

TALKING IT OVER WITH JOE WILLIAMS

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—To New York and environs Babe Ruth may be just a ball player, but to the outlying districts he comes close to being a god. It is probably true he has caught the imagination of the public to a greater extent than any individual in sports since that of John L. Sullivan.

Going into the West and coming back the train carrying the Yankees might well have been called the Babe Ruth special. To the citizenry along the line it was nothing else but. At every stop crowds thronged the train yards and the station platforms.

It made little difference whether the train arrived in the early morning hours, or late evening hours, crowds were always there, ranging in numbers from hundreds to thousands.

THE train would rumble into the yards and come to a groaning stop. There would be a mad stampede for the sleeping cars. The inevitable cry would go up, "We want Ruth. We want Ruth. Come on, Babe!"

And presently the Babe would come out, collarless and in his shirt sleeves, or perhaps in his sleeveless undershirt. The Babe travels in primitive comfort.

From the steps of the coach the great man greets his admirers. The Babe can relate with the best of them. He is probably the best extemporaneous talker in sports, a fact that may surprise a great number of people.

THE Babe is a throw-back from the old days of sport. To him victories must be immortalized in fêtes and festivals. Sitting in his drawing room a few hours after the Yankees had again won the championship he was a modern Bacchus. What was lacking in splendor and rare viands was offset by the man's tremendous naturalness, friendliness and frankness.

"I'm just a big clown, but I sure can hit that apple. . . . Don't ever let anybody tell you a ball player doesn't love to play ball. . . . When am I going to quit? When they take my suit away and not before. . . . Do I think the Yankees are the greatest team of all time? Well I can whip anybody who says it isn't."

Of course, the Babe isn't "just a big clown." There is no smarter player in the craft. His ambition is to be a big league manager, and one of these days you will see him running a team and running it well.

There are few men in the game who can analyze the turns and twists of a ball game, the winning and losing balances, with greater clarity and accuracy than the Babe, whose stupendous exploits in the series just ended have added fresh glamor to what was already the most glamorous career in diamond history.

Five boxing bouts and a battle-royal will be the sport menu at the Pennsy Gym tonight when the Pennsylvania Railroad Athletic Association stages its opening indoor show of the season.
