paces Cell, Pulls His Hair and 'Acts Up;' Hunt in Court.

By United Press
LOS ANGELES, Jan. 6.—With his life apparently depending on the condition of his mind, William Edward Hickman, confessed double murderer, today paced his cell, pulled his hair, twitched his hands and gave outward indications of troubled mentality.

Hickman yesterday entered a second plea of "not guilty by reason of insanity" when arraigned before Superior Judge Carlos Hardy for the slaying of Ivy Thomas, druggist. Trial date was set for Feb. 1.

He previously entered the same plea when arraigned for the murder of Marion Parker, trial date on that charge was set for Jan. 25.

Melby Hunt, 16, Hickman's alleged partner in the slaying, held up and murder Christmas Eve, 1926, was to be arraigned on the indictment today, a controversy as to legal jurisdiction over the youth prevented his officially pleading yesterday.

In commenting on Hickman's actions in his cell, Frank Deward, "the Fox's" jailor, said Hickman acted "for all the world like a man who was going to prove himself insane or die in the attempt."

Hunt when arraigned yesterday was remanded to the juvenile court because of his age. The juvenile court promptly turned him back to the Superior Court to face the murder charge and Hunt entered a plea of not guilty.

The increase was effected through reductions in operating expense.

Although November gross earnings were $435,917, a decrease of $23,020, in comparison with the 1926 figures, the operating expenses show a decrease of $27,165 for the same months. November 1927 operating expenses were $324,151 compared with $351,37 for 1926.

Grabs Royal Trousers; Saves King on Sled Ride

Belgian Ruler First Monarch to Descend Toboggan Slide at Moritz.

By United Press

LONDON, Jan. 6.—Because the pants of his old green hunting suit were slack, King Albert of the Belgians was saved from injury in a bob-sleigh accident in the Swiss Alps.

A St. Moritz dispatch to the Daily Mail today said the king was descending the St. Moritz sled run at forty miles an hour as passenger on a bob-sled when it skidded, turning Shamrock corner.

Lord Northesk, the brakeman, was thrown and injured his back.

The king was unbalanced, but Dudley Delavigne, another passenger, quickly pushed himself back in Northesk's vacant place and took a firm grip on the seat of the royal sled.

He pulled Albert back into position and the king finished the run with no more damage than a scraped elbow.

"I hope Northesk was not hurt; that was the greatest thrill I have ever had," the king said. "It's greater than war or motocycling."

The king grinned happily, looking strangely un-royal with an old cap turned back in front on his head. It was the first time in history a reigning monarch had descended the St. Moritz run.

JUDGE COLLINS SETS HEARINGS OF COUNCILMEN

Motions to Quash Bribery Indictments Changed to Tuesday.

Arguments on motions to quash indictments against four of the six indicted city councilmen and a local real estate dealer will be held before Criminal Judge James A. Collins Tuesday.

Previously the arguments were set for Saturday, but were rescheduled today.

All charges against which motions are filed allege the defendants participated in bribery in connection with their duties as city officials.

One indictment charges Councilmen Otis E. Bartholomew, Millard W. Ferguson, Boynton J. Moore and Walter R. Dorsett with accepting $300 to influence his vote on rezoning a corner at Twenty-sixth and Meridian Sts. and College Ave. for business.

Another alleged that Martin Frankfort, local real estate dealer, gave Moore $600 to influence his vote on rezoning a corner at Twenty-seventh and Meridian Sts. for business.

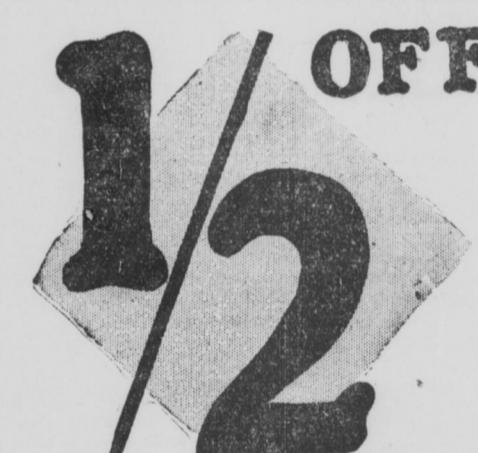

Two indictments against Moore charged he solicited $500 before voting on purchase of fire equipment for the city and that he asked former Mayor John L. Duvall to make certain appointments in order to influence Moore's vote on impeachment proceedings pending in council against Duvall.

Moore is alleged to have bribed Councilman O. Ray Albertson to secure latter's vote on the Twenty-Seventh St. site and to have solicited the appointment of Emmanuel Wetter, as works board clerk, when Duvall impeachment proceedings were pending.

Arguments to quash other bribery charges against Moore, Dorsett, former Council President Claude E. Negley and Councilman Austin H. Todd, will be heard later this month, Judge Collins announced.
