

Marie Louise Wagon and George Hoster Will Wed at Church Tonight

MISS MARIE LOUISE WAGON, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur B. Wagon, 324 E. Fifty-Fifth St., will become the bride of George McBride Hoster, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Perry Hoster, 1434 Park Ave., at 8:30 o'clock this evening at the Broadway Methodist Episcopal Church.

The ceremony will be performed by Dr. Orin W. Fifer, district superintendent of the Methodist church, assisted by Dr. W. McFall, pastor of the Broadway church.

The altar will be decorated with palms, ferns and baskets of cut flowers and lighted with white cathedral candles in brass candelabra.

Preceding the ceremony, Mrs. Mary Wilhite, organist, will play "Venetian Love Song," "Evening Star," "Swan Song," "My Heart at Thy Sweet Voice" and "Thema Prayer."

Mrs. Roy Kriepke, soprano, will sing "At Dawning" and "Ich Liebe Dich." Mrs. Wilhite will play "The Bridal Chorus" from Lohengrin for the entrance of the bride party, which will be led by Miss Alice Carter and Mary Lee Orloff dressed in flesh chiffon robes de style with huge bows of satin shaded ribbon set on bustle style, with streamers to the bottom of the skirts. They will wear flesh satin slippers and carry shower bouquets of Columbia roses and delphinium.

Misses Mildred Cooke and Rebecca Jones will walk next, dressed in similar gowns of pink chiffon, with slippers to match. They will carry shower bouquets of Premier roses and delphinium.

Sister Will Be Attendant Miss Alice Wagon, sister of the bride, will be maid of honor. She will wear a gown, fashioned like those of the bridesmaids, of a deeper shade of pink chiffon. She will carry a shower bouquet of Matchless roses.

Little Katherine Weaver will come next, dressed in flesh colored chiffon, made with a ruffled skirt. She will carry a French basket of rose petals and flowers, tied with a huge pink satin bow.

The bride, who will enter on the arm of her father, will wear a robe de style of bridal satin, with a Chantilly lace yoke, long light lace sleeves and a wide border of lace on the hem of the skirt.

Her full length tulle veil will be fashioned cap shape, with a band of seed pearls and orange blossoms framing the face, and caught at each side with tiny clusters of orange blossoms. Her shower bouquet will be made up of bride's roses, valley lilies and sweetheart roses. She will wear a pearl brooch that belonged to her maternal grandmother.

Following the ceremony, a reception for the members of the bridal party and the immediate families will be held at the home of the bride's parents. Mrs. Wagon will receive in powder blue lace over flesh, with a shoulder corsage of pink roses and Mrs. Hoster, mother of the bridegroom, will wear black beaded chiffon over flesh.

The wedding collation will be served from a table centered with a mound of cut flowers in shades of pink.

Coming to Travel on Lakes Following the reception, the young couple will leave immediately for a cruise on the Great Lakes and a motor trip through Canada.

The bride will travel in a poudre blue ensemble of crepe. Elizabeth with a close fitting blue felt hat to match, beige fox and a neck piece and accessories of beige.

They will be at home after Sept. 1 at Chelsea Manor, Fifteenth St. and Central Ave.

The bride attended Butler University and is a member of the Kappa Alpha Theta sorority. Mr. Hoster was graduated from Indiana University. He is a member of the Sigma Chi fraternity.

Miss Broderich, Muncie to Be Bride Sept. 15

Mr. and Mrs. Michael H. Broderich, Muncie, announce the engagement of their daughter, Mary Elizabeth, and Bernard S. Bernet, Cleveland, Ohio, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Bernet, Cleveland. The announcement was made today at the home of Miss Broderich, Westwood, at a luncheon bridge.

At the individual luncheon tables were old-fashioned nosegays tied with white satin ribbon extending to each guest's place. These bouquets contained the announcement. The wedding will take place Saturday morning, Sept. 15, at the St. Lawrence Catholic Church.

