

Aviation AIR MAIL LINE TO EVANSVILLE IS GIVEN BOOST

Business Group Hopes to Get Route Started in Near Future.

Inclusion of Indianapolis on an Evansville-Detroit air line, which would give this city another direct to Detroit and a direct to Evansville service is the hope of a group of Evansville business men, headed by John H. Castle, Detroit millionaire realtor, according to word received from Evansville.

Castle plans to include Ft. Wayne on the Detroit route.

At present there is an Indianapolis-Detroit route via Ft. Wayne. Three planes, Stinson-Detroits, would be used on the line. Two of these are six-passenger type and the other a four-passenger. Lieutenant George R. Pond, veteran navy flier, and recognized as one of the ten best fliers in this country, will be chief pilot of the line.

Operating expenses could reach $100,000 yearly, Castle declares.

Opening of a Graham Brothers plant in Evansville has brought the desirability of a direct air mail route to the fore.

There is no direct Indianapolis-Evansville air mail service at present, and the plan is receiving enthusiastic support both here and in Evansville from business men.

Author Hates It, but Flies

NEW YORK, Nov. 27.—Fannie Hurst, noted novelist, hates to fly, is afraid to fly—and intends to fly at every opportunity.

Miss Hurst recently returned from Europe, where she did all her traveling by air, has announced that she will learn to pilot her own plane, just for the sake of strengthening her self-discipline and courage.

"But just at present," she says, according to the Golden Book magazine, "any physician looking for my heartbeats while I'm flying will have to press his ear either to my feet or my mouth."

Girl Studies Aviation

SIOUX CITY, Ia., Nov. 27.—Miss Beth Powell, an aviation student here, works in the airplane factory to acquire detailed information about the making of airplanes. "Getting the inside dope on the business," was the way she explained her job in the factory.

Miss Powell has only two more hours of dual flying before she gets her "solo" classification and permission to apply for a private flying license, according to officials at the airport.

Pitcher-Flier in City

Joe Dawson, Pittsburgh, National League baseball pitcher, was a passenger in a Stinson-Detroit monoplane which landed at Hoosier airport Saturday. The plane was flown by Randolph Page, famous air racer and former air mail pilot, and P. A. Wright, who came here for a demonstration of the Travel Air monoplane, for which Hoosier airport is distributor.

Missing Airman Safe

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Nov. 27.—Lieutenant Edmund F. Gaines, whose supposedly crashed plane was sought yesterday by air and sea craft along Lake Ontario between here and Buffalo, today was flying on to his destination, Dayton, O.

Lieutenant Gaines, an army aircraft inspector, had brought his ship to a safe landing on a farm ten miles from here soon after he had been sighted in the snowstorm Sunday by another plane. He was not aware of the search being made for him by seven coast guard vessels and three airplanes until he noticed newspaper headlines last night.

Six Tricky Costumes Suitable for Aviation

Anita Page, the movie actress, here shows six correct costumes for aviation. You may wear a pair of linen trousers with brown boots and brown leather coat, or, for balmy California weather, a bathing suit is correct. A chic sports costume of green and beige raw silk is also smart if you wear the proper headgear. If you're wearing a bathing suit and the weather turns cold, just add a fur jacket. Golf trousers and sweater are chic, but for general utilitarian purposes overalls are the thing.

Air Dictionary

A short dictionary of aviation terms has been compiled by Embury-Riddle Company, Cincinnati, air mail contractors, which The Times, for the benefit of its readers interested in aviation, will publish, in part, from day to day.

Air Speed Indicator—To show speed through air. Not always accurate as to ground speed because of head or tail winds.

Altimeter—To show height above point of takeoff.

Earth Inductor Compass—An electrical compass, using current produced by a small windmill in the windstream. Position of plane with relation to magnetic spheres of the earth, enables pilot to steer predetermined course by observing needle of compass. Course is first set on one dial. As long as plane is on course, the needle on a second dial is vertical. It drops toward letter "E" if plane veers to right, etc.

Inclinometer—To show angle of plane to horizontal in flight.

Magnetic Compass—Standard instrument with magnetized bar same as is used on surface vehicles.

Rate of Climb Indicator—To show how fast in feet a minute plane is ascending or descending.

Tachometer—To show rate of speed of motor in revolutions per minute.

Turn and Bank Indicator—To show whether plane is level with plane of earth, and whether it is turning to right or left. Indispensable in fog and cloud flying.

MISSION HOLDS MASS MEETING

35th Anniversary Observed
by Wheeler Workers.

The Good Samaritan of Indianapolis—Wheel City Rescue Mission—celebrated its thirty-fifth anniversary Monday night with a mass meeting at the Roberts Park Methodist Episcopal church.

A host of the mission's friends and workers attended the celebration, and many of the city's most prominent ministers and church workers aided in the services.

Dr. George Arthur Franz, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, was the principal speaker. He urged support of the mission by all Indianapolis churches and described the organization as the modern Good Samaritan.

H. W. Krause, president of the mission's board of directors, presided. Music was furnished by the choir of the Broadway Methodist Episcopal church, and a temperance demonstration was given by twenty children from the mission Sunday school.

Another feature was the reading of the annual report, which graphically pictures the work being done by the mission and described its rapid growth.

This anniversary marks an epoch in the mission's life, for the thirty-sixth anniversary will be celebrated in a new four-story building, completely equipped, now under construction at 241 North Delaware street. The structure will be ready by April.

KRESGE, DIME STORE RAJAH, MARRIES AGAIN

61 - Year - Old Millionaire
Takes Widow as His Third Wife.

By United Press
STROUDSBURG, Pa., Nov. 27.—Sebastian S. Kresge, five and ten-cent-store multimillionaire, has taken his third wife at the age of 61. He is honeymooning in Florida and has a laugh on newspapermen.

He was married at his mother's home in Kunkletown, near here, to Mrs. Clara K. Swaine, 27 years his junior, Oct. 29. He asked that the ceremony be kept secret until he said the word.

Today J. M. Hill, prothonotary or chief clerk of the county court here, received a letter from Kresge in Florida, saying he might reveal the wedding. Hill did so, chuckling. Mrs. Swaine was divorced from John Swaine, four or five years ago. Swaine has a chicken farm near here.

The marriage was performed by the Rev. Benjamin C. Dahms, of Kinkletown.

Mrs. Swaine is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Zitts of Highland Park, Mich., and New York.

Kresge's first wife was Mrs. Anna Harvey Kresge. There were five children by this marriage. They were divorced and a year later he married Mrs. Doris Mercer Kresge, the divorced wife of a New York society paper publisher.

Last year Mrs. Kresge filed divorce proceedings in Detroit and charge the five and ten-cent store magnate with keeping liquor and being intimate with Miss Gladys Fish, New York chorus girl.

Kresge replied that he would be glad to "be rid of the wife, who had cost me several million dollars." The divorce was granted.
