

CHEVROLETS IN JAM ON USE OF FAMILY NAME

Louis Has Arthur Haled Before State Official to Show Right.

Chevrolet brothers, famous fiery Frenchmen, whose name is known throughout the world because of their contributions to automotive engineering, glared at each other before the desk of Secretary of State Frederick E. Schortemeier today.

Louis, the elder, had Arthur cited before Schortemeier to show cause why he should be permitted to use the name Chevrolet Aviation Motors corporation. This name was filed as that of a new corporation, which Arthur heads, and in which stock is to be sold. The corporation will build airplane motors.

Some time before formation of the corporation, however, Louis had filed papers of the Chevrolet Aircraft Company with the state. He contended that the new corporation had no right to the name chosen because of similarity.

Right Lost, Arthur Claims

Arthur contended that when Louis sold him his interest in Chevrolet Brothers Manufacturing Company here, he lost the right to the use of the name Chevrolet. The company made automobile motors of special design.

"Why, I have sold aviation motors made at our Chevrolet Brothers factory," Arthur told Schortemeier, with a French shrug of his shoulders. He looked meaningfully across at the elder brother.

Louis, once almost as famous a race driver as the third brother, Gaston, who was killed, glared back.

"Yes, you sold aviation motors, but it was my customers who bought them," he retorted.

Compromise Suggested

In the midst of the controversy, Schortemeier emphasized the virtue of getting along "as brothers should," and suggested a compromise. "Let one company be known as the Arthur Chevrolet Aviation Motors Corporation and the other as the Louis Chevrolet Aircraft Company," he suggested.

At last this was agreed to tentatively by attorneys. Solon Carter represented Louis and John Holtzman represented Arthur. The hearing got under way with a wrangle between these two and Schortemeier sent them out in the hall to try for an agreement.

Gordon Griffith and B. P. Prunk, interested in the company of Arthur, were present. Griffith suggested a closed hearing, barring newspaper men, but Schortemeier ruled against it.

"Hearings in my office on public matters always are open," he declared.

CITY MANAGER LAW GROOMED

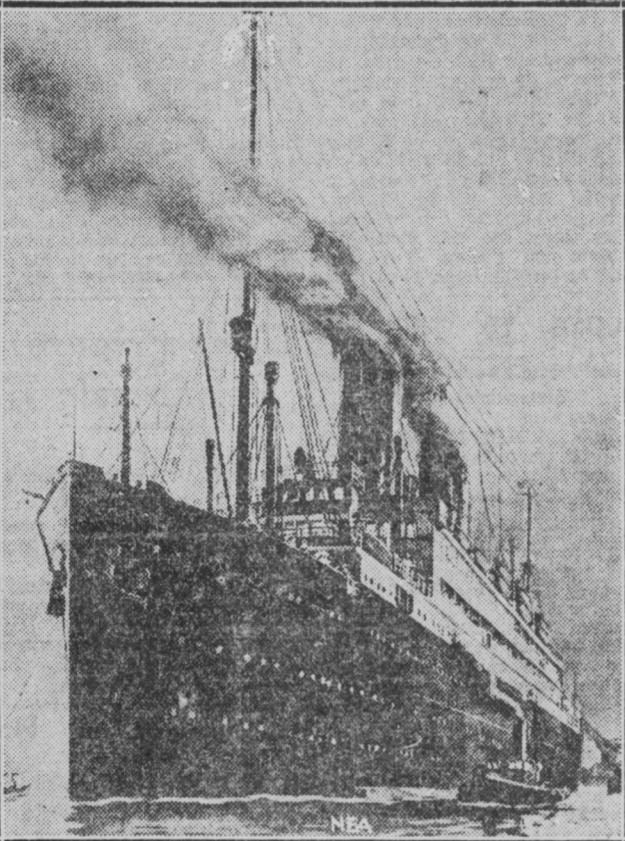

Report, Aimed to Cut Out Legal Flaws, Due Soon.

Members of the Indianapolis City Manager League legislative committee are expected to complete their recommendations on the amendment of the Indiana city manager law and submit a report to the league executive committee Nov. 20, Chairman Winfield Miller said today.

The committee is continuing its work on the proposed revision of the manager statute to eliminate legal objections raised by opponents. Miller, Councilman John F. White, Frank Noll Jr., Harvey Hartsock, and Claude H. Anderson, attorneys, conferred on the committee's preliminary report Tuesday at City Manager League headquarters, in the Illinois building.

The amendments will state that the school city is not disturbed under the change in municipal government.

An effort to revise the manager law in conformity with the 1927 budget statute will be made.

Here is the S. S. Berlin, pride of the North German Lloyd line, which picked up twenty-three survivors of the ill-fated steamer Vestris. It was the first rescue ship to reach New York today.

SHERIFF PICKS AIDS

Hawkins to Appoint Six to Jobs Thursday.

