

DAILEY CERTAIN THAT HE'LL WIN GOVERNOR RACE

G. O. P. State Machine Is Arraigned Scathingly in Speech.

"I'm as confident I'll be elected as I am that I live." The tone of conviction carried in that declaration by Frank C. Dailey, Democratic nominee for Governor, brought a storm of applause from the 350 Irvington voters who crowded the Masonic temple, 5515 East Washington street, Tuesday night, to hear the "clean-up" candidate's second campaign speech in Marion county.

Dailey vigorously arraigned the Republican machine, disclaimed personal credit for "converting" 100,000 or more Indiana Republicans who he said have come to his support to insure his election, adding: "It was not a question of leadership; Republicans were driven from their party by the rotten machine rule in Indiana."

Warns of G. O. P. Promises
"Election of the Republican state ticket means continuation of the kind of government you've been having," Dailey said, recalling that the G. O. P. machine had promised a new deal at the close of James P. Goodrich's administration and elected Warren F. McCray, and again promised a new deal and produced Governor Ed Jackson.

The crowd chuckled and cheered at Dailey's verbal barbs at Harry C. Leslie, the Republican nominee, his aids and familiar episodes in the last four years of statehouse rule.

"The chief merryman in Leslie's camp," he said, "is Alf Hogston. Hogston is state fire marshal, but he won't be long! They get out a publication, a 'statehouse organ,' from Hogston's office. It's called the Pitchfork, appropriately, and has a direct relation to the horse!" "There will be no more rodeo performances in the statehouse after Nov. 6. They must have an idea we want to clean out the barn!"

Hits Jackson Appointment
Charging that a highly competent man was ousted as superintendent of the Indiana School for Feeble-Minded Youth at Ft. Wayne to make way for James Jackson, the Governor's brother, Dailey promised he would appoint no relatives to state posts when elected.

"Immature of such institutions deserve capable guardianship," said the Democratic nominee, "but I'm opposed to a guardianship for the able-minded by unnecessary boards and commissions as opposed to home rule."

Laughter followed Dailey's recital of Frederick K. Landis' refusal to endorse the Republican state ticket at Kokomo Monday night. "They tried to find out where he stood," said Dailey. "Well, they didn't find out by words, but they certainly did by actions!"

Dailey told how he obtained the conviction of Senator Truman Newberry on election fraud charges before a jury of ten Republicans, one Democrat and one Independent.

Scolds at 'Reforming'
"On election day, fair-minded and patriotic citizens will do what that jury did and bring in a verdict in accordance with the facts," he said.

"Four members of the present Republican state ticket," said Dailey, "went into the Statehouse as appointees of Jackson, and by endorsing this ticket, the Governor is asking the voters to put them back in again. They got on the ticket because they kept quiet when they should have been yelling from the housetops."

"Leslie has turned 'reformer' in the last three weeks of the campaign. He had his chance, but failed, as a 'reformer' two years ago when, as Speaker, he blocked the resolution calling for a legislative investigation into corruption!"

Dailey read that part of Leslie's Ft. Wayne speech in which the Republican nominee said Federal Judge Albert B. Anderson had produced Dailey into prosecution of election fraud cases, and then read Judge Anderson's statement labeling Leslie's remarks as "untrue."

News to the Judges
"I'll bet it was news to Judge Anderson to read that he 'ordered me to reconvene the grand jury,' he said, while the crowd laughed. "No one could do that but the judge, and I never knew him to turn anything over to an agent!"

Dailey, Walter Myers, Dr. G. W. Swigert, candidate for state auditor; Robert R. Sloan and Leo Welch, candidates for state representatives, and Albert H. Losche, addressed 200 voters at the Illinois garage, 3227 N. Illinois street, after the Irvington meeting.

FORUM TO HEAR DEBATE
Co-Religionist of Al Smith Opposes Governor's Views.

