

CALIFORNIA VOTE TUESDAY TO TEST AL SMITH POWER

REED, WALSH ALSO BATTLE FOR DELEGATES

New Yorker's Backers Say Primary Victory Means Fight Is Over.

TANGLE WITH M'ADOO

Ex-Cabinet Member Pushes Montana Senator: Hoover Win Certain.

BY PAUL R. MALLON
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON, April 30.—The men of Democratic leaders are cuffed to hear the result of the California primary Tuesday.

There Governor Alfred E. Smith, of New York; Senator Walsh, of Montana, and Senator Reed, of Missouri, will fight out their candidacies in open competition for the first time.

The fight means more than the mere selection of California delegates, because California is the home State of William G. McAdoo, Smith's contestant in the 1924 convention, and because the Smith people believe that a victory there means the fight is over.

M'ADOO Endorses Walsh

McAdoo has endorsed Walsh, and his State organization has been working for the discovery of the Teapot Dome scandals.

But many Democratic leaders through the State include Isadore Dockweller, former Democratic national committeeman, have endorsed Smith.

Reports in Democratic circles here indicate the fight lies primarily between Walsh and Smith.

If Smith wins in McAdoo's home State, his supporters believe all opposition to him will be discharged.

They even are talking of the possibility that the Houston convention may nominate him by acclamation after the first ballot.

The California situation was the chief topic of discussion as the committee on arrangements met here today to select a keynote speaker for the convention and other plans.

Claude Bowers, editorial writer of the New York World and author of several Democratic party histories, is slated for the post. He is favorable to Smith.

Choose Chairman Later

The permanent chairman will be chosen later by a subcommittee. Senator Robinson of Arkansas is most prominently mentioned for that office.

The California primary is the only one of the week. Republican conventions will be held, however, in Tennessee, Arkansas, Utah and Washington.

Secretary Hoover is expected to win without trouble in California's primary, and his campaign managers expect to get the delegates chosen in Tennessee and Washington.

In Arkansas, Frank O. Lowden is putting up a contest, and in Utah the delegation is expected to be uninstructed.

WARSHIPS ARE SENT TO EGYPT

Irwin and Irwin, Capitalist and Author, Have Much in Common.

"Congratulations," says one Will Irwin to the other. "Condolences," says the second Will Irwin to the first.

For there are disadvantages as well as advantages to having the same name as an author of eminence, or, turning it around, a financier of decided prominence.

When Will Irwin, at the left, is asked in Indiana how things are going at Columbus, Ind., or how much the Butler field house cost, he hastily explains "I'm not Will Irwin."

They Both Agree

And when Will Irwin, at the right, is complimented on "Hoover, a Reminiscent Biography," or asked to relate his experiences as war correspondent, he apologizes with "I'm not that Will Irwin."

But when asked "What do you think of Hoover's chances in Indiana?" they both have the same reply—"Fine!"

For Will Irwin, at the left, of Oneida, N. Y., author and journalist, biographer of Herbert Hoover, and Will Irwin, at the right, Columbus banker, industrialist and chairman of the executive committee of Butler University, are one in support of Hoover's presidential candidacy.

In fact, they might not have met had not Will Irwin, the writer, visited Indiana to size up Hoover's cause and so, quite naturally, bump into Will Irwin, Hoosier banker, and president of the Indiana Hoover-for-President Club.

It keeps a "dental" from Hoover's publicity staff at Claypool headquarters busy seeing that the two get the proper introductions.

The Will Irwins have passed the point of embarrassment about mistaken identities and have joined good-naturedly in trying to ferret out a common ancestry.

Trace Ancestry

Both came, they know, from the same Pennsylvania valley and descended from stock that was American before the Revolutionary War.

But beyond that, the Columbus Irwin insists his people came from North Ireland, while Irwin of New York claims Irvin was on the west coast of Scotland, as the home of his ancestors.

The difference may be explained by the writer's jocular remark that "the Irvin's in the old days were noted as the most expert sheep-stealers in Scotland, excepting the notorious Camerons."

BATTLE FLEET ELUDES 'ENEMY' IN PACIFIC TRIP

Sails 2,000 Miles, Reaching Honolulu in Face of Subs and Mines.

BY WILFORD JESSUP
United Press Staff Correspondent
ABOARD, U. S. S. ARIZONA IN HARBOR, HONOLULU, T. H., April 30.—The United States battle fleet rested at anchor here today, having completed one of the most deceptive bits of naval strategy in history.

Approximately seventy-five vessels crossed the Pacific Ocean from San Francisco, eluding an "enemy" force made up of 35-knot cruisers.

The battle problem required Admiral Louis R. Steiguer, commander-in-chief of the fleet, to escort a large overseas convoy of supply and auxiliary ships and evade the enemy force.

The convoy had to be arranged so that it would be protected by battle ships and it had to be aligned for entry into the port of Honolulu in the face of severe enemy opposition from twenty submarines, mine laying squadrons and cruisers.

Admiral De Steiguer successfully kept the fleet in formation, covering more than 2,000 miles in ten days without sighting the enemy until Saturday when the fleet entered the harbor under protection of coast defense guns on the Island of Oahu.

Twice the enemy's scout cruisers were so close to the battle fleet they

ROBINSON LAW BUSINESS WET, CARTER STATES

Bares Record of Firm as Reply to Dry League Indorsement.