With a month and one-half of his term remaining, Sheriff Omer Hawkins, who also is Republican county chairman, Thursday will appoint six of the sixteen special deputy sheriffs for county patrol duty. This will leave ten appointments for Sheriff-Elect George L. Winkler, unless Hawkins decides to appoint more before retiring.

The appointments will be effective when made, it was said.

The new patrol system, as approved by county commissioners, provides for maintenance of two night and day emergency squads, equipped with machine guns, rifles and first aid kits. A substitution will be established at Ben Davis. Other teams will be stationed at the county jail.

The twenty-eight present deputies and the new appointees will fill out application blanks which will be filed in the sheriff's office. In the applications, they will be asked if they use intoxicating liquors, if they were ever arrested, convicted, fined or placed on probation for any offense and whether they were ever discharged by an employer or forced to resign.

Winkler will use this data in running his office force.

AVENGER FAILS, SO SLAYS SELF

Tries to Kill Obregon Assassin; Disarmed.

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 14.—Captain Jesus Obregon committed suicide by shooting himself last night after prison officials had disarmed him when he announced his intention of killing Jose Leon Toral, confessed assassin of General Alvaro Obregon. He is said to be a nephew of the late general.

The newspaper, Grafico, said in an earlier report that Captain Obregon drew a revolver in front of Toral's cell in the federal district prison, but was prevented from shooting by guards.

Visitors to the prison yesterday said that Toral was busy writing a history of his case, which has occupied him almost entirely since the end of the trial. He was sentenced to death.

Mother Superior Concepcion, sentenced to twenty years' imprisonment in the trial with Toral, and convicted of being the "intellectual author" of Obregon's assassination, has decorated the walls of her cell with pictures of the saints drawn by herself. She expressed herself as contented.

STATE LABOR WILL ASK BAN ON INJUNCTION

Compensation Act Also to Be Target at Session of Legislature.

Elimination of injunctions in labor disputes and rewriting of the workman's compensation act will be the major objectives of Indiana labor organizations in the state legislature, opening Jan. 10.

This became evident here today, when representatives of all state labor groups began mapping out their legislative program in conference at the English.

Although final action had not been taken this afternoon, labor men were one in declaring strenuous effort would be made to wipe the injunction weapon from Indiana's statute books, in so far as it applies to labor disputes.

The 1927 legislative session granted increases in workman's compensation, but failed to make the Indiana law comparable to those of neighboring states.

Again, labor sentiment was outspoken for eliminating the products of prison labor from competition with products of free labor; for repeal of the $10,000 limit in State liability laws; and for a law providing for judgment in civil cases when three-fourths, or five-sixths of the jury agree.

Bills to accomplish these objects either died or met defeat in the last general assembly.

Thomas N. Taylor, president of the State Federation of Labor, presided at the conference, which was attended by representatives of the State Building Trades Council; Indianapolis Central Labor union; State Barbers association; Indiana State Council of Carpenters, State District of Machinists, United Mine Workers, Districts 8 and 11; State Conference of Painters, Paper Hangers and Decorators, Brotherhood of Railway Conductors, Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, Railway System Federation, State Germant Workers' association, Molers' State conference, State Association of Plumbers and Steamfitters, State Electrical Workers association, Marion County Building Trades Council, Brotherhood of Railway Firemen, Engineemen and Trainmen, and Carpenters' District Council of Marion county.

THE KING LOVED HIS GAME OF CHECKERS

But the Queen Would Not Allow Her Grand Husband to Play Such a Very Common Thing as That.

BY WALTER D. HICKMAN

THE King was quite an old boy and not such a fool when the Queen was not around.

The King just loved to play checkers, but the Queen would not tolerate such a common game as that in the royal palace.

So King Eric VIII had to hide his checker board when his royal wife entered his apartment. If he didn't out the window would go the part of the royal wife.

Am trying to tell you about "The Queen's Husband," a three-act comedy or rather a modern burlesque upon the home life of a certain queen who went barnstorming in this country.

This play is by Robert Emmet Sherwood, who has no mean reputation for turning out smart plays filled with rapid remarks done in the slang of the day.

We are permitted to see "The Queen's Husband" as the opening production of the season of the Indianapolis Little Theatre at the Playhouse. The comedy was given its first Indianapolis presentation last night at the Playhouse and it will continue for the remainder of the week.

I might tell you that the touring company of "The Queen's Husband" is now at the Shubert in Cincinnati, O., with Marie Adels, formerly of the Berkell company, in one of the roles.

The production now on view at the playhouse is entirely the work of the Little Theatre from the scenery right up to the actors.