Miss Broderich is a graduate of St. Mary-of-the-Woods, Terre Haute, the New Rochelle School for Girls, New Rochelle, N. Y., and she attended Marcum School, Philadelphia, Pa. She also studied abroad. She is a member of the Delaware Country Club.

Mr. Bernet is president of the Industrial Supply Company, Cleveland. He attended the University of Cleveland and Ohio State University at Columbus.

To Hold Monthly Party The Altar society of St. Roch Catholic church will hold a regular monthly card party at the hall, 3600 S. Meridian St., Sunday afternoon and evening, Mrs. Charles Murt is hostess and will be assisted by Mesdames Wilbur Wurtz, Pauline Clifford, Frank Price, Peter Murt, John Melhaus and Miss Minnie Murt. Luncheon will be served from 5 till 7 p. m. and transportation will be furnished from the S. Meridian St. car line.

Ladies of H. A. A. to Meet The ladies bridge section of the Hooster Athletic Club will give another luncheon at 1 o'clock Tuesday at the club home. Members wishing to attend will please call in reservations to Mrs. E. R. Daggett by noon Monday.

PRIZE BEAUTY BRIDE OF TERRE HAUTE MAN Miss Lois Irene Wilcox, winner of a recent beauty contest at Indiana State, Terre Haute, and Floyd L. Fry, student at the school, were married this week. Both are residents of Terre Haute and have attended Indiana State two years. Mrs. Fry is an Alpha and Mr. Fry a pledge of the Forum. The couple will live with the parents of the bride, Mr. and Mrs. C. G. Wilcox.

Patterns PATTERN ORDER BLANK Pattern Department, Indianapolis Times, Indianapolis, Ind. Enclosed find 15 cents for which send PAT-3350

Fete Tonight in Honor of Bride-Elect Misses Jeanette Griffith, Olga Snyder and Jessica Peffley will be hostess this evening at the Lumley Tea room at a personal shower and bridge in honor of Miss Jane Catherine Hawekotte, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John L. Hawekotte, 812 E. Fortieth St., whose marriage to Gareth Mitchell Hitchcock, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hitchcock, 41 N. Arlington Ave., will take place Sunday.

The tables will be decorated with orchid and pink sweet peas and the gifts will be brought in in a wagon decorated with orchid and pink, drawn by little Marian Gay Kester. With Miss Hawekotte and the hostesses will be Misses Helen Stephenson, Martholou Akers, Emma Lou Richter, Betty Barclay, Lucinda Smith, Dorothy Lambert, Julia Brettman, Margaret Shanklin, Irma Roller, Helen Haynes, Dorothy Pley, Ruby Davis, Betty Martindale, Elsie Gilkinson, Naomi Guild and Bernice Abbott.

Miss Betty Barclay will be hostess at a linen shower in honor of Miss Hawekotte Thursday and Miss Helen Warmoth will entertain for her Friday.

Shower Honors Miss Kuchler, Aug. 13 Bride Among showers given for Miss Eunice Marie Kuchler, whose marriage to Carl D. Moxley will take place Monday evening, Aug. 13, was a miscellaneous shower given by the sisters of the bride, Mrs. Ruth Ryker and Miss Naomi Kuchler, last evening.

Guests included the Misses Irene Roehm, Matilda Gasper, Marie Gasper, Cecilia Rauser, Rose Yochem, Anna Riegal, Alberta Milikan, Esther Herman, Alveretta Stoddard, Gertrude Steimer, Rosemary Brennan, Irene Brennan, Mary Murphy, Caroline Byrket, Anna Kiefer, Magdalen Kiefer, Agnes Kiefer, Dorothy Need, Mesdames Helen Lee, Margaret Rosenspien and Lena Jummamann.

The gifts were presented to the bride-elect by little Maxine Moxley, niece of the groom, from under an umbrella of the bridal colors, peach, orchid, pink and green.

The hostesses were assisted by their mother, Mrs. Michael Kuchler, and Miss Josephine Moore. Music and games were the features of the evening.

YOUR CHILD Should Think for Itself BY OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

The fallacy of acting on a principle that a baby should have his thinking and acting done for him is coming to an end.

