

CURTIS AND EDGE LEAD FIELD FOR VICE PRESIDENT

Choice of Hoover Running Mate Narrows; Fuller Mentioned.

By RAY TUCKER
WASHINGTON, May 9.—The prospect of a Hoover-Smith presidential battle has narrowed the Republican vice presidential race to virtually three men, in the opinion of many G. O. P. leaders.

The trio most prominently mentioned because of the supplemental strength they would contribute to a Hoover ticket opposed by Smith are Senator Curtis of Kansas, Senator Edge of New Jersey, and Governor Alvin T. Fuller of Massachusetts. The latter's chances are not so bright as they seemed a few months ago, but his friends are working hard for him.

Farmers for Curtis
Curtis' claims for the vice presidential nomination rest in the belief he would aid the ticket in farm states, where Hoover is supposed to be weak. As Senate leader the Kansan has stood by the administration except for his support of the McNary-Haugen measure. This is counted on to appeal to disgruntled agriculturists, and it is not held against him at the White House because of farm sentiment in his State.

Edge's friends maintain he would bring more elements of strength to a Hoover-headed slate than anybody else, especially against Smith. They believe his wetness might help to keep New Jersey in the Republican column, and also win favor among wets in such Eastern States as Delaware, Maryland and Massachusetts.

Moreover, it is pointed out that Edge would be perfectly satisfactory to certain financial interests said to look askance at Hoover. In fact, Daniel Pomeroy, New Jersey national committeeman, has canvassed the Wall Street district and received a general O. K. for Edge. The latter also is a party man, and his selection might reconcile old-line politicians supposedly cool to the cabinet member.

Fuller Loses Strength

As between Edge and Curtis, the choice might depend on whether party tacticians decided it was more vital to cater to the wet and conservative east or the discontented farmers.

Fuller's vice presidential movement has lost some strength in the last few weeks, largely because of Edge's growing prominence. The Bay State Governor's part in the Sacco-Vanzetti affair, the coolness between him and certain Administration representatives and his record of political irregularity are cited as arguments against his selection.

DISCOVER NEW MALADY

Paris Says Disease Similar to Measles Affects Children.

By Science Service

CHICAGO, May 9.—Children may have to welcome an undesired addition to the whooping cough and measles afflictions they have to undergo in the process of becoming grown up. Several cases of a new eruptive disease which does not fit into the category of either measles or German measles, though it resembles both, have broken out in Paris, according to reports received here from the French correspondent of the American Medical Association.

"The fifth disease," as French physicians have christened the new malady of children, does not provoke symptoms of a serious character though certain changes in the number of cells in the blood have been noted. Many of the children who have "taken" the disease have histories of both types of measles and of scarlet fever.

Blind Couple at Memorial

BY UNITED PRESS
DECATUR, Ind., May 9.—A touching incident occurred here when a husband and his wife, both blind, who had been singing on the streets here, visited the memorial tablets to Gene Stratton Porter. The couple asked the Elephant Rock gardener to lead them to the tablet so that they might read it with their fingers. They recalled how they had read books of the late Mrs. Porter and enjoyed them because they had brought vividly to them the great out-door.

ARMOUR WIDOW PAYS OFF DEBT

Daughter Also Contributes to $50,000,000 Liability.

CHICAGO, May 9.—The debts of J. Ogden Armour, reported at one time to exceed $50,000,000, finally have been settled by relatives of the Chicago packer, it was announced here.

The final settlement consisted of liquidating a debt of about $18,000,000 to Armour & Co., through the transfer of securities pledged by the packer. The settlement was made by Mrs. Armour, her daughter, Mrs. John J. Mitchell and other relatives.

The debts were incurred by Armour in promoting several vast enterprises, including the 55,000-acre Sutter Basin project in California.

The settlement was made possible by the Sutter Basin Company bondholders' acceptance of a plan of reorganization, proposed when interest on $7,128,000 bonds was defaulted Feb. 1.

The widow will turn over to the new company about $6,000,000 in warrants against the Sutter Basin land.

A school board election is which her champions were victorious seems to have swing the balance of opinion in Utica, N. Y., in favor of Mrs. Mary L. Pryor (below) school teacher who aroused a storm of feeling with her whipping of Peter Peters (above). She is said to have punished the 13-year-old boy with a rubber hose.

CHARGES POLICE IGNORE DUTIES FOR POLITICS

Nephew of Missing Rockport Pastor Accuses Authorities.

By Times Special
EVANSVILLE, Ind., May 9.—Police officials of this city and Vanderburgh County authorities are more interested in politics than performing their official duties, charges Carl Hofmann, nephew of the Rev.

Charles Harmes, pastor of the Salem Evangelical Church at Rockport, declares both city and county authorities have been lax in efforts to locate the minister, who has been missing five weeks.

Aid of police in other cities was not asked by officials here, Hofmann charges. Detective Chief Edward Suthmeier admits that much of the accusation, but said such procedure has not been the practice except in cases where the person sought was wanted on a criminal charge.
