

HUGE ZEPPELIN TO INAUGURATE OCEAN SERVICE

Will Leave German Hangar for Test Flights July 20.

FRIEDRICHSHAFEN, July 4.—The builders of the new giant Zeppelin, which is nearing completion, intend to inaugurate with it a regular trans-Atlantic passenger and mail air service. Two or three sister ships will also be built if financial backing for the project can be found.

Due to its enforced idleness following the war, the Zeppelin company is not now rich, and the LZ-127, as the new ship is denoted, has been built largely by popular subscription, 3,000,000 of the total cost of 4,000,000 gold marks having been contributed in small sums from all over Germany.

Need Three Ships

It is figured that with three ships a regular and efficient transoceanic service can be maintained. There probably would be one replacement ship. It is understood that New York would be the American terminal, and Paris or Berlin, or both, the European terminal.

Dr. Hugo Eckener, who succeeded the late Count Zeppelin as head of the Zeppelin Company, of course is a great believer in aircraft lighter than air, and despite the comparatively heavy cost he thinks the Zeppelin machine holds out the best prospect of successful long distance commercial aviation.

Though the new Zeppelin, which is 770 feet long and the largest yet built, has now been equipped for a long test flight and therefore fitted to carry only about twenty passengers with a crew of about forty, yet its carrying capacity could be enlarged to take as many as seventy passengers and some tons of mail across the Atlantic.

Could Carry 800 Persons

For a short flight of several hours duration the ship could take 800 passengers, it is stated.

Under normal conditions it would take about two days to cross the Atlantic, and the ship could start back in three days. Thus four days would be cut from the time needed to cross the Atlantic by liner.

It is expected that the new ship will be ready to leave the hangar on July 20. There will be short trial flights for a week or so, after which the ship will attempt two long trial flights, at the end of which preparations will be made for a trip to America.

The start is expected in the latter part of August. Dr. Eckener has already flown the Atlantic with the Los Angeles.

FIREMEN HAD TO KNOW WHERE EVERYBODY LIVE

Refraining Vincennes Veteran Recalls Unnumbered Houses.

VINCENNES, Ind., July 4.—Alonso Woodward, nearing the 75-year mark, and who has served with the Vincennes fire department forty-three years has resigned and will go on pension. He says he is going to California to see his children and fish.

Woodward became a fireman the year the water company installed fire hydrants and was one of the four in the department. There were two fire houses then, composed of two men, one horse and a hose cart each. When he first went into service, houses were without numbers and firemen had to know where everybody lived.

For the past three years Woodward has been a fire inspector. He has resided in the same house here more than twenty years.

One-Pony Riding Club

EVANSVILLE, Ind., July 4.—John Schnabel, 11, who several months ago won a pony in a contest, tired of riding by himself, organized Evansville's first and only Boys' Riding club. The boys take turns riding Schnabel's pony.

FAIR FAN CHAMPION Never Threw Away Straw Hat

Mrs. O. L. Hawkins, 244 E. St. Clair, St., who has seldom missed seeing the Indians play on the home lot since 1912, traces her love of baseball to girlhood days at Rosedale, Ind., when she lived next door to the famous three-fingered pitcher, Mordecai Brown.

By DAN M. KIDNEY

Women may attend baseball games regularly, but they never become fans without reservations. They scream, they shout, they eat peanuts, know the players by their first names, but—never has it been known at the local park that a woman got so excited that she entirely forgot herself and tossed her new straw hat in the air.

Dozens of men have done so, but if that is what is required for full-fledged fandom the women admit that they "pass."

Munching a popcorn ball and shouting "Let's go!" and other traditional phrases, Mrs. A. A. Boeckling, 3206 Kenwood Ave., expressed herself on this subject while her favorite Indians were "warming up" at Washington Park for the Ladies' Day game Friday.

"Of course I stand and shout and get excited," she admitted. "But you wouldn't expect a woman to toss away a hat she spent hours in selecting. No sir. I think we women are just as good fans as the men, but we are more 'grown up' you might say."

MERGER IN MAKING

Traction and Power Union of Resources Planned.