Those people trained by experience and observation in the intricacies of baby thought and baby behavior have learned that from his earliest months he is entitled to the respect and consideration of his elders.

His mental processes, however primitive, are positive and real. The bud is no less a flower because its leaves are not opened. Beneath the closed petals are the processes of a terrific growth, much more sensitive to environment than the mature flower.

Governed by Instinct A baby can and does absorb impressions through a curious and secret process of nature for which science has no name. He knows by instinct (call it that) if you are impatient or cross. In an incredibly short time he will base his estimate of himself upon your estimate of him.

No one can analyze these processes, he himself is not conscious then, or even after, of these things. But later in life, if he is a victim of inferiority complex, a prey to unnamed fears, overly sensitive, morbid or a coward, perhaps dishonest, don't look back to the time he was 6 years old and wonder what did it. Instead, Agnes Kiefer, Dorothy Need, Mesdames Helen Lee, Margaret Rosenspien and Lena Jummamann.

The gifts were presented to the bride-elect by little Maxine Moxley, niece of the groom, from under an umbrella of the bridal colors, peach, orchid, pink and green.

The hostesses were assisted by their mother, Mrs. Michael Kuchler, and Miss Josephine Moore. Music and games were the features of the evening.

When Fear Begins As early as three or four months he often shows unmistakable signs of fear.

At nine months he will cry heartily when he is laughing at.

Figure it out. Does it not look as though the seeds of trouble, the things we often spend years in trying to overcome in adolescence, had their beginning in thoughtless or cruel acts on the part of his elders, in babyhood?

For some as yet unexplained reason, the human being is full of an unnamed fear of unnamed things, that had its beginning when man knew not the shelter nor safety of civilization.

Self-preservation was the first law

PRIZE BEAUTY BRIDE OF TERRE HAUTE MAN Miss Lois Irene Wilcox, winner of a recent beauty contest at Indiana State, Terre Haute, and Floyd L. Fry, student at the school, were married this week. Both are residents of Terre Haute and have attended Indiana State two years. Mrs. Fry is an Alpha and Mr. Fry a pledge of the Forum. The couple will live with the parents of the bride, Mr. and Mrs. C. G. Wilcox.

Patterns PATTERN ORDER BLANK Pattern Department, Indianapolis Times, Indianapolis, Ind. Enclosed find 15 cents for which send PAT-3350

Fete Tonight in Honor of Bride-Elect Misses Jeanette Griffith, Olga Snyder and Jessica Peffley will be hostess this evening at the Lumley Tea room at a personal shower and bridge in honor of Miss Jane Catherine Hawekotte, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John L. Hawekotte, 812 E. Fortieth St., whose marriage to Gareth Mitchell Hitchcock, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hitchcock, 41 N. Arlington Ave., will take place Sunday.

The tables will be decorated with orchid and pink sweet peas and the gifts will be brought in in a wagon decorated with orchid and pink, drawn by little Marian Gay Kester. With Miss Hawekotte and the hostesses will be Misses Helen Stephenson, Martholou Akers, Emma Lou Richter, Betty Barclay, Lucinda Smith, Dorothy Lambert, Julia Brettman, Margaret Shanklin, Irma Roller, Helen Haynes, Dorothy Pley, Ruby Davis, Betty Martindale, Elsie Gilkinson, Naomi Guild and Bernice Abbott.

Miss Betty Barclay will be hostess at a linen shower in honor of Miss Hawekotte Thursday and Miss Helen Warmoth will entertain for her Friday.

Shower Honors Miss Kuchler, Aug. 13 Bride Among showers given for Miss Eunice Marie Kuchler, whose marriage to Carl D. Moxley will take place Monday evening, Aug. 13, was a miscellaneous shower given by the sisters of the bride, Mrs. Ruth Ryker and Miss Naomi Kuchler, last evening.

