

OLDEST SCIENCE SOCIETY IN U. S. HOLDS MEETING

Organization Founded by Franklin Convenes on Historic Site.

By Science Service
PHILADELPHIA, April 19.—America's oldest scientific society, founded in 1772 by Benjamin Franklin as an informal gathering of his friends, begins its annual meeting today in the same home that it occupied in pre-revolutionary days, when Franklin was president. This is the American Philosophical Society, whose meeting place is in historic Independence Square, in the same group of buildings as Independence Hall, where the Declaration of Independence was signed, and where the Liberty Bell is preserved. The meeting room itself is filled with paintings and other relics of former officers and members, back to Franklin's time.

As modern astronomers tell of the latest discoveries in the exploration of the universe, there stand at one side the telescopes used by David Rittenhouse, pioneer American astronomer. With one of these he observed the transit of Venus, that occurred in 1769, from a platform especially erected for the purpose almost under the windows of the meeting room. Seven years later this same platform was used when the Declaration of Independence was first read in public.

The country's leading scientists now are in Philadelphia to attend the meeting, which continues until Saturday. This afternoon Dr. Daniel T. MacDougal of the Carnegie Institution's Desert Laboratory, is scheduled to tell the members of his study of individual plant cells that live for hundreds of years. Dr. Alfred Hess, New York vitamin specialist, will tell of "Cod Liver Oil and the Cod" and how his studies may be of value in treating children's diseases. Evolution will be discussed tomorrow in a session presided over by Prof. Henry Fairfield Osborn, president of the American Museum of Natural History.

OFF FOR PENAL FARM WITH BIBLE UNDER ARM

Seymour Man Kept Son from School on Religious Grounds.

By Times Special
SEYMOUR, Ind., April 19.—Bruce Jarvis, junk dealer, left for the State penal farm with a Bible under his arm to begin serving a thirty-day sentence for keeping his son, Joe, 15, out of high school.

Religious beliefs, Jarvis explained, caused him to prevent his son attending school. He declared the boy would play games at school, and these he considered wrong. In a previous clash with the law, Jarvis won, when school authorities sought to force him to get a hair cut for Joe. Jarvis opposes hair cutting on religious grounds and has the courage of his convictions, as his hair is long and he wears a long beard.

DETECTIVE SHOT DOWN

Officer Killed in Bullet Affray With Negroes.

By United Press
CHICAGO, April 19.—Detective Emil Shogren was shot and killed in a south side revolver battle last night between his squad and two Negroes.

Although shot through the heart, Shogren wounded one of the Negroes fatally, while Sgt. John Shortall, another detective, wounded and captured the other.

The detectives had stopped their car on a street corner to search the Negroes for concealed weapons. One of the Negroes opened fire on Shogren as he approached. The detective died on the way to a hospital.

OPPOSITION TO HOOVER PERILS G. O. P. CHANCE

Dawes, Lowden Threaten to Split Party; Forces Cal to Secretary.

By RAY TUCKER
WASHINGTON, April 19.—Recognition of Herbert Hoover as Administration's presidential candidate was forecast today as President Coolidge's answer to the large scale attack on some of his major policies launched on Capitol Hill by the Dawes-Lowden forces.

The tactics of the anti-Hoover group in Congress will force not only Coolidge but also Secretary Mellon into the Hoover camp, according to predictions by observers of the pending struggle. Neither the President nor the Secretary of the Treasury is expected to feel kindly toward the Illinois men now bent on scrapping the last important legislative program Coolidge is expected to sponsor.

Seek President's Veto
In framing farm relief, flood control and tax reduction bills which the President has said he would veto, the Dawes, Lowden spokesmen make little secret of their desire to prevent the President's re-nomination and to weaken the Hoover candidacy in the West and South.

This coalition strategy is designed to embarrass Hoover by framing legislation which the Administration of which he is a part cannot accept. The Dawes-Lowden group will then raise the cry that vetoes of these proposals have so weakened Hoover in the farm and flood States and business circles that his nomination will mean defeat in November.