"Can We Make People Good by Law?" will be debated Sunday evening at the Kirchbaum Center, 2314 North Meridian street, by Dr. John A. Lapp and Horace J. Briggs. It will be the first number of this winter's open forum series of the Jewish Community Center Association.

Dr. Lapp, who will debate the affirmative, is sociology professor at Marquette university and holds an opposite view to his co-religionist, Governor Al Smith.

Horace J. Briggs, who will argue the negative, is leader of the Ethical Culture Society, Chicago, and president of the Booth House Social Settlement.

B. & O. CHIEFS GUESTS
Daniel Willard to Speak Before City Traffic Club.

The Indianapolis Traffic Club will hear Daniel Willard, Baltimore & Ohio Railroad president, Thursday night at the Indianapolis Athletic Club.

B. & O. night will be observed. Executive and official staffs of the B. & O. will be club guests.

Commercial leaders of Indiana, Ohio, Kentucky and Illinois will attend.

Forcible Entry of House .Charged to Mae Murray

Mae Murray

SANTA MONICA, Cal., Oct. 17.—Reel life will be forgotten by Mae Murray, vaudeville and screen actress, for "real life" when she goes to trial here on Oct. 23 on a charge of forcibly entering the home of Jack Donovan, a Hollywood architect.

Facing the judge isn't a new experience for Mae. She was arrested in her bally Hollywood speeding days for opening the gas throttle on an automobile. The judge fined her. She went to jail and loafed her fine out.

Recently Miss Murray obtained a $32,000 judgment from Donovan for alleged misrepresentation of furnishings in a home purchased from him. Following the civil suit, Donovan charged her with perjury. The grand jury will hear this charge Monday.

In the present criminal action the actress, at her own request, is to be tried without a jury.

Campaign Log

Governor Smith after speaking in Sedalia, Mo., last night, calling Republican prosperity a myth, today was en route to Chicago. He will make short stops at Bloomington and Springfield, Ill., during the day.

Herbert Hoover turned his attention today to the speech to be made in New York next Monday. Hoover has determined, it was learned, to make more personal appearances between now and the close of the campaign.

Senator Charles Curtis at Raleigh, N. C., attacked Governor Smith's prohibition stand and said the Coolidge administration had worked hard to enforce the law. Curtis returned to Washington today.

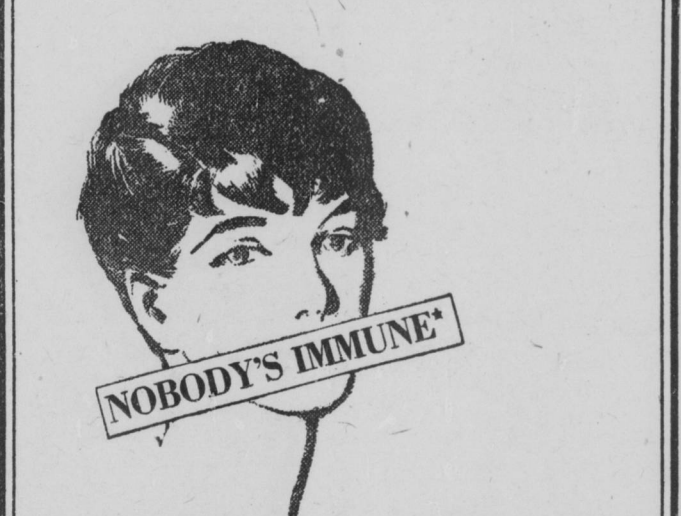

In a hastily arranged speech, Senator William E. Borah, at Salisbury, N. C., urged women voters to uphold the prohibition law by voting for Hoover and Curtis.

Senator Joseph Robinson, in a speech at Boise, Idaho, attacked the speaking campaign of Senator William E. Borah, saying his political activities were not in keeping with his senate utterances against Hoover.

War Veteran Kills Self
DECATUR, Ind., Oct. 17.—Funeral services were held today for Glen H. Venis, 29, World war veteran, who committed suicide by poisoning. He is believed to have been despondent over money troubles.