Guests included the Misses Irene Roehm, Matilda Gasper, Marie Gasper, Cecilia Rauser, Rose Yochem, Anna Riegal, Alberta Milikan, Esther Herman, Alveretta Stoddard, Gertrude Steimer, Rosemary Brennan, Irene Brennan, Mary Murphy, Caroline Byrket, Anna Kiefer, Magdalen Kiefer, Agnes Kiefer, Dorothy Need, Mesdames Helen Lee, Margaret Rosenspien and Lena Jummamann.

The gifts were presented to the bride-elect by little Maxine Moxley, niece of the groom, from under an umbrella of the bridal colors, peach, orchid, pink and green.

The hostesses were assisted by their mother, Mrs. Michael Kuchler, and Miss Josephine Moore. Music and games were the features of the evening.

YOUR CHILD Should Think for Itself BY OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

The fallacy of acting on a principle that a baby should have his thinking and acting done for him is coming to an end.

Those people trained by experience and observation in the intricacies of baby thought and baby behavior have learned that from his earliest months he is entitled to the respect and consideration of his elders.

His mental processes, however primitive, are positive and real. The bud is no less a flower because its leaves are not opened. Beneath the closed petals are the processes of a terrific growth, much more sensitive to environment than the mature flower.

Governed by Instinct A baby can and does absorb impressions through a curious and secret process of nature for which science has no name. He knows by instinct (call it that) if you are impatient or cross. In an incredibly short time he will base his estimate of himself upon your estimate of him.

No one can analyze these processes, he himself is not conscious then, or even after, of these things. But later in life, if he is a victim of inferiority complex, a prey to unnamed fears, overly sensitive, morbid or a coward, perhaps dishonest, don't look back to the time he was 6 years old and wonder what did it. Instead, Agnes Kiefer, Dorothy Need, Mesdames Helen Lee, Margaret Rosenspien and Lena Jummamann.

The gifts were presented to the bride-elect by little Maxine Moxley, niece of the groom, from under an umbrella of the bridal colors, peach, orchid, pink and green.

The hostesses were assisted by their mother, Mrs. Michael Kuchler, and Miss Josephine Moore. Music and games were the features of the evening.

YOUR CHILD Should Think for Itself BY OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

The fallacy of acting on a principle that a baby should have his thinking and acting done for him is coming to an end.

Those people trained by experience and observation in the intricacies of baby thought and baby behavior have learned that from his earliest months he is entitled to the respect and consideration of his elders.

His mental processes, however primitive, are positive and real. The bud is no less a flower because its leaves are not opened. Beneath the closed petals are the processes of a terrific growth, much more sensitive to environment than the mature flower.

Governed by Instinct A baby can and does absorb impressions through a curious and secret process of nature for which science has no name. He knows by instinct (call it that) if you are impatient or cross. In an incredibly short time he will base his estimate of himself upon your estimate of him.

No one can analyze these processes, he himself is not conscious then, or even after, of these things. But later in life, if he is a victim of inferiority complex, a prey to unnamed fears, overly sensitive, morbid or a coward, perhaps dishonest, don't look back to the time he was 6 years old and wonder what did it. Instead, Agnes Kiefer, Dorothy Need, Mesdames Helen Lee, Margaret Rosenspien and Lena Jummamann.

The gifts were presented to the bride-elect by little Maxine Moxley, niece of the groom, from under an umbrella of the bridal colors, peach, orchid, pink and green.

The hostesses were assisted by their mother, Mrs. Michael Kuchler, and Miss Josephine Moore. Music and games were the features of the evening.

YOUR CHILD Should Think for Itself BY OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

The fallacy of acting on a principle that a baby should have his thinking and acting done for him is coming to an end.

Those people trained by experience and observation in the intricacies of baby thought and baby behavior have learned that from his earliest months he is entitled to the respect and consideration of his elders.

His mental processes, however primitive, are positive and real. The bud is no less a flower because its leaves are not opened. Beneath the closed petals are the processes of a terrific growth, much more sensitive to environment than the mature flower.

Governed by Instinct A baby can and does absorb impressions through a curious and secret process of nature for which science has no name. He knows by instinct (call it that) if you are impatient or cross. In an incredibly short time he will base his estimate of himself upon your estimate of him.

