

JOBS LOST BY 'OLD FAMILIARS' IN VOTE WARS

Many Veterans Will Be Gone From Ranks; Burden on Youth.

BY RAY TUCKER
Times Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON, Sept. 28.—Many familiar faces of veteran statesmen will be missing when the Seventy-first Congress convenes in March. Almost a score of seasoned parliamentarians, including Republicans and Democrats, will not answer "here."

Political fatalities among congressional veterans have been more numerous than in many years. The next administration, whether Republican or Democratic, must depend on comparative youngsters in the lower body.

Most are quitting because the other fellow got more votes, though three voluntary retirements are recorded. Three members of the House tried unsuccessfully to climb the political ladder by running for gubernatorial nominations. A fourth made the grade. Three tried for senatorial nominations, and lost. Two got their chance to substitute a senatorial toga for the more subdued dress of the House.

One is a suffering example of the utility of placing faith in political princes. He is Representative John Morin of Pittsburgh, a twenty-year member and chairman of the House Military Affairs Committee. Though he backed "Bill" Vane of Philadelphia during his time of trouble, Vane gave him no aid when the

KONJOLA CLEANSED HER SYSTEM IN A FEW WEEKS' TIME

All Her Suffering Is Ended and She Enjoys New Life

ports are being received from those who have just recently found out what this remedy is capable of doing.

Mrs. Grace Sutton, 2905 Brookside Avenue, Indianapolis, is one of the latest to give a written report to the Konjola Man at Hook's drug store, Illinois and Washington streets, this city, telling him of the many benefits she derived from the use of this medicine.

"Konjola cleansed my system so well that within three weeks' time I was free of all stomach trouble and the neuritis pains through my back and shoulders had disappeared," said Mrs. Sutton. "Now, I enjoy new life energy over my whole body and never suffer from the slightest ache or pain."

"Over a year ago I began having trouble with my stomach. At first it was only slight attacks of gas and belching, but my condition grew worse very quickly and in a few months' time I was suffering all kinds of misery. Every time I ate a meal my system would fill up with gas and I would get sick at my stomach. My heart would start to beat like a trip-hammer and there was a burning sensation all through my chest and stomach. I would wake up in the morning with a severe headache and at times I was subject to blind, dizzy spells. Neuritis pains in my back and shoulders made my suffering all the worse. Often my whole body was so full of aches and pains that I couldn't bear to be on my feet. Many times I would just drag through the day and be completely exhausted when night came. Even then I couldn't sleep. I would lie awake half the night and the next morning I felt miserable."

"So many reliable people of this city were indorsing Konjola that I felt it was at least worth my while to give it a trial. Now, I am happy that I did. It was the medicine my system had needed for a long time. The relief from gas bloating and indigestion came so quickly that I was surprised and didn't know what to make of it. Anyhow, I just kept on taking Konjola and every day I was feeling a little better. By the end of three weeks I felt like another person. My neuritis had gone and all sign of stomach trouble had left. I sleep better at night and wake up in the morning feeling refreshed and rested and I have more energy and vigor to do my work. Yes, Konjola really gave my system a good cleansing and I will be glad to tell anyone about this remarkable medicine."

The Konjola Man is at Hook's drug store, Illinois and Washington streets, Indianapolis, where he is daily meeting the public and introducing and explaining the merits of this remedy. Konjola is sold in every Hook drug store in this section and by all the leading drug-grocers throughout this vicinity.—Advertisement

Mellon group decided not to renominate the Congressman.

Jim Reed of Missouri and Meyer Jacobstein of New York have had enough of the rough-and-tumble stuff, the former after eighteen years in the Senate, the latter after four in the House. Jacobstein is a college professor when not in politics. Another voluntary quitter is Representative William W. Cohen, New York City, who has found that his business as a cotton broker suffers from his presence at the capital.

The three who failed to make the gubernatorial grade are James T. Begg of Ohio, a ten-year man; T. Webber Wilson, Mississippi, six years in the House, and J. D. Beck of Wisconsin, eight years. Martin Davey of Ohio was a winner.

The two who lost in their senatorial fights were Representative Blanton of Texas and Representative Finis Garrett of Tennessee, a twenty-two-year veteran and minority leader. Senator Mayfield of Texas and Senator Locher of Ohio failed of renomination. Senatorial victors were fiery Representative Connally of Texas and that aged war-horse, Representative Burton of Ohio.

The largest steam turbine in the world, to supply a thousand towns and cities with electric power, will be put into service at Philo, Ohio, in November. It will have a capacity of 165,000 kilowatts.

TRACE U. S. BACK 20,000 YEARS

Arrows Point to Antiquity, Experts Told.

BY EMILY C. DAVIS
Science Service Staff Writer
NEW YORK, Sept. 22.—The American continent has been inhabited by men at least 20,000 years, judging by important evidence unearthed at Folsom, N. M., Barnum Brown of the American Museum of Natural History, told the International Congress of Americanists here.

Sixteen stone arrow points found buried with the bones of thirty extinct bison are the evidence of a prehistoric buffalo hunt which Brown said demonstrates the antiquity of man on this continent.

Heretofore, scientists have unearthed the skeletons and the possessions of basketmaker Indians, who date back perhaps to 2,000 B. C.

Brown, who just has returned from examining the scene of the buffalo hunt, dug out one of the arrows. The layers of earth in which the bones have become buried and other geologic features of the site indicate the great age of the deposit, he said.

The arrow points are of fine workmanship, rivaling the weapons of stone age Egyptians.

The antiquity of these weapons was questioned by Dr. Ales Hrdlicka of the Smithsonian Institution. Dr. Hrdlicka, who was unable to be present, left a paper to be read, in which he stated that there are weaknesses in the evidence.

SHORTAGE THREATENS IN HALIBUT SUPPLY

Over-Exploitation May Drive Fish
From Market.

By Science Service
NEW YORK, Sept. 28.—Halibut, the deep-sea fresh fish available in real abundance to inland dwellers, may in a few years be swept from the market because of over-exploitation of the banks where it is taken. The International Fisheries Commission warns against a shortage soon to come unless present practices are discontinued.

It is pointed out that not only has there been a fall in the abundance of fish, especially on the older banks, which has dropped to 16 per cent of the abundance in 1906, but there has been a decrease in the size of the fish, this being regarded as especially serious because of the very slow growth of halibut.

As a adult fish is from twelve to twenty-five years old, the fish to be caught in the next ten years are already hatched and the yearly abundance for that period has been established. If these fish are greatly reduced in numbers and the present intensity of the fishery is maintained, according to the commission, the outlook for a stock of spawning fish sufficient to maintain the supply is rather hopeless.
