

"FOUR WALLS" OPENS AT LOEW'S PALACE FOR THE WEEK

Jackie Coogan in Person Begins to Meet His Indianapolis Friends at the Circle Today—Another Charlie Davis Show on View.

"FOUR Walls" do not a prison make, but the screen vehicle of that title which is now playing at the Palace Theater, furnishes John Gilbert with his latest starring story. The picture is a story of regeneration and opens with Gilbert playing the role of a young gangster leader who shoots a man in a gang fight in a New York City night club. The leader is sent to prison for four years.

While in Sing Sing penitentiary, he comes to realize the sordidness of the life he had formerly led and on his release four years later resolves to cut loose from the gangster life and "go straight."

His mother (Vera Gordon) and the girl who truly loves him (Carmel Myers) make a great rejoicing over his release. The ex-convict finds that his lieutenant, Monk, has taken over both his gang and his girl during his absence.

The girl, Joan Crawford, resolves to get Jack back into his former life, but Gilbert declares that he is finished with her. To spite him she gets engaged to Monk during a party.

A rival gang raids the party and Gilbert escapes with Miss Crawford to the roof. The greatest scene in the picture comes when the two of them stand on the roof looking over the New York skyline at night and Gilbert reflects that every man and woman in the city is bound within "Four Walls" and that no man can ever be entirely free.

Miss Crawford's acting ability shows such an improvement that she is now ready for stardom, it is rumored. The remainder of the cast includes Vera Gordon, Carmel Myers, Louis Nathaeus and Robert Emmet O'Connor.

A new Hal Roach comedy, "Should Married Men Go Home?" will be shown, featuring Oliver Hardy and Stan Laurel. The background of the comedy is on the golf links, and as a whole, is up to the usual Hal Roach standard of continuous laughs.

M G M and other short features will also be seen, and Lester Huff is featured at the organ.

JACKIE COOGAN IN PERSON AT CIRCLE

Jackie Coogan, "The Kid" himself, the world's greatest child-actor, who comes to the Circle Theater in person the week beginning Saturday, Aug. 25, heads a big triple unit program which also includes Dick Powell in a big stage show, "In Hollywood," and the featured photoplay attraction, "The News Parade."

The boyish star of "Oliver Twist," "The Kid," and a dozen other outstanding popular pictures brings his great talent to the Circle's stage. The pathos, the heart interest and the tender sentiment he evoked in pictures, is again predominating in his personal appearance.

Dick Powell's stage show, "In Hollywood," brings the Circle's youthful master of ceremonies into the heart of the picture studios. An unusually elaborate production has been devised, with Beebe and Rubytone, two whirlwind acrobatic tumblers; Bee Carche, a "blues" singer and personality girl, besides Charlie Barnes, the Circle's new star attraction. The Circle Comets will present other intricate dancing routines.

Ed Resner has compiled the latest melodies of the day for his overture, "Popular Hits," which will be presented by the Circle concert orchestra.

Nick Stuart, Earle Foxe and Sally Phipps are co-starred in "The News Parade," fast moving comedy-romance of a news reel camera man who runs the gamut of adventure trying to photograph a camera-shy millionaire. A sparkling love story gives the picture added appeal.

Concert to Be Given Sunday

Stutz Motor Car Company to Broadcast Big Program.

THE STUTZ MOTOR COMPANY, in conjunction with George M. Spindler, State distributor for Stutz motor cars, will place on the air Sunday, over station WFBM, Indianapolis, from 6 to 7 p.m., one of the most carefully prepared programs of symphony music and vocal selections ever heard in this locality. The orchestra is under the leadership of Earl Mounce, musical director of WFBM. The arrangements have been made by George Irish, former director of the Indianapolis Athletic Club orchestra.

Radio listeners within range of this station will be given an opportunity to compare this program with those being broadcast over the Blue and Red network from New York, and be accorded the pleasure of listening to the first symphony orchestra ever organized in this city for radio work. The Stutz Little Symphony Orchestra is composed of outstanding musicians among them: Jeanette Orloff, concert master, and twenty-two other well-known artists. The following pieces will be used: Four violins, one viola, two cellos, two bass violins, one flute, three clarinets, one oboe, two trumpets, two trombones, two French horns, two xylophones, piano, drums, timpani, vibraphone.

The singers appearing on this program are well known among religious circles. The double mixed quartet is composed of Margaret Ann Welsh and Florence Parkin Welch, sopranos; Frank Nusbaum and Floyd Chafee, tenors; Mildred Johns and Catherine Morris, contraltos; Thomas Broadstreet and DeWitt Talbert, bassos.

In presenting this program to radio listeners, it is the intention of the Stutz company to ascertain if the radio public is interested in good music rendered by capable Indianapolis artists, and if so, they ask their listeners to help support this feature program by their constructive criticism and they will continue to give to their listeners a program of this nature each Sunday evening during the next year.