No one can analyze these processes, he himself is not conscious then, or even after, of these things. But later in life, if he is a victim of inferiority complex, a prey to unnamed fears, overly sensitive, morbid or a coward, perhaps dishonest, don't look back to the time he was 6 years old and wonder what did it. Instead, Agnes Kiefer, Dorothy Need, Mesdames Helen Lee, Margaret Rosenspien and Lena Jummamann.

The gifts were presented to the bride-elect by little Maxine Moxley, niece of the groom, from under an umbrella of the bridal colors, peach, orchid, pink and green.

The hostesses were assisted by their mother, Mrs. Michael Kuchler, and Miss Josephine Moore. Music and games were the features of the evening.

YOUR CHILD Should Think for Itself BY OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

The fallacy of acting on a principle that a baby should have his thinking and acting done for him is coming to an end.

Those people trained by experience and observation in the intricacies of baby thought and baby behavior have learned that from his earliest months he is entitled to the respect and consideration of his elders.

His mental processes, however primitive, are positive and real. The bud is no less a flower because its leaves are not opened. Beneath the closed petals are the processes of a terrific growth, much more sensitive to environment than the mature flower.

Governed by Instinct A baby can and does absorb impressions through a curious and secret process of nature for which science has no name. He knows by instinct (call it that) if you are impatient or cross. In an incredibly short time he will base his estimate of himself upon your estimate of him.

No one can analyze these processes, he himself is not conscious then, or even after, of these things. But later in life, if he is a victim of inferiority complex, a prey to unnamed fears, overly sensitive, morbid or a coward, perhaps dishonest, don't look back to the time he was 6 years old and wonder what did it. Instead, Agnes Kiefer, Dorothy Need, Mesdames Helen Lee, Margaret Rosenspien and Lena Jummamann.

The gifts were presented to the bride-elect by little Maxine Moxley, niece of the groom, from under an umbrella of the bridal colors, peach, orchid, pink and green.

The hostesses were assisted by their mother, Mrs. Michael Kuchler, and Miss Josephine Moore. Music and games were the features of the evening.

YOUR CHILD Should Think for Itself BY OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

The fallacy of acting on a principle that a baby should have his thinking and acting done for him is coming to an end.

Those people trained by experience and observation in the intricacies of baby thought and baby behavior have learned that from his earliest months he is entitled to the respect and consideration of his elders.

His mental processes, however primitive, are positive and real. The bud is no less a flower because its leaves are not opened. Beneath the closed petals are the processes of a terrific growth, much more sensitive to environment than the mature flower.

Governed by Instinct A baby can and does absorb impressions through a curious and secret process of nature for which science has no name. He knows by instinct (call it that) if you are impatient or cross. In an incredibly short time he will base his estimate of himself upon your estimate of him.

No one can analyze these processes, he himself is not conscious then, or even after, of these things. But later in life, if he is a victim of inferiority complex, a prey to unnamed fears, overly sensitive, morbid or a coward, perhaps dishonest, don't look back to the time he was 6 years old and wonder what did it. Instead, Agnes Kiefer, Dorothy Need, Mesdames Helen Lee, Margaret Rosenspien and Lena Jummamann.

The gifts were presented to the bride-elect by little Maxine Moxley, niece of the groom, from under an umbrella of the bridal colors, peach, orchid, pink and green.

The hostesses were assisted by their mother, Mrs. Michael Kuchler, and Miss Josephine Moore. Music and games were the features of the evening.

YOUR CHILD Should Think for Itself BY OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

The fallacy of acting on a principle that a baby should have his thinking and acting done for him is coming to an end.

Those people trained by experience and observation in the intricacies of baby thought and baby behavior have learned that from his earliest months he is entitled to the respect and consideration of his elders.

His mental processes, however primitive, are positive and real. The bud is no less a flower because its leaves are not opened. Beneath the closed petals are the processes of a terrific growth, much more sensitive to environment than the mature flower.

