SWEDEN HAS BEST CELLAR IN ALL OF EUROPE

No Private Profit and No Reason to Buy and Sell Poor Liquors.

Sweden tried prohibition. It failed. Now a rigid system of State control, being tried, successfully. William Philip Simms, Scripps-Howard foreign editor, has made an intensive study of it, and herewith presents the sixth in a series on the workings of the system.

BY WILLIAM PHILIP SIMMS
Foreign Editor, Scripps-Howard News Service.

STOCKHOLM, Sept. 11.—Sweden has the finest "cellar" in Europe. She employs experts to choose from the world's best vintages. This is part of her liquor control system which is fast making a temperate, law-abiding people of a once hard-drinking nation. The Wine and Spirits Centre, which controls every ounce of Sweden's supply, lists no less than 85 brands of wines and 263 varieties of the stronger beverages.

These, as Director John Bergvall, of the Stockholm "system" of distribution, explained, are the best that money can buy.

No Private Profit

"Why not?" he asked. "As private profit has been eliminated from liquor sales in Sweden, there is no longer any reason for buying and selling inferior goods. Any surplus would go to the Government and the Government doesn't want it. To buy the limited amount of spirits to which you may be entitled, you must have a 'motbok,' or pass, which closely resembles a checkbook. You sign it for what you require or have coming to you. The interior of a Swedish wine and spirits shop carries the bank idea still further. There are windows and counters and desks for writing.

A bank knows to a penny how much money it has on hand and here they know to the ounce just what liquor they have in stock. There's no telling when an auditor may drop in.

Prices Are Low

Picking up some of the goods at random, I saw Swedish brandy, or schnaps, as low as 80 cents a bottle; French cognac of excellent quality from $2.75 up; gins and whiskies from $2.50; champagnes from $3 and remarkable qualities of French, Spanish, Italian, Madeira, German and other wines ranging from 40 cents a bottle up to the scale.

There was no rush. Perhaps half a dozen people were in the store when I was there and it was one of the biggest in Stockholm.

Nothing Is Served on the Premises

Light wines and beers are not limited by the Bratt system of control.

The theory is—and it seems to be working admirably—that if these milder beverages are available less of the stronger types would be consumed.

The heaviest beer allowed is 3.2 per cent alcohol by weight, but the average runs considerably below that, say 2 per cent. It is little different from our near-beer.

A system of checks, counter checks and permits prevents fraud or trickery permitting this or that person, hotel or restaurant, obtaining more than his or its ration calls for.

Besides the employees are the best paid in Sweden, the money coming from the system itself which, needless to say, is quite self-supporting. At the age of 60 the employees are pensioned off.

PAINS IN HIS CHEST, SMOTHERING FEELING

Missouri Man Says He Suffered a Good While Before He Found Relief. "Black-Draught Helped Me."

"I suffered a good while before I found something that would help me," writes Mr. E. W. Berry, of 601 South High Street, Neosho, Mo. "My trouble was indigestion, pains in my chest and a tight, bloated feeling that would make me feel smothered."

"Speaking of this to a friend of mine, he told me that Black-Draught was good for this trouble. I went over and bought a package. It certainly did help me, so I continued to use it."

"I am in the transfer business, and sometimes when I would be hungry and ready to eat, I would have a call and would have to eat later. Then I would eat too much or too hurriedly. This would cause indigestion."

"After I started using Black-Draught, I found it did me a world of good. It is splendid for biliousness and stomach troubles. I am glad to recommend it."

Thousands of people have found relief, in cases of common indigestion, by taking a pinch of Black-Draught after meals, and continuing this treatment for several days.

Thedford's Black-Draught is made from pure, medicinal roots and herbs.