The public service commission is expecting soon the appearance of a petition asking its sanction of a proposed merger of the Terra Haute, Indianapolis & Eastern Traction and subsidiary companies with properties of the Central Indiana Power Company.

The merger will represent around $70,000,000, as the traction company and its subsidiaries are valued at $35,000,000 and the power utility the same.

It will mean the merging of Insull interests in Indiana if the plans are approved.

Reports from the Chicago offices of Samuel Insull, Jr., are that tentative approval of the consolidation already has been given by a majority of the stockholders in the Indiana concerns, who will receive cumulative preferred stock in the Indiana Electric Corporation for their holdings.

Fisherman's Silence Ends

LEBANON, Ind., July 4.—Robert Long, who with Dr. R. D. Morrison and Francis Daniels is on a fishing trip in northern Wisconsin, made good on his statement that "you won't hear from me until I make a big catch." Long hooked a 11-pound muskellunge twenty-four inches long.

Suicide's Will on File

NOBLESVILLE, Ind., July 4.—The will of Omar Patterson, bookkeeper of the Citizens State Bank, who committed suicide after embezzling $147,000, leaves $32,000 life insurance and $3,000 in notes to relatives. The will was filed for probate in Hamilton Circuit Court here Tuesday.

PAT HARRISON MAY BE HEAD OF DEMOCRATS

Reorganization of National Committee Holds Attention of Party Leaders.

BY LEO R. SACK

HOUSTON, Texas, July 4.—Democratic leaders are giving their attention to reorganization of the Democratic national committee and the selection of a new chairman. No decisions will be reached until names have been submitted to Clem Smith.

Clem T. Shaver of West Virginia, present national chairman, is expected to retire. As his successor four names are under consideration.

Senator Pat Harrison of Mississippi, Senator Peter G. Gerry of Rhode Island, Owen D. Young of New York, chairman of the board of the General Electric Company, and Judge Floyd Thompson of Illinois, Democratic nominee for Governor.

Senator Harrison appears to be a favorite among Smith advisors. Harrison was a Mississippi "favorite son" but he helped lead the first-ballot stampede to Smith.

The organization of the national committee may include the elimination of Jesse H. Jones, Houston millionaire, as director of finance. The Smith forces are said to feel that Jones used the convention to further his own political fortunes.

A contest is developing among the committee women for the post of vice chairman in charge of women's activities, to succeed Mrs. Emily Newell Blair. Mrs. Bernice S. Pyke of Ohio and Mrs. Florence Farley of Kansas are among rival candidates.

Boy, 11, Gives Blood

MARION, Ind., July 4.—Jack Bailey, 11, is one of the youngest persons on record to give his blood for a transfusion operation. His blood was sent into the veins of his brother, Joseph, 2, suffering from pernicious anemia, which rarely attacks a person so young, doctors say.

NICHOLSON'S NEW BOOK PUBLISHED

'The Cavalier of Tennessee' Is a Story of the Life of Andrew Jackson and It Will Be One of the Best Sellers Very Soon.

IN connection with the publication on July 4 of Meredith Nicholson's historical novel of Andrew Jackson, "The Cavalier of Tennessee," the Bobbs-Merrill Company is presenting to the Hermitage, Jackson's home in Tennessee, a special Jackson memorial volume.

This volume is published in an edition of one copy which is made up of Mr. Nicholson's original manuscript and illustrated with the most complete and extensive collection of photographs and documents contributed by individuals from all over the world, ever gathered together in a single volume.

The publishers, in order to make the book as complete and perfect in Jacksonian history as possible, have made a general appeal to the public at large for contributions in the way of illustrative material.

Original pictures, photographs, maps, original Jackson manuscripts, legal documents, Daguerreotypes, anything pertaining to Andrew Jackson, Rachel Jackson and the the Bobbs-Merrill Company presented a personally inscribed copy of "The Cavalier of Tennessee" with an official notification that the individual contribution will become a part of the historic exhibit with the sender's name and address duly recorded in the memorial volume.

Those contributions that were not used will be carefully returned to the senders. The book will be exhibited throughout the United States, in libraries, museums and book stores before being sent to the hermitage, where it will remain on permanent public view.

Indianapolis theaters today offer: "The Copperhead," at Keith's; "Able's Irish Rose," at English's;