The cast of the Little Theatre production of this play is as follows:

Frederick Granton.....Gordon F. Engeler
Philip.....Clyde Jones
Lord Birkenhead.....Paul J. Harrington
Belley.....Paul J. Harrington
Princess.....Anna Louise Griffith
Queen Martha.....Anna Louise Griffith
Another Lady-in-Waiting.....Cody
General Norpup.....Mrs. William E. Over
King Eric VIII.....Reginald Garstang
Dr. Fellman.....William E. Over
Laker William.....Victor Mussawir
A Soldier.....Edward Calendar

I can say that the outstanding performance in this comedy is contributed by Hardin Callahan as the insipid, but modern carefree Prince William. The makeup was in nature of gay farce, but with realism in it. The voice fitted the character as well as the actions.

George Sommes, the director, picked the right individual to play this role. Reginald Garstang as King Eric permitted his character most of the time to be the weakling that the Queen supposed him to be, especially when she and some of his ministers were around.

It seems to me that the King was not such a weak baby as Garstang plays him because the playwright gives the King a two sided character—the dummy as well as a man who could scheme as well as command.

Anna Louise Griffith as Queen Esther looked like a Queen who could boss a royal palace and everything in it.

"The Queen's Husband" is done in three acts, but in the same setting, that of the private office of the King in the palace.

The comedy gets a smart, wise-cracking start in the first act and keeps up that tempo until the second act when it becomes melodramatic by injecting a revolution and that sort of thing. The third act picks up the nervous smart tempo of the first act. In other words the second act says a wee bit and loses some of its like it.

The Little Theatre has many functions and one of them every once in a while is to present a new smart comedy that would not reach the city as a legitimate attraction. That is the only possible excuse for doing this very modern bunch of nonsense.

I am not finding fault with the Little Theatre for presenting this comedy. It is within the object of some of the accomplishments of such an organization.

"The Queen's Husband" opened to about its capacity last night and will be on view at the Playhouse for the rest of the week.

SALTS FINE FOR ACHING KIDNEY

When Back Hurts Flush Your Kidneys by Drinking Lots of Water

Most folks forget that the kidneys, like the bowels, sometimes get sluggish and clogged and need a flushing occasionally, else we have back-ache and dull misery in the kidney region, severe headaches, rheumatic twinges, uric acid, acid stomach, sleeplessness and all sorts of bladder disorders.

You simply must keep your kidneys active and clean and the moment you feel an ache or pain in the kidney region begin drinking lots of water. Also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any drug store here, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is intended to flush clogged kidneys and help stimulate them to activity. It also helps neutralize the acids in the urine so they no longer irritate, thus helping to relieve bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; makes a delightful effervescent lithia water drink which everybody should take now and then to help keep their kidneys clean.

A well-known local druggist says he sells lots of Jad salts to folks who believe in trying to correct kidney trouble while it is only trouble.—Advertisement.

Home-Made, but Ends Bad Cough In a Hurry

To end a stubborn cough quickly, it is important to soothe and heal the inflamed membranes, get rid of the germs and also to aid the system inwardly to help throw off the trouble.

For these purposes, here is a home-made medicine, far better than anything you could buy at 3 times the cost. From any druggist, get 2½ ounces of Pinex. Put this into a pint bottle, and add plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey to fill up the pint. This takes but a moment, and makes a remedy so effective that you will never do without, once you have used it. Keeps perfectly, and children like it.

This simple remedy does three necessary things. It loosens the germ-laden phlegm and soothes away the inflammation, the active agent time it is absorbed into the blood, where it acts directly on the bronchial tubes. This explains why it brings such quick relief, even in obstinate bronchial coughs and "flu" coughs.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway Pine, containing the active agent of creosote, in a refined, palatable form, and known as one of the greatest healing agents for severe coughs, chest colds and bronchial troubles.

Do not accept a substitute for Pinex. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

Pains Across Kidneys

Peter Weisenburger, R. R. No. 8, Indianapolis, Ind., says: "I had intense knife-like pains shooting across my back. Every joint and muscle was sore. I was a nervous wreck owing to loss of sleep as night calls interfered with my rest. I was unable to get a night's rest until I used AR-GRAY tablets. After a few doses the rheumatic pains began to disappear. I soon began sleep eight hours without being disturbed. I used five bottles relieving all kidney trouble, restoring my health."

Won't dance with a sneezer

Who would blame a young lady for refusing to dance with a man who had a cold? Why should she risk infection for one so inconsiderate of others, so indifferent to etiquette and to his own condition.

Social, and business reasons too, demand that colds be thrown off quickly. To do that, millions of people take GROVE'S BROMO QUININE at the first warning signal—a sneeze or dry throat, a headache or a stopped-up feeling. Thus they frequently step the cold entirely, while fortifying the system against grip and influenza.

Experience beyond compare, and the facilities and resources of the world's largest maker, explain the ever-growing leadership of the original cold and grip tablet. To make sure of getting it, emphasize GROVE'S in asking for GROVE'S BROMO QUININE. Price 30c.
