

Head Should Be Guide of Mother Love

BY MARTHA LEE

Mother love is one of the most admirable instincts we find in the human race. This instinct, however, can be detrimental to the very sons and daughters in whose protection it is aroused, if it is not tempered with good judgment and foresight. Every mother knows how hard it is to deny a loved child anything he wants, but the true mother will steal herself against her strongest instinct. She will consider first the welfare of her son or daughter and then make her decisions, using her mind rather than her heart as a guide.

A mother should realize that although he has this deep instinct of mother love, a child does not have a corresponding instinct regarding his parents. The child will love and revere his parents, but he will not make the sacrifices for them that a mother would make for him.

Do not let this instinct, mothers, ruin your life and perhaps your husband's and other children's lives just because you can not be firm in the management of a selfish son or daughter.

Dear Martha Lee: I am in trouble and I wonder if you could help me out whether I am in the right or wrong. I am a widow and have three children by my first husband, two boys and a girl.

My second husband, whom I married six years ago is a hard drinker and was making a good money. My two sons did well for a while, but then they got into trouble and we lost all of our money at a time.

My husband did not say much about the money we were making. We started to go in debt and he told the boys, "We are going to get out of this mess." Miss Lee, or should I try to get my husband back, or should I try to get my two sons to stay with me?

This continued until it resulted in my husband's leaving us. He would not go to work, so I had to support my daughter whom he had willingly sent to business college and from whom he would accept no money.

My husband also said that he was willing to help me out, but he would not support two men who were too lazy to work.

What should I do? Miss Lee, or should I try to get my husband back?

A WORRIED WIFE AND MOTHER.

Dear Worried Wife and Mother:

You have permitted your love for your sons to ruin your domestic happiness. Of course, it is only natural for you to defend your sons from criticism especially from the criticism of a step-father.

You have been very foolish because your own common sense ought to tell you that young men of 25 or 26 are far better off working than doing nothing at all.

Your husband has acted reasonably throughout your married life. He has taken the responsibilities of being a real father to your daughter. He knows, as every man knows, that two young men like your sons are nothing but worthless parasites to society.

Do not rob your daughter and yourself of a good home and the influence of an admirable man like your husband. Go back to him and let your sons "shift" for themselves. It will be the best thing for them and both they and you will realize it later.

BEAUTY HOW and WHY KEEPING THE HANDS IMMACULATE

BY ANN ALYSIS

No hand that is stained or grimy may make any pretension to beauty, no matter how well shaped it may be. But no matter how poorly shaped, if the hand is immaculately clean, the texture of the skin good, the nails well shaped and in good condition, it may be adjudged beautiful.

Use hot water, a toilet soap of good quality, and a good bristle brush as your first step toward this scrupulous cleansing. Do not economize on soap, for poor soap will intensify any skin trouble you may have or may start such trouble by roughening the skin and so preparing the way for unfriendly germs.

If deep-seated grime remains, apply a cream with an oily base. That is, the solvent should be in the nature of a cold cream and not a vanishing one. For the purpose of cleansing the hands, it is not necessary to buy an expensive cream. Vaseline, or an oil such as liquid petroleum, cotton seed, or olive, will serve the purpose just as well.

GLIMPSES OF MILADY'S FASHIONABLE FOOT PRINTS IN EVENING

Evening summons shimmering, luxurious footgear: a fox-trimmed, orchid velvet, evening coat takes gold brocaded slippers with lavender lizard bandings and strap; (1) "Marchioness" in black patent leather with dotted green and gold trimmings and elaborate cut steel and brilliants buckle; (2) pastel flowered brocaded pump with gold heel and flagree gold fan for buckle; (3) purple moire slipper, polka dotted trimmed and buckled with gold, and (4) T-strap French sandal, octagonal heeled, in scarlet glazed kid, with pearl sharkskin pipings and inserts that lend it rarely distinctive smartness.

Evening slippers are the real barometers of fashion!

Milady's footprints on the ballroom floor sing a saga of this luxurious age in which we live. They really tell a tale of the nation's prosperity. For when times have it is the custom, as every woman knows, to get along with one pair of black satin.

Satin slippers are the real gem of the season. They are wanted to take slender tongues reaching up to them for slenderizing effects. Buttons may be real gems, this lavish winter. A pair of chartreuse satin pumps is entirely checkered in tiny brilliants.

Scrolly, geometric designs and even monograms are worked out on kid slippers by sharkskin, gold or silver leaf. A carmine red satin slipper has a tiny oak leaf pattern inlaid in gold on its shank. A soft green slipper twinkles with silver stars while others in gay colors take gold polka dots and inlays of mother-of-pearl.

The straps of slippers often enlarge upon the scroll design of the trimming, by themselves being scroll shaped. Single-strapped slippers are wont to take slender tongues reaching up to them for slenderizing effects. Buttons may be real gems, this lavish winter. A pair of flesh slippers, embroidered in a floral design in lavender, rose, blue, yellow and green, has real pearls for the one button strap, set in gold to match the trimmings.

Black Important

Black plays no mean part in the season's fancy evening footgear. But, graciously relieved by trimmings, it takes its place as proper footwear for the very chic black evenings gowns of the mode.

Today we show one such—a black patent leather "Marchioness" pump, with swerving trimmings of narrow bands of dotted gold and green kid set in with slender lines prevail. So do spike heels, very, very high ones. Straps are the artistic achievement of this season's slippers. Innumerable, effective, intricate strappings weave narrow, decorative lines of grace across women's ankles. Curved edges, sandal cutouts, and inlays and overlays enrich slippers.

Pumps take royal unique buckles of real jewels or dainty bowknots or other designs worked out on their vamps. The best slippers do not feature fancy heels any more. A pair of chartreuse satin pumps is entirely checkered in tiny brilliants.
