

SECOND FIGHT IN SIGHT OVER BOULDER DAM

Huge Lobby Trains Guns on Swing-Johnson Bill in Senate.

BY RUTH FINNEY
WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—Battle lines for the second big fight of the session between private power interests and the public are being drawn today.
The Senate irrigation committee has begun considering the Swing-Johnson boulder dam bill, the measure upon which the heaviest guns of the power lobby are trained.
Senator Hiram W. Johnson hopes his bill will be reported before the end of the week, and ready to go before the Senate. But a desperate fight will be in committee to smother the bill or to change it drastically.

Blocked Year Ago.
It is just a year ago that the power lobby made its first appearance of recent years in Washington to defeat the Swing-Johnson bill. In a ten days' dramatic fight Senator Johnson held his bill before the Senate, but filibusters kept him from getting a vote on it. Since then the power lobby has been continuously sending out floods of propaganda against the bill.
The measure provides that cost of the world's biggest dam, for controlling floods on the Colorado, shall be reimbursed through sale of power developed there. It provides that the Secretary of Interior shall lease water rights at the dam for a sum sufficient to repay this cost, or if satisfactory bids are not received on leasing privileges, he may construct a Government power plant at the dam, and sell power wholesale at the switchboard.

Private Firms Protest
It is this precedent thus established to which the private companies are so bitterly opposed.
When the bill was on the floor last year, thousands of telegrams purporting to be signed by private citizens and civic organizations protesting against the bill were received by Senators, and were traced in practically every instance to private power interests or banks controlled by them.

At that time, Josiah T. Newcomb alone was in charge of the power lobby here. Since then the joint committee of national utility associations has been organized with a large staff here and in New York, and a well organized plan of campaign.
Senator Lawrence Phipps of Colorado, himself a large owner in private companies in the Southwestern territory to be affected by Boulder Dam, is chairman of the Senate irrigation committee. He has introduced a bill he will attempt to have substituted for the Johnson bill.

PERU YOUTH IN JAIL AFTER LOSING ON BET

Fails on Wager That He Could Successfully Steal Auto.

By Times Special
PERU, Ind., Feb. 21.—Fred G. Dyer Jr., 19, is awaiting trial on a charge of stealing an automobile as the result of losing a bet.
The youth bet Lowell Neal while the two were in Kokomo that he could steal an auto and "get away with it." Dyer picked a car belonging to James Short, stole it, and drove back to Peru.
Police here made a search after being notified by Kokomo police that a car was missing. They found the auto in front of a home where Dyer roomed and noticed tracks in snow leading to the house. Routed out of bed by the officers, Dyer at first denied his guilt, but when his wet shoes were shown to match tracks in the snow, he confessed.

BAR NEW RAILROAD

Protests Halt Project of State Capitalists.

By Times Special
WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—The Interstate Commerce Commission Monday denied permission to a group of Indiana capitalists, headed by Pierre F. Goodrich, son of former Governor James P. Goodrich, to construct the proposed Algers, Winslow and Western railroad. The road was to connect with the southern branch of the Evansville, Indianapolis and Terre Haute in Pike County. Protests were registered by the Eastern Indiana & Terre Haute, a Big Four subsidiary.
It was pointed out in the decision that practically the entire purpose of the new road was to serve the Patoka Coal Company of which P. F. Goodrich is secretary and treasurer. Under commission rules, the road must be a community asset.