The "March of the Black Hawks," which will open and close the program, was composed by George Irish.

Fred Moskovitz, president of the Stutz Motor Car Company, will give

Stage Play Is Now A Photoplay

Marion Davies' Latest Is 'The Cardboard Lover.'

A SIDE from the fact that it was produced by the organization of that name, Marion Davies' new starring picture, "The Cardboard Lover," which will be seen here soon is really a "Cosmopolitan" production.

Everyone of the principals in the picture comes from a different country and everyone of them originally spoke a different native tongue.

Mrs. Davies, herself, is the only one of the principals born in the United States. She was born in Brooklyn.

Nils Asther, who has the leading male role, was born and educated in Sweden. He speaks seven languages including Swedish, so had no difficulty in picking up English. He had been in the United States less than ten months when the picture was filmed.

Andres de Segurola who plays the comedy-heavy, was born in Spain and his real title is the Count of Alza. However de Segurola, who began his career as a grand opera baritone and who has toured all over the world in that capacity (indeed he plays the role of opera singer in the picture) naturally speaks English like a native.

Jetta Goudal who is the siren of the comedy, was born in Versailles, on the outskirts of Paris. She came to the United States just after the outbreak of the war and speaks good English.

Ten Holtz, who plays the comedy valet, also adds variety to the cast. Holtz was born in Russia and scored his first success at the Yiddish theater in New York City, as a character actor.

The original stage play was written by Jacques Deval, a Frenchman, and was adapted to the screen by Carey Wilson, a Scotchman. Robert Leonard, the director, was born in Chicago.

Hence when the production was started, the entire cast found themselves able to converse in three languages, English, French and German—which they all were able to speak.

Sing for Picture

"Uncle Tom's Cabin" has been synchronized in Movietone with the Fish Jubilee Singers, and a highly realistic accompaniment of sounds of all kinds and is now ready to be heard as well as seen.

Many Girls Enter Beauty Contest

Walnut Gardens will play host to the Indiana State Bathing Beauty Pageant on Sunday, Sept. 2, in which many towns and cities in the State will be represented.

The winner will receive a new Chevrolet coach.

A second winner will receive a three stone diamond ring.

Many Indianapolis and Marion County entries have been received.

The Indianapolis eliminations will take place Sunday afternoon.

These Are Daring Girls

Here are Ethel Pritchett (left) and Hazel Bruce (right), who will ascend suspended from the big Riverside balloon at the amusement park Sunday afternoon, and at the height of one mile will cut loose and execute three parachute leaps each on the way to the ground.

Herd Horses

Sixty-five head of horses were herded some 200 miles into the heart of the Southwest desert to the spot where a unit was on location

to film exteriors for Zane Grey's picture, "The Water Hole."

Tilden on Stage

William T. Tilden, II, famous tennis star more than ever in the lime-light these days, owing to his journalistic endeavors, will punctuate his controversies with the U. S. L. T. A. with a vaudeville appearance arranged by E. S. Keller and George Godfrey.

Tilden, who has appeared in a number of more or less successful Broadway productions, will take to the circuit the week of Sept. 3, opening in White Plains, N. Y., thence to New Rochelle and there after scheduled for major New York City vaudeville houses.

To date it is announced that he will present a monolog, although this plan is subject to change.

New Stunts on Park Program

Broad Ripple to Offer Many Startling Events.

WITH a "mermaid review" at the bathing beach, skaters in the roller skating marathon entered into the third day of their grueling grind, which will continue as long as the contestants are able to move, and special features visitors to Broad Ripple Park Sunday and throughout the week will see a big program.

In the "mermaid review," first and second money prizes will be offered for the most graceful dive, most graceful swim and the most beautiful girl entering the contest.

A large number of entries have been turned in.

The roller skate marathon, the first to be staged in the State, is causing unusual interest and has among its contestants some of the best known skaters in the State, both men and women, made up in teams vying with each other for the cash prizes, which amount to $250.

The marathon is being staged under the direction of Roy Byers, the dean of skating rink managers in this State. Special judges are on hand during the day and throughout the long hours of the nights, as well as nurses and physicians, to see that the contestants get the best care possible.

A fall festival roundup of the citizens of Clinton, Boone, Montgomery and Hendricks Counties will be held tomorrow. These outings, which have been held throughout the current season, have proven immensely popular and have all signified their intention of renewing them next season.

A special request number program will be offered by the Musical Miracle tomorrow with the selections being furnished by the Wilking Music Company and presented under the direction of Frank Wilking.

Free dancing will be featured at the Moonlight Dance Garden with music played by Arbuckle's Orchestra which will render a program of novelties. There is free admission to children, free parking and free wild animal zoos.

The management announces boxing on Thursday nights, and free fireworks display on Saturday evenings.
