

U. S. PROBES RADIA, PAINT WORK DANGERS

Attention is Focused on Perils by Suits of Dying Women.

BY ROSCOE B. FLEMING

WASHINGTON, July 20.—The Department of Labor may make national investigations into two increasing sources of workers' peril—the handling of radium compounds, and the use of spray guns in painting.

The danger of radium and mesothorium has been brought to public attention by the recent suits in New Jersey of five women, dying years after they quit working with radium. These suits were settled out of court.

Elthelbert Stewart, commissioner of labor statistics, said seventeen United States deaths are to be attributed to work in radium. Both the department and the United States Public Health Service are being appealed to for a Nation-wide survey, he said.

The bureau said radium settles permanently in the bones, and although no ill effects may be felt for years, finally destroys the white corpuscles and results in death from pernicious anemia. No cure or palliative is known. Most manufacturers are now taking elaborate precautions to guard their workers.

The spray-guns in painting fills the air with particles of paint. When the latter, contains benzol, as in the case of quick-drying shellacs and varnishes, lead, as in ordinary paints, or silica, as in special preparations on pottery, they are absorbed into the workers' system.

Masks which will shut out the paint, also cut off much air that the workers can not breathe. Many factories are having the painting done under hoods, with torrents of air carrying off the spray.

Sherlock Holmes Proves
'Lifer' Innocent of Murder.

By United Press

EDINBURGH, Scotland, July 20.—Sherlock Holmes won his last victory over his rivals, the police today, when the Court of Criminal Appeal— which did not exist when he was convicted—so that the stain on his character might be removed.

Today's decision leaves him where he was before the crime was committed, legally, but he is an old, broken man after twenty years of suffering.

maintained his innocence. After many years, he succeeded in winning wide support for his demand that he be freed from a life sentence.

Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, creator of Sherlock Holmes, took charge of the case and spent many months investigating it. He reached the conclusion that Slater was innocent, and summed up his reasons in a book.

Several months ago the government ordered Slater's release. Not satisfied, Slater appealed to the Court of Criminal Appeal—which did not exist when he was convicted—so that the stain on his character might be removed.