Solon J. Carter, candidate for Republican nomination for United States Senator, today cited the record of defense of dry law violators in State Supreme Court of the law firm of Arthur R. Robinson, candidate for renomination for Senator.

Carter cited the record in commenting upon the listing of Robinson as dry by E. S. Shumaker.

Carter's statement:

"I have read the recommendations of the Anti-Saloon League concerning candidates for the United States Senate. Senator Robinson is said to be 'dry by record.' I wonder if the records in the Supreme Court of Indiana are among those referred to."

"During the period from Dec. 12, 1923, to Dec. 19, 1925, Senator Robinson's law firm filed fifteen appeals in the Supreme Court of Indiana; one was a civil matter and fourteen were criminal.

"Thirteen of the fourteen criminal cases were appeals from convictions for violation of the prohibition laws.

"Over 27 per cent of all liquor law violation appeals from Marion County during this period were filed by Senator Robinson's law firm and 66.67 per cent of the business of Senator Robinson's law firm in the Supreme Court during this period was defending liquor law violators.

"These court records must have been overlooked by those designating Senator Robinson as 'dry by record' in the Anti-Saloon League report.

"I also am a member of a law firm in Indianapolis in pretty active practice. My firm has no such clientele. We have never represented a defendant in a liquor case and the court records show this to be true.

"In considering the qualifications of candidates for the United States Senate, I feel that the people of the State are entitled to know and consider the court records referred to, along with the recommendations and comments of the Anti-Saloon League characterizing Senator Robinson as 'dry by record.'

MADDEN GIVEN STATE FUNERAL

Scores Pay Tributes at Bier in House Chamber.

By United Press
WASHINGTON, April 30.—Hundreds filed past the coffin at the conclusion of the State funeral in the House chamber Sunday for Representative Martin B. Madden of Illinois, who will be buried in Hinsdale, Ill., today.

President and Mrs. Coolidge, Vice President Dawes, the Cabinet, Supreme Court, diplomatic corps, Senators and members of the House were present for the honor, which has been accorded few statesmen in the country's history.

Madden's twenty-three years of service in the House were praised by Vice President Dawes and Representative Joseph W. Eyrns, Tennessee, ranking Democrat on the House appropriations committee, of which Madden was chairman.

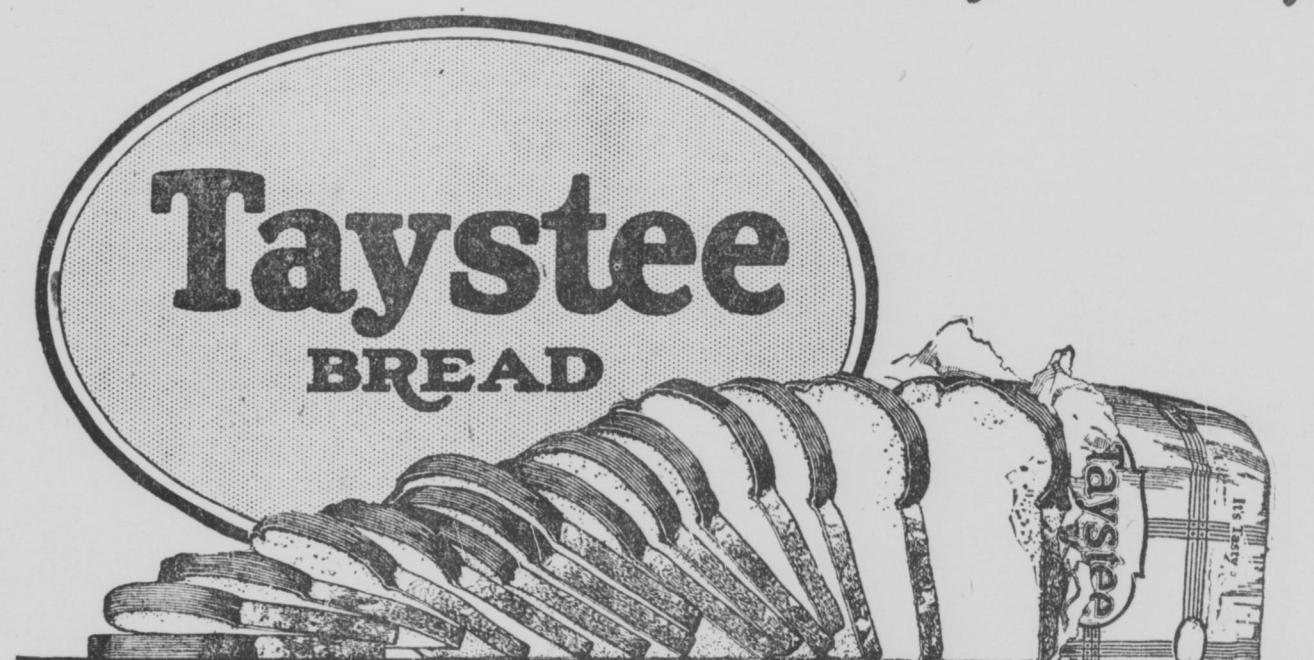

Many Negroes sat in a special section of the gallery reserved for them. One of them, Paul Gainey, fainted during the service and had to be carried out. He had been appointed a post office inspector through Madden's influence.

Madden's Chicago district is largely populated by Negroes, and a Negro is expected to succeed his seat.
