PROFESSIONAL golf group of the city has been augmented with a classy player this summer. Ray Clark, formerly the pro at Red Park Municipal course at Terre Haute, is in charge of the indoor golf school at Elm-Roe sporting goods store. Ray not only tells the boys how to play the game, but now and then he goes out and demonstrates his ability.

Par on the Red Park course is 37-37-74, and on a recent visit to his old stamping grounds, and with previous practice over the course this year, Clark shot two rounds in which he was under par one and two strokes. Ray was two under par going out on his first round and even par coming in. On the second trip he was even par going out and one under on the "in" trip. So you can see for yourself that he did some mighty perfect shooting on both nines and deserves a world of credit, because the conductor of an indoor school has little time to keep his golf eye on edge and his judgment of distance accurate. Clark's card follow:

First round 44-44-43-43-35-37
Clark-Out 44-44-43-43-35-37
Second round 55-54-43-44-43-37
Par 37-37-74
Clark-In 44-43-43-44-44-37-72
Second round 44-43-43-44-44-36-73

Don Ellis and Frank Fitzgerald went their way to the finals of the Meridian Hills junior tournament Wednesday with semi-final round victories over Bob Rhodhamel and H. L. Sims.

Ellis and Rhodhamel played a nip-and-tuck battle that was decided on the last green, where Ellis won, 1 up. At one time Rhodhamel was two up and Ellis also held that margin of lead at one time. They cut down each other's lead until at the end of the last putt was made to decide the outcome.

Simons, on the other hand, never was in a position to win his match with Fitzgerald, going down in the half. Fitzgerald mixed in a beautiful round of golf in the first nine holes and led, 3 up, at the 18th hole. Just one stroke over par with 36 when the halfway point was reached. The final match was started at 1:30 this afternoon.

The winner will be given the Meridian Hill trophy and the runner-up a valuable gift. Ellis, who shot a 32 in the qualifying round, will be given a special prize for being low qualifier.

R. HODEHAMEL, who is 14, and Fitzgerald, who is 18, are certain of going to the Indiana State junior meet at Ft. Wayne the week of Aug. 20. The pair may be joined by Ellis, according to George Marquis, assistant pro at Meridian Hills, and if so the Hills boys are likely to go somewhere in the tournament. Marquis and Dick Nelson have been busy recently taking some of the lunks out of the games of the juniors, and are depending on them to place the name of Meridian Hills high in golf circles in the next few years.