Governed by Instinct A baby can and does absorb impressions through a curious and secret process of nature for which science has no name. He knows by instinct (call it that) if you are impatient or cross. In an incredibly short time he will base his estimate of himself upon your estimate of him.

No one can analyze these processes, he himself is not conscious then, or even after, of these things. But later in life, if he is a victim of inferiority complex, a prey to unnamed fears, overly sensitive, morbid or a coward, perhaps dishonest, don't look back to the time he was 6 years old and wonder what did it. Instead, Agnes Kiefer, Dorothy Need, Mesdames Helen Lee, Margaret Rosenspien and Lena Jummamann.

The gifts were presented to the bride-elect by little Maxine Moxley, niece of the groom, from under an umbrella of the bridal colors, peach, orchid, pink and green.

The hostesses were assisted by their mother, Mrs. Michael Kuchler, and Miss Josephine Moore. Music and games were the features of the evening.

YOUR CHILD Should Think for Itself BY OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

The fallacy of acting on a principle that a baby should have his thinking and acting done for him is coming to an end.

Those people trained by experience and observation in the intricacies of baby thought and baby behavior have learned that from his earliest months he is entitled to the respect and consideration of his elders.

His mental processes, however primitive, are positive and real. The bud is no less a flower because its leaves are not opened. Beneath the closed petals are the processes of a terrific growth, much more sensitive to environment than the mature flower.

Governed by Instinct A baby can and does absorb impressions through a curious and secret process of nature for which science has no name. He knows by instinct (call it that) if you are impatient or cross. In an incredibly short time he will base his estimate of himself upon your estimate of him.

No one can analyze these processes, he himself is not conscious then, or even after, of these things. But later in life, if he is a victim of inferiority complex, a prey to unnamed fears, overly sensitive, morbid or a coward, perhaps dishonest, don't look back to the time he was 6 years old and wonder what did it. Instead, Agnes Kiefer, Dorothy Need, Mesdames Helen Lee, Margaret Rosenspien and Lena Jummamann.

The gifts were presented to the bride-elect by little Maxine Moxley, niece of the groom, from under an umbrella of the bridal colors, peach, orchid, pink and green.

The hostesses were assisted by their mother, Mrs. Michael Kuchler, and Miss Josephine Moore. Music and games were the features of the evening.

YOUR CHILD Should Think for Itself BY OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

The fallacy of acting on a principle that a baby should have his thinking and acting done for him is coming to an end.

Those people trained by experience and observation in the intricacies of baby thought and baby behavior have learned that from his earliest months he is entitled to the respect and consideration of his elders.

His mental processes, however primitive, are positive and real. The bud is no less a flower because its leaves are not opened. Beneath the closed petals are the processes of a terrific growth, much more sensitive to environment than the mature flower.

Governed by Instinct A baby can and does absorb impressions through a curious and secret process of nature for which science has no name. He knows by instinct (call it that) if you are impatient or cross. In an incredibly short time he will base his estimate of himself upon your estimate of him.

No one can analyze these processes, he himself is not conscious then, or even after, of these things. But later in life, if he is a victim of inferiority complex, a prey to unnamed fears, overly sensitive, morbid or a coward, perhaps dishonest, don't look back to the time he was 6 years old and wonder what did it. Instead, Agnes Kiefer, Dorothy Need, Mesdames Helen Lee, Margaret Rosenspien and Lena Jummamann.

The gifts were presented to the bride-elect by little Maxine Moxley, niece of the groom, from under an umbrella of the bridal colors, peach, orchid, pink and green.

The hostesses were assisted by their mother, Mrs. Michael Kuchler, and Miss Josephine Moore. Music and games were the features of the evening.

YOUR CHILD Should Think for Itself BY OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

The fallacy of acting on a principle that a baby should have his thinking and acting done for him is coming to an end.

Those people trained by experience and observation in the intricacies of baby thought and baby behavior have learned that from his earliest months he is entitled to the respect and consideration of his elders.

His mental processes, however primitive, are positive and real. The bud is no less a flower because its leaves are not opened. Beneath the closed petals are the processes of a terrific growth, much more sensitive to environment than the mature flower.

