Lesson Games on Auction Bridge

Presented in a New, Brief Manner That Will Hold Your Interest

There is meat in this new series of Radio Bridge Games for every player—Beginner, Average and Advanced.

What was good Bridge two years ago is old-fashioned today. Mr. Work and Mr. Whitehead will start you right if you are just learning the game, and will bring you up-to-date in your bidding and play if you learned Bridge a year or more ago.

Clip the Summaries From This Paper for Your Scrap Book

Listen to the Radio Games on Tuesday, with your favorite Bridge foursome.

Then on Wednesday clip the summary from The Times, and paste it in a scrap book for reference on the high spots of bidding and play that you have learned from Mr. Work.

When the series of 20 games is over, you will have a Bridge Book that money cannot buy — written by Mr. Work, Mr. Whitehead and 40 other expert players — the men and women of all America who win championships, and whose names ornament the title pages of the Bridge Books you buy in book stores!

Mr. Work's comments will also include the bidding of this hand at Contract, and how it would differ from the bidding at Auction Bridge.

Don't Miss This New Feature!

A Short Cut to Mastery of Contract Bridge

Contract Bridge—a fascinating new form of the most fascinating of all games—is fast gaining popularity in all parts of America.

If you are not playing Contract now, you will want to soon! Mr. Work leads you gently into the mazes of Contract, making clear to you with a few deft words, the differences between the old form of Bridge and the new.

Just about five minutes of each Radio Game will be given to Contract—but how much those five minutes will mean to you, in such expert hands as Mr. Work's!
