

SPOTLIGHT OFF COOLIDGE AND IT STINGS HIM

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2.—President Calvin Coolidge has been almost forgotten in the election campaign, and no one will pay very much attention to him until inauguration day, when he hands over the administration to his successor.

Such things are bound to happen to retiring Presidents, but it has been interesting to observe the eclipse in which the President has been shaded by Herbert Hoover, the Republican nominee.

It is most apparent in Washington, where correspondents and photographers have sadly neglected Mr. Coolidge in favor of Hoover's personal headquarters.

There have been one or two indications that the President wasn't especially enthusiastic about his new experience.

Coolidge in Second Place

Bert Hassell and Parker Cramer, the Rockford (Ill.) fliers, came here to call at the White House, but went to visit Hoover first. Pictures were taken at both places and the Washington newspapers all used the Hoover pictures.

It was directly after that that the President refused to pose with Dr. Eckener, the Graf Zeppelin commander.

Some of Hoover's friends have been feeling pretty sour over the President's failure to make any sincere political effort on the nominee's behalf, for if Coolidge has missed any of the limelight to which he was accustomed, he certainly had the opportunity to regain it by campaigning for Hoover.

Stands on Ethics

It is explained for Mr. Coolidge, first, that he questions the ethics of making a political stump out of the White House—although he endorsed Senator Butler in Massachusetts two years ago—and second, that he never goes out of his way to do anything for anyone, the Butler instance being an exception.

Partly by his own fault and partly through circumstances, public interest in Coolidge is at a low ebb, compared with a year ago.

Then everyone was buzzing over the question whether or not he wanted to be renominated. He may be described in history as one of the greatest Presidents, though not as a beloved figure, for he has had from the people a large measure of respect.

He'll Be President

He can be depended upon to be President right up to March 4, regardless of who is elected. He demonstrated in his selection of the new secretary of commerce that he would follow his own wishes rather than Hoover's.

In the event of Hoover's defeat, Coolidge would again become the biggest man in his party.

Some might blame him for not exerting himself in Hoover's behalf, but there would be plenty to suggest that Coolidge himself could have won and that he looked like the party's best bet in 1932.

SLACK WORKS FOR AL

Mayor to Make Democratic Speech at Knox Tonight.

Mayor L. Ert Slack will make a Democratic speech tonight at Knox, Ind.

The mayor said he will urge voters to support Al Smith for president.

"I never saw so much pussyfooting on the part of Republicans in my life. Smith won me over by his campaign speeches," said the mayor, who heretofore has steered away from discussing Smith's candidacy. Slack is a life-long Democrat.
