TRADE SCHOOL WORK

McCulloch Pupils to Send Examples Abroad.

Students of the Oscar C. McCulloch public school are preparing a portfolio of examples of American school work to send to Scoala Primara de Fete in Jutetul Elfov, Rumania, as a return favor for the material sent to the American school by the foreign classes recently.

The interchange of ideas and work is part of the campaign of the Junior Red Cross to foster good will between the American and foreign schools. E. H. Kemper McComb, Manual high school principal, is director of the local chapter and is sponsoring the effort.

The McCulloch school sent for Rumanian correspondence because more than 200 of the 575 pupils are of Rumanian parentage. Virginia Bolnit, 8, and Victoria Marsulescu, 12, volunteered to translate the letters. Mrs. Mabel Schmidt is principal of the school.

HEAR CHILDREN'S SONGS

Program Is Given in Teachers Special Library

A group of children's songs made up the program of the weekly music exhibit in the teachers special library in the office of the school board Wednesday. This was the last of the October exhibits. Maude Delbridge, soprano, sang, accompanied by Lenora Coffin.

Teachers Told of Social Work Information on social problems to be met by the school teachers was given in a chapel talk Tuesday by L. H. Millikan, head of the child welfare department of the state board of charities, at the Teachers College of Indianapolis.

GOOD GRADES AVERAGED AT MANUAL HIGH

300 Students Have Marks of 87.5 Per Cent or Better.

More than 300 boys and girls at Manual high school made scholastic averages of 87.5 per cent or better at the end of the first period of this semester, according to E. H. Kemper McComb, principal.

The school is divided into the "red house" and the "white house," the school colors, as a basis for marking and other activities.

Fifteen boys and seventeen girls of the "red house," and sixteen boys and twenty-two girls in the "white house" were among the thirty highest averages. ## HOLD CAMPAIGN AT SHORTRIDGE

Senior Election Race Like Real Politics.

"We have here tonight a well-known man. A man who..."

This is a part of the Shortridge high school senior election, with after-dinner speakers, a whispering campaign and everything.

There are two to five candidates for each of the five offices. Campaign managers have lined up the votes and extol the virtues of their candidates. The election is about two weeks away.

The following candidates have been certified by the faculty:

Tennis Queen

Sweeping opposition before her in the annual Shortridge high school girls' tennis tourney, Miss Agnes Hinkle, a freshman, took the tennis crown turned last year by Miss Muriel Adams, a graduate.

Miss Adams holds several championships in Virginia, where she now is living. In the final match of the tournament Miss Hinkle defeated Dorothy Dramer, 6-2, 6-2. Other strong players in the rounds were Jane Homsher, Nellie Mae Slate, Magdalene Adams, Martha Helmich and Maurine Stump.

Observers predict a brilliant future for Miss Hinkle, and say her style and strength will increase each year.

HALLOWEEN OBSERVED

Two Parties Given by Students at Teachers' College.

Two Halloween parties were given this week by students at the Teachers College of Indianapolis. The annual all-school party was given Tuesday in the assembly hall under the direction of the student council. Miss Gwendolyn Sheering is president and Mrs. Mazie Brannham is faculty sponsor.

The other party was given Monday night by the Pan-Hellenic association. Miss Lois Wiggin, president, was chairman in charge, and the party was chaperoned by Miss Elizabeth A. Hall, faculty sponsor.

HOLD 'BUNKLESS' VOTE

Squelch Campaigners at School Class Balloting.

A "bunkless election" was held this week by the civic class of the Teachers College of Indianapolis under the direction of James H. Peeling, head of the social science department. The affair was arranged along lines of a national and state election with copies of an official ballot sheet and with the school divided into six precincts. Electioneering was forbidden, and embryo campaigners were squelched.

Over the Bounding Main

"Sailing, sailing over the bounding main—or rather Pleasant Run," said Mildred Newbold, 5, and Robert Dittmar, 5, of the demonstration kindergarten of the Indianapolis Free Kindergarten Association.

The children of the class completed paper boats the other day and while the sun still was shining they sailed them in the little stream near the school, 3509 East Sixteenth street. Miss Ida Conner is the director and Miss Margaret Denny is assistant.

Robert is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Dittmar, 1339 Kealing avenue, and Mildred is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Newbold, 1510 Olney street. "Mother told me I could go boating if I wore my galashes," lisped Mildred.

Start Night Teacher Classes

To meet the need for qualified teachers of vocational work, night classes in "Methods of Teaching" will be started at 7:30 p. m. Monday at Technical high school by the vocational department of the Indianapolis public schools. Edward E. Greene, night school principal, will be in charge of registration.

Miller to Speak at School 75

A community program will be given Thursday at School 75 by children and parents. Charles F. Miller, city superintendent of schools, will be the principal speaker.

ART LECTURES GIVEN CHILDREN AT INSTITUTE

Painting Is Topic of Talk Saturday at Herron; Second of Series.

The second of the series of eight lectures given each week for Indianapolis public school children by the John Herron Art Institute will be held at 9:30 a. m. Saturday at the museum, Pennsylvania and Sixteenth streets.

The subject of this week's work will be painting with the pictures in the museum as illustrations. Miss Anna Hasselman, curator, and Miss Mary Margaret Miller, museum assistants, will lecture.

Students will study the work of ancient Egypt, Greece and Rome. The work of Raphael in Italy, Velasquez in Spain, Rubens in Flanders, Rembrandt in Holland, Millet in France, Reynolds in England, and Whistler in America also will be studied.

Three Courses Planned

The representative artists of Indiana will be William Chase, Theodore C. Steele and Wayman Adams. Many pictures in the museum will be used.

Note books are given to the students with blank spaces for notes between the topic headings. The books are bound and decorative covers are made. Prizes are offered at the end of the course of instruction for the best work.

It is planned to repeat the work three times. The first section started Oct. 27 and the last session will be held Dec. 15. Children will attend from Schools 42 to 41. The second section will include students from Schools 42 to 41. The third group will be made up of representatives of those schools which have the best attendance records.

Architecture to Be Studied

Sculpture will be the topic for lectures Nov. 10 and 17, with methods and demonstration the first session and sculpture in the museum the second.

Architecture will be the subject for Nov. 24. This is a new subject in the course and Indianapolis buildings will be used as subject matter. The increase of outstanding bits of architecture in the city in the past few years has led to the new course, it is said.

Pottery with methods and examples will be given Dec. 1, and textiles with methods and examples Dec. 8. Note book day has been set for Dec. 15, the close of the course.
