

NUNGESSER AND COLI FLEW INTO WEST YEAR AGO

Mists Still Shroud Fates of Gallant French Aces; Mother Waits Son.

By RALPH HEINZEN
United Press Staff Correspondent
PARIS, May 8.—Just one year ago today at the break of dawn, two French aces, Charles Nungesser and Francois Coll, trail-blazer for Lindbergh, Byrd and Chamberlin flew away in a mist from Le Bourget airfield for a North America flight that probably never materialized.

Their mysterious death never has been solved, for the plane never was seen again after it disappeared in a fog, crossing the frontier of France at the English Channel.

Plane Heavily Loaded
Many French aviators and engineers are convinced that the plane never got far off the French or Irish coasts for its engines were pulling hard with the unaccustomed load as the "White Bird" rose from Le Bourget. A few, however, believe the aviators crossed the ocean and were lost off the coast of Nova Scotia.

The single-motored biplane with which they tempted fate was built specially for the trans-Atlantic attempt. Its Lorraine motor had been run all through the night before their start at 5:19 on the morning of May 8. Lightning played on the horizon and several times the two fliers were on the point of putting off their start.

Weather Changed
Definite assurance from the French government meteorological service late at night decided them. An hour after their start the meteorological service received reports from America changing entirely the conditions over mid-Atlantic. With out wireless, word could not be gotten to the fliers.

In her home, surrounded by souvenirs of the flying days of her son, Madame Nungesser still awaits for news of the fliers. She still makes a pretense at believing that her beloved Charles is alive, although with the passing months, with no news, her declarations of hope sound empty and her friends are convinced that she, too, has given up.

Digs Up Liquor Still

By Times Special
BICKNELL, Ind., May 8.—A sixty gallon liquor still was dug up by Riley McArthur and son, Malcolm, near an old sawmill while they were obtaining soil to make flower beds. They notified Sheriff Mack of Knox County who seized the still and turned it over to Police Chief Anderson here.

DISCIPLES TO MEET

Will Hold State Conclave at Bedford.

By Times Special
BEDFORD, Ind., May 8.—Final plans for the eighty-ninth annual convention of the Churches of Christ in Indiana, to be held here, May 14 to 17, are completed, and the program for the four-day conference arranged. More than six hundred delegates, representing the 700 churches and 156,000 disciples in this State are expected to attend the sessions, which will be held in the First Christian Church.

A visit to the stone quarries near here—which make Bedford the stone capital of the world—is among the features planned for the delegates.

Particular attention will be paid to missions, to the needs and problems of rural churches and Christian unity.

Church officers for the coming year will be elected. W. D. Bartle, New Albany, is president of the conference; E. C. Corts, Sullivan, vice president; H. H. Martindale, Oxford secretary.

Prescription He Wrote in 1892 is the World's Most Popular Laxative

When Dr. Caldwell started to practice medicine, back in 1875, the needs for a laxative were not as great as they are today. People lived normal, quiet lives, ate plain, wholesome food, and got plenty of fresh air and sunshine. But even that early there were drastic physics and purges for the relief of constipation which Dr. Caldwell did not believe were good for human beings to put into their system. So he wrote a prescription for a laxative to be used by his patients.

The prescription for constipation that he used early in his practice, and which he put in drug stores in 1892 under the name of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, is a liquid vegetable remedy, intended for women, children and elderly people, and they need just such a mild, safe, gentle bowel stimulant as Syrup Pepsin.

Under successful management this prescription has proven its worth and is now the largest selling liquid laxative in the world. The fact that millions of bottles are used a year proves that it has won the confidence of people who needed it to get relief from headaches, biliousness, flatulence, indigestions, loss of appetite and sleep, bad breath, dyspepsia, colds and fevers.

Millions of families are now never without Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and if you will once start using it you will also always have a bottle handy for emergencies. It is particularly pleasing to know that the most of it is bought by mothers for themselves and the children, though Syrup Pepsin is just as valuable for elderly people. All drug stores have the generous bottles.

We would be glad to have you prove at our expense how much Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin can mean to you and yours. Just write "Syrup Pepsin," Monticello, Illinois, and we will send you prepaid a FREE SAMPLE BOTTLE.—Advertisement.

LAW REPORTS OUT

Decisions by Judge Martin in Latest Volume.

The latest volume of the American Law Reports contains two decisions written by Judge Clarence

R. Martin, of the Indiana Supreme Court.

The first case in the volume is that of Kessler vs. City of Indianapolis which the Supreme Court reversed the decision of Judge Linn D. Hay, of the Marion Superior Court, and held that action of the Board in condemning a triangular strip of ground adjoining the Pleasant Park parkway was beyond the power of the park board, which can not exercise the power of eminent domain to cut a boulevard.

The second case is that of Croop, Elkhart County auditor against Walton, in which the Supreme Court affirmed the decision of Judge Royce of the Kosciusko Circuit Court.

Trapped by her past!

"I had just started to move my make-up when a note was handed to me. I usually paid little attention to them, but glancing at this one, the name at the bottom caught my eye, and the lights danced directly before me." (From "Trapped by My Past," June True Story Magazine.)

RECENTLY a woman who a few years ago was a popular actress on Broadway, whose name was emblazoned in electric lights, submitted a story to True Story Magazine which created a stir even among the editors long used to reading startling and unusual stories.

It was the account of why she left the stage abruptly at the height of her career never to be seen upon the boards again.

It was a tale of dread and terror which told how each night, while she swayed her thousands to smiles or tears, her eyes, masking the agony in her soul, were seeking, always seeking, among the audience the one man in all the world who had it in his power to drag her down from the pinnacle of success to the ignominy of defeat.

Deep in her heart she knew that some day he would come, and that when he did her career would end.

And so when one night an usher delivered to her dressing room a note from a man in the audience who was waiting for her reply, she knew that at last the time had come to settle her account with fate.

Her story appears in True Story for June under the title "Trapped by My Past." Told in her own words, with nothing hidden, nothing omitted and without excuse, into it she has put all the fire and drama that perhaps once held you spellbound across the footlights.

It may be that when you read it you will recognize her. If so, you will know the answer to a question you have probably asked yourself many times.

Stories from Real Life that You Can't Forget

FICTION has its place—as fiction. But more colorful, more dramatic, more compelling in its power to stir human emotions, is the story that is drawn from life itself.

Go through any issue of True Story Magazine—here a thrilling story of love; there a gripping narrative of a soul's struggle against temptation and wrong; a few pages further on, an astounding drama of heroic self-sacrifice—stories of life itself in never-ending variety that fire the imagination, touch the heart, and unfailingly hold the reader spellbound.

The fourteen gripping features in June True Story Magazine offer an example of the unusual character of this great publication. You won't want to miss this issue. It is now on the newsstands—price only a quarter. Get your copy today!