Governed by Instinct A baby can and does absorb impressions through a curious and secret process of nature for which science has no name. He knows by instinct (call it that) if you are impatient or cross. In an incredibly short time he will base his estimate of himself upon your estimate of him.

No one can analyze these processes, he himself is not conscious then, or even after, of these things. But later in life, if he is a victim of inferiority complex, a prey to unnamed fears, overly sensitive, morbid or a coward, perhaps dishonest, don't look back to the time he was 6 years old and wonder what did it. Instead, Agnes Kiefer, Dorothy Need, Mesdames Helen Lee, Margaret Rosenspien and Lena Jummamann.

The gifts were presented to the bride-elect by little Maxine Moxley, niece of the groom, from under an umbrella of the bridal colors, peach, orchid, pink and green.

The hostesses were assisted by their mother, Mrs. Michael Kuchler, and Miss Josephine Moore. Music and games were the features of the evening.

YOUR CHILD Should Think for Itself BY OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

The fallacy of acting on a principle that a baby should have his thinking and acting done for him is coming to an end.

Those people trained by experience and observation in the intricacies of baby thought and baby behavior have learned that from his earliest months he is entitled to the respect and consideration of his elders.

His mental processes, however primitive, are positive and real. The bud is no less a flower because its leaves are not opened. Beneath the closed petals are the processes of a terrific growth, much more sensitive to environment than the mature flower.

Governed by Instinct A baby can and does absorb impressions through a curious and secret process of nature for which science has no name. He knows by instinct (call it that) if you are impatient or cross. In an incredibly short time he will base his estimate of himself upon your estimate of him.

No one can analyze these processes, he himself is not conscious then, or even after, of these things. But later in life, if he is a victim of inferiority complex, a prey to unnamed fears, overly sensitive, morbid or a coward, perhaps dishonest, don't look back to the time he was 6 years old and wonder what did it. Instead, Agnes Kiefer, Dorothy Need, Mesdames Helen Lee, Margaret Rosenspien and Lena Jummamann.

The gifts were presented to the bride-elect by little Maxine Moxley, niece of the groom, from under an umbrella of the bridal colors, peach, orchid, pink and green.

The hostesses were assisted by their mother, Mrs. Michael Kuchler, and Miss Josephine Moore. Music and games were the features of the evening.

YOUR CHILD Should Think for Itself BY OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

The fallacy of acting on a principle that a baby should have his thinking and acting done for him is coming to an end.

Those people trained by experience and observation in the intricacies of baby thought and baby behavior have learned that from his earliest months he is entitled to the respect and consideration of his elders.

His mental processes, however primitive, are positive and real. The bud is no less a flower because its leaves are not opened. Beneath the closed petals are the processes of a terrific growth, much more sensitive to environment than the mature flower.

Governed by Instinct A baby can and does absorb impressions through a curious and secret process of nature for which science has no name. He knows by instinct (call it that) if you are impatient or cross. In an incredibly short time he will base his estimate of himself upon your estimate of him.

No one can analyze these processes, he himself is not conscious then, or even after, of these things. But later in life, if he is a victim of inferiority complex, a prey to unnamed fears, overly sensitive, morbid or a coward, perhaps dishonest, don't look back to the time he was 6 years old and wonder what did it. Instead, Agnes Kiefer, Dorothy Need, Mesdames Helen Lee, Margaret Rosenspien and Lena Jummamann.

The gifts were presented to the bride-elect by little Maxine Moxley, niece of the groom, from under an umbrella of the bridal colors, peach, orchid, pink and green.

The hostesses were assisted by their mother, Mrs. Michael Kuchler, and Miss Josephine Moore. Music and games were the features of the evening.

YOUR CHILD Should Think for Itself BY OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

The fallacy of acting on a principle that a baby should have his thinking and acting done for him is coming to an end.

Those people trained by experience and observation in the intricacies of baby thought and baby behavior have learned that from his earliest months he is entitled to the respect and consideration of his elders.