

TWO BANDS TO GREET AIMEE

1,000 Members of Church Plan Welcome.

By United Press
LOS ANGELES, Nov. 27.—Two brass bands and 1,000 members of Angelus temple will extend an "expression of confidence" to Aimee Semple McPherson Thursday when she returns from a three-months tour of Europe.

Reassured by the evangelist's statement that she did not spend large sums in her defense against "conspiracy to obstruct justice" charges, her followers have planned a huge reception.

In addition to the two bands, several choir groups will welcome Mrs. McPherson. A Los Angeles police and fire department escort will lead a parade to the temple, while a Thanksgiving mass meeting will be held.

After Thanksgiving dinner with her son, Rolph, who accompanied her to Europe, and her daughter, Roberta, who remained in school here, Mrs. McPherson will open a four-day service for 7,000 followers.

OPEN CHICAGO KIDNAP TRIAL

Little Billy Ranieri Smiles at Hearing.

By United Press
CHICAGO, Nov. 27.—Little Billy Ranieri, 10-year-old boy, whose kidnapping last September aroused the city, was all smiles at the trial of his alleged abductors.

Billy was wearing his first long pants suit and that was enough to provoke the smiles that greeted attorneys and crowd.

Even when Samuel Hoffman, assistant state's attorney, demanded the death penalty for Angelo Pettiti, charged as the ringleader in the kidnapping, Billy smiled.

While a dozen prospective jurors were questioned as to whether they had any scruples against the death penalty, Billy's grin remained.

Billy was interested in everything, asking questions of anyone who would answer, attorneys, bailiffs, reporters and spectators.

Two others, Andrew Capellano and his son Tony, also are on trial with Pettiti.

Billy was kidnapped Sept. 6, and soon after ransom demands of $60,000 were made on his father, A. Frank Ranieri.

Police and courts united in the search and thirteen days later the boy returned by himself, one of his eyes blackened but otherwise unharmed.

Questioning of prospective jurors will be continued today. None has been chosen so far.
