

STATE O. K. IS GIVEN SWITCH OF BUS LINES

Greyhound Route Is Given
Right to Operate to Louisville.

Greyhound bus lines were granted permission by the Public Service commission Wednesday to take over one run daily of the Interstate Public Service Company bus lines operating between Indianapolis and Louisville. The Interstate will continue to operate two runs, making the present total of three trips daily remain the same.

The Greyhound lines already operate between Indianapolis and Chicago. From Louisville they are to extend the lines to the gulf of Florida. The new order will permit through trips to be made, it was pointed out.

The plan proposed by Commissioner Harvey Harmon for commission study of the proposed $70,000,000 utility merger was approved. Four extra engineers and four accountants will be put on the work, it was decided.

Affects 250 Towns

The merger involves the T. H. I. & E., Central Indiana Power Company, and other properties into an Insull concern affecting more than 250 Indiana towns and cities.

Rensselaer Water Company was granted permission to charge an additional 5 cents for 1,000 gallons on overdue accounts.

Discontinuance of the Crescent Bus Line Company route between Cynthiana and Poseyville, seven miles, was allowed.

The Mohawk Motor express was denied permission to operate a freight line between Indianapolis and South Bend. Union Traction Company bus lines in Muncie were extended.

Bus Service Approved

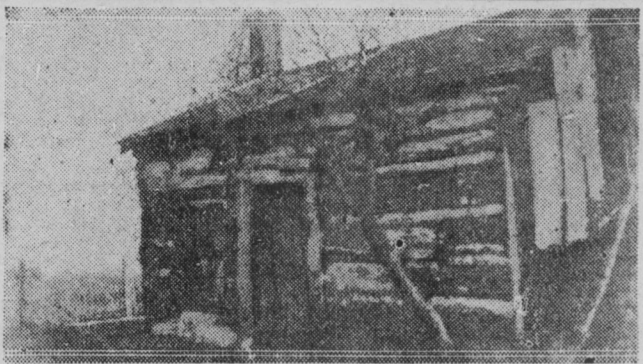

Interstate passenger bus service to be operated by the Pony Express Lines, Inc., between Detroit and Indianapolis was approved. The lines will operate over state roads 112, 12, 20 and 41.

Sale of a bus certificate for a line between Ft. Wayne and Richmond was approved. The line belonged to King Brothers and was bought by the A. B. C. Coach line.

James Powell, Princeton, was granted permission to operate a bus line between Evansville and Oakland City, through Somerville, Mackey, Bucksin and McCutcheonville.

Gas Station Displaces Cabin, Older Than State

The log cabin, 4723 West Washington street, believed to have been erected before 1816, recently torn down to make way for a filling station.

Until recently Ben Davis boasted of a log cabin older than the state of Indiana. The oldest pioneers remembered that the cabin was standing at 423 West Washington street when they were children and remembered their grandparents told of it in their childhood days.

Wood Thompson, Ben Davis, recalled that the cabin was standing in 1865. "I have heard my parents and grandparents tell that it was built before the state was admitted to the union in 1816."

George Pence, 6103 West Washington street, was born in the cabin Jan. 29, 1869. The cabin site originally was on a tract of 240 acres owned by his grandfather, John Pence Sr.

For the last sixteen years the structure was owned by the late John A. Hornburgher.

ATTACKER IS FOILED

Girl, 11, Chased Through House by Man.

Quick thinking and action by 11-year-old Mary Hurt, 1106 English avenue, saved her from an attempted attack by a middle-aged man this noon.

The child was alone at home when the man knocked at the door and said he was selling perfume. After asking some questions about her family, he attempted to enter. The girl slammed the door, but his foot kept it open and he chased her through the house.

Mary rushed into the bathroom and locked the door. She then jumped out of the bathroom window. The man ran down the alley.

BACKS ATHEIST SON IN LONG HUNGER STRIKE

Mother Gives Sanction After Visit to Jail; He Is on His Fifteenth Day.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Nov. 1.—Charles Smith, atheist leader, who was arrested and convicted here fifteen days ago on charges of distributing atheist literature "calculated to incite a riot," today was released after an unknown man paid the remaining $11.40 of a $26.40 fine he was serving out in protest of the Arkansas anti-atheist law.

By United Press

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Nov. 1.—Charles Smith, New York atheist, continued with new determination his hunger strike today in protest against Arkansas' anti-atheist law. His mother sanctioned the action after she saw "how well he is standing the punishment."

Mrs. Laura Sherman, Tecumseh, Okla., Smith's mother, came to see how her son is standing his strike. Several days ago, when he was removed from the city jail to the hospital, Mrs. Sherman had asked him to abandon his self-imposed fast.

"I was worried about him," she said, "but I feel better now, since I have seen how well he is standing the punishment."

Smith claims he will continue his hunger strike the full time of his 25 days prison sentence, imposed in lieu of paying a $25 fine, for distributing atheist literature. Today is his fifteenth day without food.

Mrs. Sherman told of the earlier ambitions she held for Smith. Twenty years ago she wished to have become a Methodist minister. But the son had become an atheist and the mother later joined him in his beliefs.

"He is my boy; I believe in him," she said.

The mother appears much younger than her 41 year old son. In contrast to his snow-white hair, she has brown hair only slightly tinged with gray. Like her son, she is a native Arkansan, and lived in Arkansas until after the birth of Charles. Two other sons reside in Oklahoma and a daughter in Texas.

CITY COLLEGES TO LET PUPILS CAST BALLOTS

Dr. Alely Urges Students to Exercise Citizenship on Tuesday.

Students of all Indianapolis colleges who desire to vote will be excused from classes Tuesday, heads of the various institutions announced today.

"We not only are releasing students from classes, but I urge all of voting age to cast their ballots as a patriotic duty," said Dr. Robert Alely, president of Butler university.

The students of all the colleges are to be back at classes Wednesday morning.

The Indiana School of Dentistry is dismissing classes for the day, operating only the clinic for those students who elect to remain and work or are ineligible to vote.

Butler, Indiana Central college, Teachers college of Indianapolis, Indiana School of Medicine and the Indianapolis College of Pharmacy are merely excusing those who express the desire to go home.

The absentee voters law having been repealed by the last legislature it is necessary for all Indiana students not bona-fide residents of college towns to vote in the places where they are legally resident.

It was pointed out, however, in a ruling today by W. W. Spencer and Fred C. Gause, state election commissioners, that election officials may exercise legal discretion as to which students are bona-fide residents of college towns.

"If the student in good faith considers the college town his residence and does not have a home elsewhere to which he expects to return when out of school, then there is no reason why he may not vote where the school is located," ruled Spencer and Gause.

"In determining this question it is material to consider whether the student is under parental control and dependent upon his parents for support, or whether he is self-supporting; whether he still considers the home of his parents his home, or considers the college town his home."

Practically all Indiana colleges and universities are expected to release students Tuesday for voting. It is estimated that approximately 10,000 persons of voting age are enrolled in Hoosier colleges.
