

Aids Chosen for Sorority Session Here

Committees for the annual state luncheon and dance of the Alpha Omicron Pi sorority were named by Mrs. O. M. Jones, president of the Indianapolis Alumnae Chapter at the monthly business meeting Thursday evening with Mrs. Lester Smith, 3761 N. Capitol Ave. Both affairs will be held at the Claypool March 3.

Mrs. Leonard Floyd is general chairman and all committees will work under her. Mrs. John Waldo is chairman of invitations, assisted by Mrs. Roy Fosbrink and Miss Geraldine Kindig.

Other committees are:
Luncheon, Mrs. G. W. Rosencrans, chairman; Mrs. F. S. Wood and Mrs. J. Lloyd Allen, decorations; Miss Gertrude Manley, chairman; Mrs. Richard Mills and Mrs. Charles Picott, program; Mrs. W. G. Thomas, Mrs. Frances Smith, Mrs. E. F. Severin, Jr. and Mrs. Winifred Waters, dance; Miss Kathryn Schmidt, chairman; Mrs. C. W. Price and Mrs. G. C. Friedland, hostess was assisted by Miss Elizabeth Charple, at the meeting Thursday night.

Nurses Report Calls on 1,650 During January

Miss Edna Hamilton, superintendent of nurses for the Public Health Association reported the largest month's work during January in the history of the association with the exception of periods of epidemic, at the board meeting Thursday at the Fletcher Savings and Trust Bldg. Mrs. F. K. Kautz, second vice president, presided.

In her report, Miss Hamilton said there had been 6,310 calls on 1,650 patients, 734 of whom were new patients. She stated there had been 3,002 maternity calls made to care for 140 new babies and their mothers. She especially stressed the work of the Teachers' Center on S. Meridian St.

Mrs. Louis H. Burckhardt reported anniversary gifts from Mrs. George C. Haerle, Mrs. Louis Hollweg and Mrs. Flora M. Ketcham, and a gift of money in memory of Edson T. Wood.

Family Menus

BY ANN ALYSIS

An old adage that an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure certainly applies to the wrinkles which form around the eyes and fairly shriek to the world the fact that one is no longer young. Youth does not have wrinkles, you know. They may, and often do, have little creases, which are incipient wrinkles, but they are only shadows of coming events until added years deepen them into dreaded lines. The time to eradicate them is before they arrive, so to speak.

Examine your face today, particularly the corners of the eyes and also the lids, the forehead. Are you frowning and perhaps squinting in an effort to see better? If so, your eyes need attention. Perhaps they are tired from strain.

What causes this strain? It may be that your lights are not sufficiently strong, or that they are not well placed. If this be the case, correct it, and you have taken the first step toward preventing and puckering the eyes in an effort to see.

When reading, never face a window or a lamp. Always sit so that the light comes from the side, preferably the left side. Observing this simple, common sense rule will do more to prevent eye wrinkles than all the soothing creams and beauty treatments in the world. Take it to heart and follow it faithfully.

after exposure

check sore throat
Don't dally with a sore throat! It is a warning that you are probably in for a cold—or worse.

Go after it immediately with Listerine, the safe antiseptic. Gargle with it full strength at least three times a day. Being antiseptic, it attacks disease-producing germs that lodge in the mouth.

During winter months, it is a wise idea to use it systematically every day. It may spare you a long siege of illness. Lambert Pharmaceutical Company, St. Louis, Mo., U. S. A.

THE CONNOISSEUR

On the judgment of the gentleman so very much depends That the Connoisseur's advice is often asked by lady friends. For example, his opinion in the matter of a hat Is considered most essential and he's very proud of that.

So he gladly goes a-shopping with the ladies as you see, And there's not another man who likes to go as well as he, And he gives a sound opinion on the line about the face And decides the little bow completes a look of perfect grace.

And a compliment unqualified he hastens to express On the subject of a two-tone hat to match a coat and dress, And he adds that it's becoming which she doesn't dare deny, And she listens very carefully to all the reasons why.

And another with a cunning little veil upon the nose Is the smartest of the novelties—and what do you suppose? After Van de View enlarges on the merits of the three The lady orders all of them and sends them C. O. D.

Same Worry Besets All Housewives

BY MRS. WALTER FERGUSON

The rich, as well as the rest of us, have their troubles. Here is Mrs. Henry Ford, with her money, her mansions and her minions, enduring the same sort of worry that besets every housewife in poverty row.

We are told by the newspapers that Mr. Ford does not relish his food. Probably his good wife urges him to taste a little of the spinach. I have no doubt that he will not touch carrots.

Husbands are all alike. There's no doing anything with them. Did anybody ever have one who would listen to reason?

Can't Be Done
So, dear girl, if you hope to catch for yourself a specimen who will be easy to manage and agreeable at the same time, you might as well decide upon an old maid's career, and thus avoid disappointment. They simply do not come made that way.

The most striking thing about men is that they are forever talking about woman's subtle influence and never yielding to it. No matter how amenable yours may behave during courtship days, how he may strive to please or hang on your every word, after the honeymoon strange traits of character will assert themselves. From that time on your problem will be that of every woman.

Naturally Stubborn
One of the things we should teach all prospective wives is that man is essentially a stubborn creature and that the only way to live happily with him is to let him have his own way. Do that and he will be gracious and kind and pleasant. But coax him to eat a little of the combination salad if he doesn't want it and he will become as enraged as if you had trampled upon some gigantic masculine right.

We may console ourselves, however, with the fact that Mrs. Henry Ford also wrinkles her brows in trying to influence the automobile king of America to give proper attention to his diet.

When all is said and done, we are handmaids still, we wives who spend our days anguishing over the strange vagaries of our men.

BEAUTY HOW and WHY DARKENING THE PALE BROW AND LASH

BY ANN ALYSIS

A friend of mine visited a beauty shop yesterday and while waiting for her treatment, was greatly interested in the preparation being made by one of the shop's patrons for a party to which she was going that evening.

Now my friend is an expert herself in the art of general make-up, but as she is blessed with dark brows and thick black lashes it is entirely unnecessary for her to improve upon Nature's job in that respect. But the lady she was watching was not so fortunate. Her eyes were blue and framed in rather scanty light brows and lashes. So light were they that her face was practically robbed of all expression.

My friend says that the beauty operator first of all used an eyebrow pencil to darken the characterless brows and that a few strokes of it and a little brushing soon made them things of beauty. For the lashes, a pomade made of lamp black was brushed through with an upward movement. This was done with the utmost care so that none of the preparation would enter the eye. Then a small amount of blue cosmetic was rubbed into the lower eyelid, making an interesting shadow, and a faint line was drawn directly under the lower lashes, giving the effect of apparent thickness.

All this was done with consummate artistry and the result was beautiful to behold.
