

ACTORS MAKE HIT IN THE BENEFIT SHOW

Indianapolis Theater Patrons Pack Loew's Palace for a Most Worthy Cause—Cortini, Manipulator, Is Important Event at Keith's.

A lot of dancing and singing with a speech or two, not too long, put the annual N. V. A. week performance over at Loew's Palace Theater last night, where hundreds of patrons of the theater looked on.

The performance started with the regular overture and ballet and then the organ solo by Lester Huff. At this time the audience entered into the spirit of the thing and sang all the songs that were asked on the screen.

The first act was that of Falls Reading and Boyce from the Keith Theater. This was an acrobatic turn. Then followed Frank Conville with his imitation of Charlie Chaplin. About this time Teddy Joyce, who was acting as the master of ceremonies for the whole performance in a goodly fashion, and Emil Seidel got together with a tune. Teddy playing the violin and Emil accompanying him at the piano.

Charlie Davis was next with the Indiana state band. They opened with "Mandelay" and then played "Chloe" with Dick Powell singing the chorus. Charlie's band offered the audience several "hot" tunes with "Clementine" and "Changes of Harmony." Teddy got Davis to make a little curtain talk.

The came Marie Whitehead. Marie did her stunt with the harp and kazoo. She also tried to sing something or other but it was impossible to hear her. Mayer Slack was invited to make a talk in the interest of the movement and then Buck and Bubbles came on the bill. Cortini had just done a few feats of magic.

Up to that time the performance had been rather stupid but then it began to live up. These two boys put on their dancing stunt. Emil Seidel and Dusty Rhoads put over two or three piano and singing numbers.

Then in succession followed Olivett in a dancing number and Cunningham and Bennett, Maurice and Flynn from the Lyric and Bogner and Falter with Buck at the piano. This last a dance act.

Morris and Campbell changed their act and put on a comedy stunt with one of them working from the box. A large amount of this seemed to be original. Ethel Davis also changed her act and put on two singing and talking skits, one about the waitress and the other a sneezing scene that was different.

Roger and Edna Hurst followed with their regular act and then came Wells and Brady in several song numbers. "The Show Boat" and "Sadie Green" were among the numbers they offered.

All the acts were put on without any scenery and in some cases without the regular costumes. This, however, distracted little from the performance that was given. An excellent performance, it might be added.

This last night at Loew's Palace

Here Is Clara

Clara Bow

Starring in Gene Stratton Porter's "The Keeper of the Bees," which will be shown at the Apollo next Saturday, Sunday and Monday only, Clara Bow is given her first big serious dramatic role. She is cast as the unfortunate "Lolly" in Mrs. Porter's story which was screened under the direction of J. Leo Meehan.

Following the three days' engagement of "The Keeper of the Bees," the Apollo will close for redecoration, renovation and the installation of Vitaphone and Movie-tone equipment.

The theater will reopen Saturday, April 21, featuring the New York hit, "Fendlerloin," as the inaugural attraction of a brand new policy.

type and the stage dances. There is a lot of hokum in this act, but it is good.

At Keith's today and Saturday. (By the Observer.)

Other theaters today offer: "Roun-De-Lay," at the Lyric; "Sorrell and Son," at the Palace; "Soft Living," at the Apollo; "What Price Glory," at the Isis; "Thanks for the Buggy Ride," at the Ohio; "Speedy," at the Indiana, and burlesque at the Mutual.

LONDON, April 13.—Isaac Seligman, prominent financier and son of the late Leopold Seligman, of New York, is dead. Seligman's father established a number of New York banking houses.

GOOD CONDUCT TO BE TAUGHT

Public Leaders Will Lecture at Y. M. C. A.

The assumption that the often so-called "little things" are big things in life has led the Young Men's Christian Association to prepare a special course in conduct for Indianapolis young men.

Public leaders will give six lessons at evening classes, starting April 19. Judge Clarence R. Martin of the State Supreme Court will lecture April 19 on "Personal Conduct on the Street and in Public Places."

"Eccentricities and Good Taste in Dress" will be discussed by Jud R. McCarthy, manager of Jud's Men's Clothing store, April 26.

On May 3, Prof. Lenora Weime, Indiana Central College, will lecture on "Sensible and Necessary Culture at a Formal Dinner, a Business Luncheon, or at a Friend's Table."

Meredith Nicholson, author, will talk May 10 on "Courtesies of Life as They Apply to Men and Women." "The Art of Impressive Conversation in Social and Business Contacts" will be the topic of Thomas C. Howe, formerly Butler College president, May 17.

"Making or Breaking One's Self Through Business Manners and Mannerisms" will be given by Merle Siders, president of an advertising firm, May 24.

WILLIS MEMORIAL SET

Senate Will Hold Services for Ohioan May 11.

WASHINGTON, April 13.—Memorial services for the late Senator Willis of Ohio will be held Friday May 11, the Senate has decided. Senator Fess, (Rep.), Ohio, secured a unanimous consent agreement to hold the services on Friday instead of Sunday, the usual time for memorials.

Four Killed in Train Wreck

MEXICO CITY, April 13.—Four members of the crew were killed and three were injured when a Laredo passenger train collided with a freight train between Nogala and Aragon in the State of Guerrero.

Biddies Shadow Box Now

Now that spring is here, the gardeners get in their good work and the chickens get in the gardeners' good work.

So F. N. Thom, 1157 E. Division St., invents a way to keep chickens from earning their daily bread—in the new garden.

It's a very simple idea—just a couple of boxing gloves over the chicken's feet. Thom wins the $2 Loose Nut prize today.

JACKSON FIGURE IS GIFT TO U. S.

Coolidge to Give Address Accepting Statue.

WASHINGTON, April 13.—A statue of Andrew Jackson, warrior President, will be unveiled here in Statuary Hall Sunday.

President Coolidge will deliver a short address of acceptance, and Andrew Jackson IV of Los Angeles, grandson of Old Hickory's adopted son, will unveil the statue.

The bronze work, a gift of Tennessee to the United States, was modeled by Belle Kinney, Tennessee sculptor, and her husband, Leopold F. Scholz, Viennese sculptor. Their conception of Jackson is in the hour of his victory at New Orleans, at 47 years of age. The figure is in full military uniform.

In the presentation address by Governor Henry H. Horton of Tennessee, the progress of the southern States in their effort to re-assume positions of political and industrial importance such as they held in the early life of the American colonies, will be stressed. Claude J. Bowers, New York editor, and one of the foremost biographers of Jackson, will deliver an address. Ulster is in the northeastern part of Ireland.
