

G. O. P. FAVORED TO RETAIN RULE OF NEW SENATE

Democrats Face Task of Re-Electing 20; Gaining Three Seats.

BY C. J. LILLEY

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—Democrats must save twenty seats in the Senate and gain three additional seats in the November election if they hope to wrest control from the Republicans in the next Congress.

In as much as the Republicans have only fourteen seats at stake and these in normally Republican strongholds, the Democratic party is faced with a difficult task.

Only a sweeping Al Smith victory in November can put the Democrats in power in the seventy-first Congress, political observers say.

In order to have a majority and place themselves in control, the Democrats must have forty-nine Senators. At present they have but forty-six and the terms of twenty of that number expire next March.

The Republicans have forty-nine seats, of which two have been vacant owing to contests in Illinois and Pennsylvania. Thirteen Republicans are seeking re-election while Illinois must supply one to fill the vacancy.

In Pennsylvania, William S. Vare, Senator-elect, is still seeking his seat. If the Democrats gain control, Vare will be ousted. If not, the Republicans may yet be able to save him.

The ninety-sixth seat belongs to Senator Shipstead of Minnesota, a Farmer-Laborite, who seems certain of re-election.

The Republican Senators whose terms expire are: Cutting, New Mexico; Fess, Ohio; Frazier, North Dakota; Greene, Vermont; Hale,
Maine; Howell, Nebraska; Thomas,
Idaho, a recent appointee; Johnson,
California; La Follette, Wisconsin;
McLean, Connecticut; Reed, Pennsylvania; Robinson, Indiana; Vandenburg, Michigan.

Look Out Below

When repairs to an eighty-foot steeple on St. Stephen's Baptist church in Kansas City began to grow costly members of the church voted to remove the steeple. A news photographer caught this snapshot as the top section was pulled off.

Reed, Mayfield and Locher have already dropped from the picture Reed did not seek re-election, while Mayfield and Locher were defeated in the primaries and other Democrats nominated in their places.

The progressives in the Senate have Howell, Johnson, La Follette and Wheeler up for re-election, with every indication that all will return with substantial majorities in November.

The Democrats whose terms expire are: Ashurst, Arizona; Bayard, Delaware; Bruce, Maryland; Copeland, New York; Dill, Washington; Edwards, New Jersey; Gerry, Rhode Island; Kendrick, Wyoming; King, Utah; Locher, Ohio; McKellar, Tennessee; Mayfield, Texas; Neely, West Virginia; Pittman, Nevada; Reed, Missouri; Stephens, Mississippi; Swanson, Virginia; Trammell, Florida; Walsh, Massachusetts, and Wheeler, Montana.

The Republicans whose terms expire are: Cutting, New Mexico; Fess, Ohio; Frazier, North
Dakota; Greene, Vermont; Hale,
Maine; Howell, Nebraska; Thomas,
Idaho, a recent appointee; Johnson,
California; La Follette, Wisconsin;
McLean, Connecticut; Reed, Pennsylvania; Robinson, Indiana; Vandenburg, Michigan.

Is Your Son Going to College This Fall?

"Yes"—says many a proud father.

"I guess he is"—sighs many a loving mother.

"You bet"—asserts the boy himself as the day for registration draws near.

Weeks of preparation, days of anticipation, hours of advice, and the boy is gone. Whether it is his first year or his last, mothers and dads always experience the same feeling of emptiness with the boy's departure.

But these pangs of homesickness need not be endured. Let the telephone bring your boy back to the fireside. Send your voices over the wires straight into his college room. Talking with him is the next best thing to seeing him.

Long Distance is the only satisfying way to span the miles between the college and the home. It is the best way of dispelling homesickness.

Arrange to talk with your son at least once a week.
