RALLY FOR FINAL STAND

Both Sides Send Reserves Into War Zones for Supreme Clash.

PEKIN, China, May 10.—The Japanese-Chinese situation in Shantung province continued grave today with fresh engagements reported from the Tsingtao Railroad area, and advices from Tientsin that part of the Chinese Nationalist army was in retreat southward.

New engagements resulted in Japanese disarming 3,000 Nationalist troops.

There was no indication of what the casualties of recent engagements totaled and only the meagerest details reached this northern China capital of the battles.

Reports said Japanese reinforcements were being spread over the territory around the Shantung province. Nine airplanes, an artillery brigade and five infantry companies were reported en route to the Tientsin garrison.

Chang's Ultimatum Unanswered

Thus far there has been no indication of the Japanese attitude toward the announcement of Gen. Chang Tso Lin, commander of the Northern armies, that he would cease his warfare against the approaching armies of the South.

"All China is faced by an outside danger," General Chang's announcement said.

Although the Manchurian war lord has long been considered friendly toward the Japanese, he has repeatedly declared against any outside interference in China's international affairs.

The threat of a union of Chinese various warring factions means the possibility of a great Chinese force. Gen. Chiang Kai Shek, commander of one part of the Southern army, has approximately 100,000 men through Shantung province.

Jap Soldiers Outnumbered

Gen. Feng Yu Hsien, another leader, is believed to have an army of about the same size. General Chang has between 100,000 and 150,000 men while the commander of the Shansi area has probably another 100,000 men.

Japan at present has about 5,000 men in the Chinese fighting zone, with 18,000 reinforcements en route. Japanese battle cruisers are en route up the Yangtze River while airplane reinforcements are reported to have been ordered into the zone.

The Japanese are said to be better armed and better trained than the Nationalist troops of Gen. Chiang Kai Shek, with whom they have been fighting in the Tsinan area.

No Fear for Foreigners

Little fear has been felt thus far for foreigners—other than Japanese—in the area.

It was reported from Tokio that some of the consular officers and some few other foreigners had left Tsinan for Tsingtao, the port, Wednesday, after the more than thirty hours engagement between the Nationalists and the Japanese.

Advices today from Shanghai told how the Chinese Chamber of Commerce, bankers, students and laboring organizations had decided to start an immediate boycott against the Japanese.

Fire on Jap Marines

The anti-Japanese feeling there has reached such a stage that Chinese fired on Japanese marines beyond the cotton mill. There was an answering fire from the Japanese but there were no casualties.

Also it was in Shanghai that the chamber of commerce urged Gen. Chang Tso Lin to cease his engagement against the southern troops so that a united front might be started against the foreign army.

It was this resolution that caused General Chang to announce at least a temporary cessation of his campaign against the forces of Gen. Chiang Kai Shek.

Four Japanese destroyers arrived Wednesday at Shanghai and are believed to have caused some of the dissatisfaction there.

Indiana Features Coast

Radio Play Broadcast

Page Gilman

Indianapolis figured prominently in the recent broadcasting of a radio play over the National Broadcasting Company Pacific Coast network from San Francisco.

Page Gilman, 10, took the part of a boy reciting a poem at a Ladies' Aid tea in a small Indiana town twenty years ago. The poem he was handed to read was James Whitcomb Riley's "Little Orphant Annie."

Then it was brought to light that the boy's grandfather, a veteran Indianapolis printer, set up that poem in type the first time it was published, many years ago, when Riley was an unknown Hoosier poet.

Page Gilman's father, Don E. Gilman, was born at New York St. and Massachusetts Ave., and worked on several Indianapolis newspapers before he moved to the Pacific Coast. He now is manager of the Pacific Division of the National Broadcasting Company.

The continuity for the radio play in which the Riley poem was a feature was written by H. C. Connette, also a former Indianapolis resident.

NOBILE'S CREW BALKS PLAN TO STUDY AT POLE

Refuses to Continue With Polar Expedition Under Arrangement.

By United Press
KINGS BAY, Spitzbergen, May 10.—A group of the Italian Chasseurs aboard the Citta Di Milano, relief ship for Gen. Umberto Nobile's polar flight, today refused to join the North Pole flight under existing arrangements.

It was understood that Nobile planned to leave the Chasseurs at the Pole for several days while they conducted meteorological work after which Nobile would return to the Pole in the Italia and carry the Chasseurs back to civilization.

The group now claims they never agreed to this project and recalled that in Italy they had complained against the Arctic cold.

It was feared the Polar expedition might be endangered unless the dispute was settled.

Three Trips Planned

By United Press
COPENHAGEN, May 10.—Gen. Umberto Nobile plans three North Pole trips in his dirigible Italia, according to advices received here today.

The first will be a flight around the complete polar area.

The second one will be to Lenin's Island.

On the third flight Nobile plans to fly direct to the pole, descend and place a silver cross presented by Pope Pius and an Italian flag on the pole.

Advices here said that mechanics expected to complete repairs on one of the Italia's engines within four days. Experts, however, believed the repairs would take ten days.

Establishes New Base

By United Press
VADSOE, Norway, May 10.—General Umberto Nobile today established a secondary base here for his polar dirigible Italia.

Major Vallini of the Italia's crew, who was left here when the airship sailed for Kings Bay, was instructed to make all arrangements for the eventual arrival of the Italia on her homeward voyage.