In his recent criticism of the farm and flood bills, President Coolidge is believed to have given warning that he is awake to this political maneuvering.

G. O. P. Leaders Alarmed

But the Dawes-Lowden Representatives in Congress are deliberately neglecting these warning signals and steering three bills to the White House in the hope that they will be well vetoed.

Even Republican leaders not listed for Hoover are beginning to feel that this policy may mean party suicide. They point out that the G. O. P. must seek a return to power on the basis of the Coolidge record, and that for any faction to cast discredit upon it is to subordinate party welfare to personal ambition.

The result will be, it is predicted, to make Hoover the only available nominee if the Republicans are to ask a vote of confidence on the basis of Coolidge accomplishments in office.

23 SPELLERS IN NATIONAL TEST

Each Entry Is Backed by One Newspaper.

By Times Special
LOUISVILLE, Ky., April 19.—Twenty-three newspapers in various parts of the United States are participating in the 1928 Spelling Bee, it was announced today by the national director. The Spelling Bee was instituted by the Louisville Courier-Journal in 1925.

The national finals are set for May 22 in Washington. The twenty-three contestants, one representing each of the sponsoring newspapers, will divide $2,500 in gold. One thousand dollars is the share of the national champion.

Three States, which were not represented in the 1927 spelling bee, are represented this year. They are Wisconsin, Delaware and Vermont. The Indianapolis Times and South Bend News-Times represent Indiana.

FIREMAN AT SEYMOUR SERVES FOR 22 YEARS

Assistant Chief Declares He's Only Original Equipment Left.

By United Press
SEYMOUR, Ind., April 19.—John Flechearty, Seymour's assistant fire chief, declares he is "the only piece of equipment still in use of the fire department originally installed twenty-two years ago."

"We were on twenty-four-hour duty except that we were permitted to go home for our meals," Flechearty recalls.

The original company was composed of Flechearty, Walter Everhart, chief; Charles Wallace, driver, and Howard Slavens.

The firemen later were granted a day's rest each week and finally one day out of each four. The two-platoon system was installed seven years ago.

"On April 12, 1906," Flechearty said, "two horses were installed and a fire wagon on May 3 of the same year. The city finally invested in a Studebaker fire truck Aug. 9, 1917."

"The truck is still being used by the local fire department."

BOY, 15, HELD IN JAIL AFTER LOVE EPISODE

Prisoner at Columbus Bought Auto License Instead of Marriage Paper.

By Times Special
COLUMBUS, Ind., April 19.—Ed Burton, 15, near Edinburg, is a prisoner in Bartholomew County jail here as a result of his excursions into the Land of Romance.

The boy, authorities say, came into possession of $6, a watch and a flashlight from the home of Ardell Burney, near Hope, where his sweetheart, an orphan girl, lives.

Instead of buying a marriage license with the money given him by the girl, Ed invested in an automobile license.

FIND DOES WITH HORNS

Dee, Dee What Can the Matter Be, Puzzle Scientists.

By Science Service
BERKELEY, Cal., April 19.—Three authentic specimens of female deer, equipped with antlers which are usually the exclusive property of the bucks, are reported to the Journal of Mammalogy by Joseph Dixon of the University of California. They were all secured in the same general region, in the neighborhood of Truckee, Cal.

The horns were sufficiently developed that all three animals were shot under the impression that they were bucks. The antlers of one of the specimens were imperfectly grown and still "in the velvet" in autumn, but the other two had shed their velvet and were normal buck antlers to all appearance. All three of the animals belonged to the species known as the Rocky Mountain blacktail or mule deer, and were larger than ordinary does.

Window Breaking Party

By Times Special
COLUMBIA CITY, Ind., April 19.—Thirty-six window panes were broken in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Murbach in Jefferson township during an old fashioned "belling." Celebrants set off dynamite near the house, shattering every window in it.