It has been said that the quality of our sleep is largely determined by our last thoughts before going to bed at night.

LESLIE TOSSES MORE MUD PIES AT TERRE HAUTE

He Carefully Sidesteps First Attack He Made on Mr. Dailey.

By Times Special
TERRE HAUTE, Ind., Oct. 17.—In the face of Federal Judge Albert B. Anderson's commendation of Frank C. Dailey, Democratic gubernatorial nominee, as "at all times vigilant, zealous and upright" as prosecutor of election fraud cases, Harry C. Leslie, Republican nominee, renewed his personal attack on Dailey in an address here Tuesday night.

He charged Dailey "side-stepped discreetly" when "higher-ups of his own Tammany organization" were under investigation; but he carefully refrained from reiterating his charge of a week ago that Judge Anderson had prodded Dailey into action.

Leslie, who refused to countenance demands for a political clean-up until a week ago, made a belated effort to improve his relations with the Republicans with the statement: "I stand for nonpartisan treatment of wrongdoers. I

Now Who Pays?

By Times Special
EVANSVILLE, Ind., Oct. 17.—James Lee, near Newburg, was granted a divorce when he told the following story to Isadore Fine, sitting as a special judge in probate court: "She wanted $5 and she's only give me a kiss on credit one time. But when she got up out of bed to go riding at midnight with two drunken men, I decided I had had enough of married life. The auto ran into a ditch and she came home with her neck almost broken. She wanted me to pay the doctor bill, but I balked at that."

hold it is our duty to hit a little harder, if anything, the wrongdoer in our own party than we do the law-breaker in the other political camp."

Leslie came to Terre Haute on the heels of his opponent who spoke here Monday night.

"Indiana Republicans go to the voters with a splendid ticket all up and down the line," Leslie said. "I am proud, indeed, to be on the ticket with the Republican state nominees and to recommend them one and a lito the people of the state."

Four members of the Republican state ticket now hold statehouse posts by appointment of Governor Ed Jackson.

CHECK RECORD OF THWARTED BANK BANDIT

Captured by Policeman on Verge of Holding Up Union Trust Co.

Charges against Joe La Fox, 23, arrested Tuesday afternoon by Patrolman Harry Smith as he was about to holdup the Kentucky avenue branch of the Union Trust Company, were continued today by Municipal Judge Paul C. Wetter, until Oct. 30 to permit police to check La Fox's record over the country.

Patrolman Smith arrested La Fox as he stepped into the entrance of the bank with his hand in his pocket as if about to draw revolver. Smith covered Fox with his own gun, searched him and found an old model 32-caliber revolver.

Later La Fox confessed to detectives he had intended to hold up the bank.

Smith had seen La Fox get out of a Ford sedan parked near the bank, but investigation showed the machine is owned by an insurance solicitor. La Fox evidently had gotten into the car to wait a few minutes before starting the holdup. The car was locked and he could not have driven it away.

Foxy

By Times Special
KOKOMO, Ind., Oct. 17.—Donald McCarl alleges Paul A. Wolf was foxy in a fox farm deal and has filed suit against Wolf in Howard circuit court here asking $4,000 damages. McCarl, an employee of Wolf, says he had faith in him and gave him money to invest in foxes with the understanding he would be a partner in a fur farm. But the suit alleges animals purchased for the venture were of low quality and instead of being worth $1,500 a pair, the price Wolf paid, were worth only $750.

Although La Fox said an accomplice was to drive up to the bank to whisk him away after the holdup, police believed he was acting alone. He also declared he is a Mexican, born at San Pedro, Mexico, but police believe him to be a Negro.

Police Chief Claude M. Worley commended Patrolman Smith's quick action and declared there is no doubt but that Smith prevented a holdup in which a large sum of money might have been taken. The bank was held up about a year ago and approximately $30,000 taken by bandits, since captured and given prison terms.

La Fox said he had been here only a week.
